Israel Denies Advancing Of Tanks Since Cease-Fire

Flood Threat Mounts

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A tornado damaged several homes in Greater Kanas City early today and surging floodwaters forced 15 or more families out of their homes.

A tornado dipped into Kansas City North near 52nd St. and Randolph and demolished one house and damaged four others and a church. No deaths or serious injuries resulted.

Overflowing water temporarily closed several roads in the Kansas City and adjoining eastern Kansas areas. Creeks raged and subsided quickly. The weather bureau kept close watch for possible serious flooding on tributaries of major rivers in northeastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri.

Residents of low-lying areas of Smithville, north of Kansas City, moved to higher ground as waters from the Little Platte River once again threatened that town.

Lightning and damaging winds disrupted electric service for short periods in more than 40 neighborhoods in the Kansas City metropolitan area.

Forecasts indicated there will be no letup in the showers and thunderstorms that have soaked much of western Missouri and eastern Kansas the past week.

Lester C. Gritz, 63, of Neodesha, Kan., drowned early Sunday when high water swept his pickup truck off a rural road southwest of Independence, Kan.

A jittery public reported seeing dozens of tornadoes Sunday, but only a few twisters were confirmed as hitting the ground.

One dipped into a residential area in the north part of Kansas City at 1:15 a.m., demolishing two houses, unroofing three others and damaging a church. One man suffered a minor injury.

Hail wiped out nearly-ripened wheat and other crops in some areas.

Up to eight inches of rain fell in Southeastern Kansas Saturday night.

Water flowed over roads in the Greater Kansas City area and west of there in eastern Kansas. Several roads were closed temporarily, including U.S. 24 between Lawrence and Topeka which was impassable in several places.

Walker Libel Case Reversed

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Supreme Court threw out today a $500,000 libel judgment won by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker against The Associated Press.

All nine judges voted to set aside the judgment, won by Walker in a Fort Worth, Tex., state court in 1964. They entered four separate opinions to state their views.

In the controlling opinion, Justice John M. Harlan said there wasn't "the slightest hint of a severe departure from accepted publishing standards" in the way The Associated Press reported Walker's activities at the University of Mississippi campus at Oxford in 1962.

"We therefore conclude that Gen. Walker should not be entitled to damages from The Associated Press."

Riots swept the Mississippi campus the night of Sept. 30, occasioned by the admission of a Negro, James Meredith, into the university. The AP reported Oct. 2 and 3 that Walker had "assumed command of the crowd" and had "led a charge of students against federal marshals."

Harlan said there was no evidence of "personal prejudice or incompetency" on the part of the AP's reporter, Van Savell, or The Associated Press.

Harlan noted that Walker had "denied categorically taking part in any charge against the federal marshals." However, Harlan also noted that Savell "was actually present during the events described and had reported them almost immediately to The Associated Press office in Atlanta."

The justice said "a discrepancy" was shown between an oral account given the office and a later written dispatch. But he said it related solely to whether Walker had spoken to a group of students on campus "before or after approaching the marshals."

Harlan referred to this as a "minor discrepancy" and said: "Negligence, it may have been; malice, it was not."

The nub of Harlan's opinion was that The Associated Press exercised a proper "degree of care" in its dispatches.

Search for Boys Fails Again

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — The search for three boys missing in Hannibal since May 10 apparently ended Sunday after the boys' parents said they were convinced the youths were not in Murphy's Cave.

Rescue workers dug through a recently discovered second level in the cave over the weekend and found no clues in the search for Billy, 11, and Joel Hoag, 13, and Edwin Craig Dowell, 14. The boys were last seen in the area of the cave.

Aqaba Shipping Resumes

By The Associated Press

Israel has denied Syrian charges that its tanks invaded deeper into Syria after a cease-fire but says it intends to keep some of the land it won from Syria, Egypt and Jordan in the six-day Middle East War.

Cheering crowds in the Israeli port of Elath Sunday night greeted the first Israeli freighter to enter the Gulf of Aqaba since Egypt's proclaimed blockade of the gulf led the Middle East to the brink of war.

The Jewish nation had assured reopening of the gulf by capturing Sharm el Sheikh, from which Egyptians guns overlooked the gulf entrance at the Strait of Tiran.

An Israeli army spokesman said the war against the Arabs killed 679 Israeli soldiers and wounded 2,563. Jordan has announced that 15,000 Jordanians were killed. Egypt and Syria have not announced any casualty figures.

Estimates of the number of prisoners taken by Israel, mostly Egyptians, range from 13,000 to 15,000. They still are being counted.

The U. N. Security Council, meeting past 2:30 a.m. for the second straight day, adopted a new resolution demanding that Israel and Syria avoid any forward movement of troops and withdraw any units that have crossed cease-fire lines established Saturday.

Syria said Israel moved armored units forward Sunday. Israel said its tank movements were entirely behind the cease-fire lines. U.N. truce observers confirmed movement of tanks in the area.

Israeli troops now occupy Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, the biblical cities in Jordan west of the Jordan river and a 25-mile Syrian front which extends as deep as 15 miles into Syrian territory. Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a public meeting Sunday night that Israel would not return to the armistice lines of 1949. For the first time, he said, Israel's Galilee settlements were out of danger from Syrian guns on high ground overlooking them.

The Jerusalem Post, which often reflects Foreign Ministry views, said: "The 1949 armistice agreements and their armistice demarcation lines are no longer recognized by Israel, having been invalidated by Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian aggression."

Coordinator Named For Head Start

PORTAGEVILLE--A coordinator for the summer Head Start program in the Bootheel has been appointed by the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation.

Robert Williams, a counselor in the Portageville schools, will serve as coordinator, Bratton Wallace, executive director of SMDC, said.

Williams has worked in the year round Head Start program in the Bootheel and is familiar with the project.

Although final approval of about $600,000 in federal funds has not been given by the Office of Economic Opportunity for the Bootheel project, approval is expected shortly.

A training program for about 360 Head Start employes will begin June 19, and the Head Start program is expected to get underway June 26, Wallace said.

The SMDC agreed to take over the Head Start program when the regional OEO office at Kansas City ruled that the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation could not administer the program.

SMDC is a non-profit corporation serving, Scott, Mississippi New Madrid, Stoddard, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

Sharp Clash Expected In Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— A major battle was expected to erupt in the Missouri Senate today over powers of the Senate Economics Committee.

Two members have offered rule changes to curtail the committee's broad powers over appropriations and expenditures.

Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, would make all 34 members of the Senate members of the committee, which now has 11 members and is headed by Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty, the majority floor leader.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, would limit the committee to consideration of bills requiring $250,000 or more in appropriations.

Opponents of the committee charge it has too often considered bills on their merits rather than taking only the expenditures into account.

Both Houses scheduled longer work hours this week, with only three weeks left before automatic adjournment at midnight June 30. The Senate plans five-day weeks from now on instead of quitting at noon on Thursdays.

One controversial issue comes up as a special order of business Wednesday, congressional redistricting. The House bill is far different from the Senate version and would put most of the St. Louis Negro voters in the present Republican 2nd district represented by verteran Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves.

The Senate bill would put most of the Negro voters in the Democratic 1st District of north St. Louis, represented now by Rep. Frank M. Karsten.

Rusk Heads for NATO Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk left today for Luxembourg to attend a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign minister which is expected to discuss primarily the Middle East problem.

The United States, especially Rusk, has urged the Allies on various occasions to look beyond the relatively narrow area of NATO but the Allies up to now have not seemed interested.

Officials now see signs of rapidly growing interest in the Middle East.

Rusk's position is known to be that the Middle East is primarily a responsibility of Western Europe, especially the former colonial powers, Britain and France.

Eshkol Says Israel Will Not Accept Old Confines

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told the world today that Israel, winner of its war with the Arabs, never would return to the old days of narrow confines, threats and insecurity.

The Israeli leader's proclamation to the Knesset (parliament) was clear notice that his people, after 20 years of fear and attack from all sides, will decide themselves the framework of the future.

As Eshkol spoke to the lawmakers in Jerusalem, Israeli troops were in command on the banks of the Suez Canal, on the west bank of the Jordan River, in all Jerusalem and on the Syrian heights above the Sea of Galilee.

Outside the honey-colored stone parliament building, crowds of young Israelis carriers banners declaring: "Do not return the occupied areas."

Said Eshkol: "Let there be no fostering of illusions. We fought alone for our survival.

"We alone are entitled to determine the nature of the vital interests of our country and how our interest must be secured.

"Let the international community be informed that the situation which existed until now shall not be allowed to return.

"The borders of Israel are to longer a no-man's land open to murder and sabotage from without."

Symington's Niece Dies In Mishap

STORMVILLE, N.Y. (AP)— Diedre H. Symington, niece of U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., fell to her death Sunday when her parachute failed to open during her first attempt at skydiving.

The 21-year-old Miss Symington, a student at Boston University, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Symington of Leesburg, Va.

Nathanael Sweet, instructor at Stormville Airport, said Miss Symington jumped from 2,600 feet. Her parachute did not open fully, he added, and "she did not activate her reserve chute."

Highway Toll to Four

The highway patrol reported four deaths during the weekend resulting from highway accidents in Southeast Missouri.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Trujillo, 24, of Cincinnati, a Catholic priest, died Saturday at Baptist hospital in Memphis from a skull fracture sustained in a van crash Thursday afternoon on U.S. 60 south of Sikeston.

Seven other priests were injured when the driver lost control of the vehicle which ran off the road and overturned.

A motorcyclist was killed at 4:30 a.m. today on U.S. highway 61, one-half mile south of Steele when his cycle was apparently run over by a car driven by Richard Friend Jr., 23, of Zion, Ill., troopers said.

Denny Gossett Jr., 48, of Houston, Tex., was dead on arrival at Pemiscot Memorial hospital at Hayti.

A pedestrian, John Sipes, 53, of Gibson, was killed when he was struck by a car on Missouri highway 53, one mile south of Campbell at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

The highway patrol said the driver, Billy Gene Meadows, 27, left the accident scene and was picked up at Campbell seven hours later for investigation on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Clarence Thiele, 63, of Sedgewickville was killed when his pickup truck ran off route B and hit a tree. The accident occurred at 4:45 p.m. Saturday, seven miles south of Perryville.

Ritter Services Slated Thursday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The body of Joseph Cardinal Ritter will lie in state until a pontifical requiem mass is celebrated in St. Louis Cathedral Thursday.

The funeral mass will be televised, enabling a higher percentage of Catholics in the St. Louis archdiocese to witness the mass.

Nine bishops are expected to participate in the funeral mass, among them is the Most Rev. John Cody, archbishop of Chicago and a cardinal designate.

The sermon will be offered by the Most Rev. Charles Helmsing, bishop of the Kansas City-St. Joseph, Mo., diocese.

As many as 100 bishops from throughout the United States are expected to attend the services.

Cardinal Ritter died Saturday following two heart attacks.

Addresses Mixed In Court Story

In an account of city court activity published on the front page Saturday the address of 408 Lillian street omitted for Chester F. Dockins, charged with assault and battery, whose case was dismissed.

Jerral L. Adams, 205 South Handy, charged on two counts, one for disturbing the peace and the other for imprudent driving, had one wrong address listed.

Optimists Hear Ku Klux Klan Interview

Phil Nash, news director of radio station KMPL, gave a recorded interview made with unidentified members of the Ku Klux Klan to the Optimist club today.

Propaganda of the organization based on the claim, "Klan Fights Communism," with a St. Louis headquarters address was displayed. Another card read; "You have been patronized by the K.K.K."

When Klan members were asked in the interview what interest they had in this area, a spokesman said:

"When we learn there is Communism or other unAmerican teachings in the schools, we make it a point to investigate. At no time do we reveal the names of other members of the Klan, and only a first name is given. There may be a number of members that may have the same first name."

When Nash asked the members about the size of membership in this area the only comment he received was that membership had increased 800 per cent and could be several hundred thousand in Missouri between St. Louis and the Arkansas line. Nash said the Federal Bureau of Investigation challenged this estimate.

A secret ballot is voted on membership proposals and if the person is rejected, he can apply the following year.

"All meetings are opened with a prayer," commented one Klansman.

Members must take an oath, hold no allegiance to any other country and must believe in God.

If a member leaves the organization, he must leave all literature and identification with the organization.

It takes two hours for an initiation. Basic requirements are secrecy and no mixed marriages. A spokesman said:

"We do not interfere with the events of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as long as there are no unAmerican activities assocated with any movement. When any group breaks the state or local law, we believe the tax dollar should not support the violation. We believe that any violation of law can be investigated by the public. An example was a recent meeting by 1,100 students in St. Louis when at a meeting a Flag was displayed four days in a backward position. We do not believe in the United Nations and believe the money given for it in its give-away program could better be spent to build our own country stronger."

In a question period the speaker related that the membership of the Ku Klux Klan, was greatly exaggerated, according to the FBI.

A report of a newly organized baseball league under the optimist clubs sponsorship that opened play Thursday night at Dancler Field, more than 40 boys reported.

Two games will be played each Thursday night. Play is open to any boy between eight and 15, who has not had the opportunity to participate in any other league.

Crime Study Favors Treatment to Jail for Drunks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consultant to the President's crime commission suggested today even moderate drinkers might turn to potent drugs if sources of alcoholic beverages were shut off.

Richard A. Blum explained that most Americans are not about to stop drinking since it "gives more pleasure than pain and ordinarily does not lead to trouble.

And problem drinkers, "without anything else but alcohol as a focus of life or source of pleasure or tranquilization, may well ask us what we have that is better than their spirituous familiar," he said.

Blum, a research director at Stanford University's Institute for the Study of Human Problems in California, made the comments in a report to the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice.

In a telephone interview, he added that because nearly all human cultures use drugs—and he considers alcohol a drug—"there's a reasonable guess that if we went back to prohibition, we would, of course, try to find other drugs that were acceptable and use them.

"We're so heavily committed to drug use that it would be inconceivable that we could reduce the use of drugs," Blum said.

Blum's report was one of nine on drunkeness prepared by consultants to the crime commission. The papers made public today comprised the sixth of the panel's nine specialized reports to be published. All were summarized in the commission's report issued last February.

Aside from the consultant's papers, the report contained only the same chapter on drunkenness, with the addition of footnotes, that appeared in the February report.

The commission, noting that the two million persons arrested yearly for drunkenness comprise a third of all arrests, recommended that drunkenness no longer be considered a crime and that drunks not be considered criminals.

But it said "disorderly and other criminal conduct accompanied by drunkenness should remain punishable as separate crimes."

To curb the problem of drunken derelicts—the unemployed homeless men who inhabit the nation's skid rows—the commission suggested the organization of detoxification centers to which alcoholics may be taken voluntarily.

One model cited by a commission consultant is the Vera Institute's Bowery Project in New York, expected to become a fully operational program in October at an estimated yearly cost of $350,000.

Vera is setting up a 50-bed facility on the Bowery with a detoxification center operated by St. Vincent's Hospital. Drunks will be approached by roving teams of civilians—accompanied by plainclothes police—and asked whether they wish to go to the center.

Those who refuse would be left alone. Those who accept would remain at the center up to four days or hospitalized if they are seriously ill. After they are dried out they would be sent to one of several rehabilitation centers.

Vera officials hope that once derelicts find they are well treated at the center, they will volunteer for treatment.

This would be the nation's first completely voluntary program for commitment of drunks. In St. Louis a similar program is run by police who take drunks to a rehabilitation facility under threat of summons.

Vera is a nonprofit, charitable organization engaging in research and experimental programs in the administration of criminal justice.

James Vorenberg, commission executive director, called the recommendations on drunkenness among the panel's least controversial and "the most doable."

Vorenberg urged communities to incorporate swiftly the commission's recommendations, especially that of removing police from the business of handling drunks.

"It's work that does not make being a policeman very attractive," he told newsmen at a briefing.

And, he added, the commission believes fear of conviction for drunkenness no deterrence since most alcoholics have long arrest records. He said one study reported the average alcoholic had been arrested 58.5 times.

Blum's report is one of four he and others prepared on mind-altering drugs and dangerous behavior. It is based largely on hitherto unpublished studies prepared by a group headed by Ira Cisin of George Washington University here.

Blum said any suggestion to reduce drinking was futile and "unnecessary, for there is no reason for the normal drinker to stop. His drinking is controlled, need not become a progressive disease, gives more pleasure than pain, and ordinarily does not lead to trouble."

Some benefits of alcohol, he said, include its value as a tranquilizer and sedative, food for nutritional use and treatment of disorders of appetite, obesity, diabetes, nutritional deficiencies and some heart diseases.

"Its beneficial social and psychological effects, including tension reduction, social interaction facilitation and direct euphoria, are better known," he added.

But alcoholism, he noted, is associated with early death and a high frequency of heart disease, tuberculosis and cirrhosis of the liver.

Blum said "culturally integrated drinking allows for heavy consumption without heavy trouble following in its wake." Integrated drinking is that which occurs as part of other important activities such as meals, festivals and religious rites when other people are present, he said.

Blum noted that in the United States, Italian, Greek and Jewish families introduce their children to wine and other mild beverages early in life as part of family dining or religious rituals.

On the other hand Irish and New England offspring began drinking later in adolescence and more often use hard liquor and drink outside the home, he said. Generally, Irish Catholics drink more than Protestants, and Jews drink least of the three, Blum contended.

The presumption, he said, is that "one should teach people how to drink. That means that either beginning in childhood in the family setting—which means a cohesive family must exist—or later in life as an adult, people must be taught to drink just before or during meals, to prefer the blood level low-peak, slow-acting beverages."

Blum concluded that the largest proportions of drinkers are among males, younger persons in their 20s and 30s and among people of higher social and economic status.

Regionally, New England and the Middle Atlantic states have the highest proportion of drinkers; the east South-Central region the lowest, he said.

Among religions, Jews, Episcopalians, Catholics and Lutherans drink more than Baptists and other antialcohol groups, his study noted.

But in contrast to these normal drinkers, most heavy drinkers are among the lower socioeconomic groups, especially among older men, and in particular those of Puerto Rican or Latin extraction, Negroes and Protestants not affiliated with churches.

The study shows also that when males have begun drinking early outside the family, have been separated from one or both parents as children, have been active Catholics or, as older persons, Protestant Fundamentalists, "one or more out of every three such persons runs the risk of being a heavy drinker."

Blum reported also the results of a 30-year study of a group of normal public school children. It showed that those who became problem drinkers as adults also became aggressive, attention seeking, socially extroverted, resentful of authority, and lacking in feeling for others.

As children they have indifferent mothers and live in families lacking warmth and understanding, the study said.

At the other extreme, "abstainers were lacking in social poise, the males were more feminine, and they were rigid and self-righteous," Blum noted.

He added that "moderate drinkers, compared either to problem drinkers or to abstainers, were better adjusted children, adolescents and adults."

Another report prepared by David J. Pittman, a sociology professor at Washington University in St. Louis, said "excessive drinking of alcoholic beverages is a significant fact in the commission of crimes."

The Pittman study said the closest relationship between drunkenness and criminal behavior involves assaults. The relationship is "especially high for lower-class Negroes and whites," it said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A campaign waged by the National Safety Council aims at putting bright Slow Moving Vehicle Emblems on all 12 million farm, road building, and other vehicles that normally travel the highways at less than 25 m.p.h. The SMV Emblem is a triangle that combines reflective and fluorescent materials, making it highly visible both day and night.

* * *

There is no organization doing more to reduce highway accidents than the state highway patrol.

It is no fault of the patrol that their efforts are inadequate.

Until motorists adopt safe driving habits, are thoroughly educated in how to drive safely under all conditions and adopt an attitude of brotherhood while behind the wheel, the carnage and awesome property damage will continue to rise.

But no organization is infallible.

It may be that Robert A. Dickey, personnel manager of the Mississippi Lime Company at Ste. Genevieve, has a valid point in requesting that the state legislature begin an investigation of what he calls irregularities in the patrol.

A former patrolman himself, Dickey lost his daughter, Roberta Lea Dickey, in a highway accident. She was killed in a car-truck collision Jan. 19 in Ste. Genevieve county.

Dickey charges that the patrol's investigation of the crash was inaccurate and incomplete, that it was endorsed by a probationary officer's superiors, and accuses the patrol of harassment in his own efforts to investigate the crash.

Dickey's own account may be deficient but it has the ring of truth in it. He does not indict the patrol as a whole. He even welcomes an investigation of the accident by "conscientious officers" of the patrol. This appears to be both a lenient and fair minded approach. Dickey is content to have the patrol investigate the patrol.

Death on the highways is so frequent and so continuous that there is a danger that those who investigate them will treat them in a routine manner. The dead quickly become statistics to all except those who knew them well.

Roberta Lea Dickey will never be a statistic to her father or mother.

If there is any basis at all for Robert A. Dickey's accusations against the patrol they merit investigation. Even if there isn't, the patrol's own investigative effort would be well spent in clearing the air.

His concern should not be written off casually as behavior of a "distraught father."

Let's go one step further.

To keep the patrol operating at top efficiency why not have its performance spot checked annually in a surprise aduit by by impartial, out-of-state, professional investigators?

This should serve to keep the organization on its toes and performing as nearly perfectly as it is possible for any group of human beings. It would also be excellent public realtions.

CONGRESS AND THE RAILROADS

House Speaker John W. McCormack (D Mass.) says a resolution (H J Res 559) providing for the settlement of the dispute between the railroads and six shop craft unions will reach the floor by Monday (June 12). That would leave just one week to speed the measure to passage by June 19, the already postponed strike deadline.

Time is running out again in the railroad dispute. The Senate Labor Committee may reach a vote on the administration measure by June 10, but the parallel measure in the House is having a rougher trip. The truth is that representatives on both sides of the aisle are weary of the Johnson formula for the rail dispute.

The administration wants an enforced outside settlement if the unions and management fail to resolve their differences in 90 days. The administration calls this "extended collective bargaining with mediation to finality." Labor calls it plain old compulsory arbitration and wants no part of it.

If Congress turns down the Presidential plan, it may provide for government seizure of the roads. Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R N.Y.) already has introduced seizure amendments, and labor of course would prefer seizure to the Johnson formula.

Or Congress could just do nothing, as Rep. Harley O. Staggers (D Va.) chairman of the House Commerce Committee, has explained. The unions have offered to move vital materials even if a strike were called.

The President on April 10 said that a nationwide rail strike would do "incalculable" damage by snarling passenger traffic and shipment of domestic goods and defense materials for the war in Viet Nam. Some 40 per cent of the total freight shipped by the Defense Department, he asserted, is moved by rail. A strike would impede the movement of such necessary materials as ammunition, jet fuel, strategic missiles, and weapons.

Whether it would be feasible for the unions to permit the movement of only war materials is a real question. And it is unlikely in any event that the carriers would consent to operation on such a half-a-loaf basis.

When the President asked for an extension of the strike deadline on April 28 several senators, led by Sen. Javits, voiced their disapproval of having to enact emergency labor legislation instead of having a general law revision providing a more permanent solution to such threats. The President had promised such legislation in his 1966 State of the Union Message. He did not repeat the promise this year.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Transportation Alan S. Boyd in a joint statement of April 23 had said: "The ugly fact is that collective bargaining has fallen flat on its face. The country is on the verge of a nationwide railroad strike. It is a shame for democracy to be put on trial over so small a disagreement."

The six unions represent 137,000 workers. The issues are basically, though not entirely, bread-and-butter. Some 65 per cent of railroad workers have accepted a 5 per cent wage rise which the shop craft unions consistently have rejected.

The Wirtz-Boyd statement holds as true as it did a month and a half ago. Nothing has changed materially except that a weary public has grown even more apathetic and is inclined to wish a plague on both houses.

THE MOST VALUABLE

The more local a newspaper is, the more it means to a community.

This generalization is illustrated by the recent failure of the New York Times to maintain a Pacific coast edition, with the center of publication in Los Angeles.

Nearly everyone agrees that the New York Times is a great newspaper. But the Times could not succeed where other newspapers were in greater demand.

In spite of its prestige, the Times made no inroad into the demand for local newspapers.

Local advertising, then, remained in local newspapers. Advertising inevitably follows the greatest concentration of paid circulation. The retailer knows that his soundest promotion investment is advertising in a publication read most extensively by people who live within the vicinity of his store.

In some cases the best read publication is a suburban weekly or daily; in some cases it is a county seat newspaper; for a huge department store it may be the nearest metropolitan daily. In every case the newspaper which gets the bulk of retail advertising investment is one which gives emphasis to local news and community problems.

Why any girl should marry a man to reform him is beyond me. If his mother failed, so will she.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If your snoring keeps your wife awake, it may be simply because you're too fat. Other causes of snoring as reported by the American Medical Association: allergies, too much smoking, sinus condition, and general poor health.

Unless men learn how to live longer, it's estimated there'll be 10 million U.S. widows by the end of 1975, but only one-fifth that many widowers. On the average, a 20-year-old girl who marries a 22-year-old man will outlive her husband by eight years.

Tiny Israel, which has a population of only 2,650,000, is one of the most conglomerate countries on earth. In the last 19 years it has drawn a million migrants from nearly 100 other lands.

Scientists say 12,000 people a day die of starvation or malnutrition disease throughout the world—but the number of people alive on the earth is increasing by 7,000 an hour.

Quotable notables: "Education is the ability to listen to almost anything without losing your temper or your self-confidence."— Robert Frost.

Folklore: If you see a falling star and say "money" three times before it disappears, you'll become wealthy. Touching second base every time he comes on and off the field will bring good luck to a baseball player. A mixture of ground beans and bedbugs—ugh!— will cure chills or fever. Cage a robin in your home and you'll have bad luck.

U.S. farming methods are so efficient that food production has doubled since the end of World War II, although the area of tilled land has declined by about 60 million acres.

Women don't have to be behind the wheel to cause traffic accidents. Investigating 96 drivers involved in mishaps, a Michigan psychiatrist found 20 per cent had been emotionally disturbed just prior to the crashes. Most of the drivers, he said, "had had violent quarrels, for the most part with women."

Worth remembering: "Flattery is something nice someone tells you about yourself that you wish was true."

There's such an acute shortage of nurses— of the 815,000 registered, only 283,000 are professionally active— that efforts are being made to get more men to enter the field. At present only 1.8 per cent of student nurses are male.

American babies are growing faster. A year-old infant today is 7 per cent taller and from 12 to 15 per cent heavier than his counterpart in the 19th century.

Dinosaurs laid the biggest of all eggs— some larger than a football. An ostrich lays an egg about the size of a softball.

It was Wilson Mizner who observed, "The gent who wakes up and finds himself a success hasn't been asleep."

PRACTICING CAPITALISTS

Regular readers of this space will not be surprised to find us saluting the capitalist system. But the statistics on one group of practicing capitalists may come as a surprise -- as it did to us.

We're talking about the teenagers who deliver newspapers. They're practicing capitalists, who learn quickly the fundamentals of American captalism.

As a rule this capitalist is in business for himself. He buys his product at wholesale, sells it at retail. He makes his own deliverires and collections. He learns simple bookkeeping. And, he gets a practical course in salesmanship.

He learns quickly that it is necessary to have a good product for which he can develop and expand a demand. He learnes that his delivery service is the "place utility" between publisher and customer for which he is entitled to make a charge. He learns about human nature, too, and how to mollify the occasional unreasonable customer. And he learns that his earnings are dependent upon the efforts, mental and physical, which he devotes to his business.

There develops in the newspaperboy a sense of responsibility that follows him through life. He learns punctuality and reliability. He learns that he cannot shirk his job because the weather is bad or because he is not feeling his best. He realizes that his efforts can generate the earnings that will supplement what hs parents can provide, and may determine whether or not he gets a college education. Conscious of these simple facts, there is no reason for him to look for hand-outs or to seek a subsidy. And that is a characteristic which usually will follow him through life.

All this comes to mind because The Register, in Santa Ana, California published an estimate that there are 70,000 newspaperboys in California, and that those capitalists earn some $20 million a year.

On a national basis, this is equivalent to some 800,000 young merchants who are earning about $230 million a year, which is probably more than the total national product of some of the newest members of the United Nations.

America is a great country, and these practicing capitalists help make it so, today -- and more importantly, tomorrow.

Everyone in the room stiffened at the camerman's audacity, the Catholic Digest reports, but Pope John smiled and offered to put on his red cape. Pope Paul now always wears his ermine-fringed red cape in front of the cameras.

"Now," asked the fairy, "is there another wish you would like granted?"

"Oh, yes, I would like you to turn my cat into a handsome young man."

Turning to the cat, the fairy waved the wand, and in its place stood a fine looking youth. He looked sadly at the girl and sighed, "Now aren't you sorry you took me to the vet?"

If some readers smile and others sneer when I report an occasional home menu, I don't blame them.

Until recent years I dined often at famous restaurants and, since I insist on being specific, I mentioned the name and address of the restaurant, the items consumed, and the price. Why? Because a generalization is meaningless.

Now that I eat at home, I continue to be specific. When I report a dinner I insist that the items be available to anyone who is interested. So I mentioned brands - Strouffer's, Swanson's, Birds-Eye, Pepperidge, Snow Crop.

A respected reader now tells me that I ought to eat fresh fruit and vegetables instead of canned and cooked stuff. Maybe so, but home-grown corn and home-cooked ravioli are much too variable in quality and taste.

TAX GROUP URGES FEWER HOLIDAYS

The California Taxpayers' Association s advocating a reduction in the number of paid vacation days of state workers to correspond with those granted by business and industry.

The state workers now average in excess of 12 holidays a year. These are Christmas, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Admission Day, Veteran's Day, Lincol's Birthday, Columbus Day, Washington's Birthday, from noon to 3 PM on Good Friday and primary and general election days.

The most recent survey of industries and businesses the Association reports, shows almost 85 per cent provide 7 or 8 holidays for employees. The most recent survey by the League of California Cities show 57 per cent observed fewer holidays than the state does.

The recent appeal by Governor Reagan for state employees to forego holidays was not successful.

If a saving is to be realized for the taxpayer, Cal-Tax stressed the decrease in holidays must be provided by the legislature.

H.L. Hunt Says

CONFESSION OF CRIME

Many far-reaching changes in the rules of criminal evidence in this country have been made during recent years -- not by the enactment of laws but through decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court. One of the most drastic of these changes resulted from a court ruling that a voluntary confession by a suspected criminal cannot be used against him when he is brought to trial.

This is a wild distortion of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, which provides that no man "shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." A majority of the Supreme Court has ruled that any police interrogation of a suspected criminal which elicits a confession of crime is the same as compelling the suspect to be a witness against himself. This ruling, as a dissenting Justice declared, "unjustifiably fetters legitimate police investigation." So it does, but the Supreme Court majority has shown repeatedly that it is less concerned with society's welfare than it is in imposing on the country its own ideas of how the suspected criminal shall be protected. Meanwhile, crimes of violence are increasing at a rate about four times as fast as the growth of population.

Sixteen U.S. Senators have introduced a joint resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to prohibit the Supreme Court or any lesser court from throwing out a conviction based on a voluntary confession. It is to be hoped the proposed amendment will be promptly approved by Congress and submitted to the states. The necessity for curbing the Supreme Court daily grows more imperative. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

THE LINE-UP FOR WAR

A penetrating prediction of things to come was written from Israel by Drew Pearson in a series of columns during January, 1966. In those columns Pearson gave the line-up of overwhelming Arab strength vs. Israeli armed strength but predicted that "as in the battle of David and Goliath, the agility, determination, and indomitable spirit of the Jewish people"... will permit Israel to survive.

Pearson interviewed Israeli Chief of Staff Gen. Isaac Rabin who described the blitz tactics Israel probably would use in case of war. These were used almost exactly last week.

WASHINGTON -- With the long-delayed debate on censuring Sen. Tom Dodd opening tomorrow (June 13), the senator from Connecticut more than ever is using anti-communism as his defense. His objective is to scare wavering senators into voting for him for fear they may be criticized at home as being pro-communist.

This is a tactic which the silver - haired senator has frequently used in the past. Dodd has always been able to see a communist plot in unfavorable publicity, no matter how trivial. For instance, the Insider's Newsletter reported Oct. 25, 1965, that Dodd had flunked his bar exam and that his political friends had the rules changed to get him admitted to the Connecticut bar.

The item found its way to Dodd's office on Nov. 2. Suspecting the worst, his former trostkyite assistant, David Martin, dashed off this memo:

"The paragraph in question is so maliciously irrelevant that it is ed to believe it was not mo ed. My personal hunch is that the apparatus is trotting out its guns in preparation for a sustained campaign of character assassination."

Dodd scrawled across the bottom of the memo instructions to Martin, who was his personal chief-of-staff on the senate internal security subcommittee.

"David," he wrote, "immediately check on this outfit. Find out who they are -- carefully and thoroughly."

Investigation showed that the Insider's Newsletter was published by Cowles Publications, which puts out Look Magazine, the Des Moines Register and Tribune, The Minneapolis Star and The Tribune, The Suffolk, L. I., Sun, the Lakeland, Fla., Ledger, and owns several TV stations.

PROBING SCHOOL TEACHERS

On another occasion, a lecturer at Windham high school in Willimantic, Conn., made some comments mildly critical of Dodd. Later in the afternoon of Sept. 28, 1962, the senator received a phone call from his sister, Mrs. Mary Dwyer, reporting what had been said.

Angrily, Dodd buzzed his secretary, Mrs. Marjorie Carpenter, and told her to get the school's principal on the phone. With Mrs. Carpenter still on the line, the senator gave principal H. Chester Nelson a merciless tongue lashing for 10 minutes.

Then Dodd called in Martin and ordered him to run an investigation of the offending speaker. The lecturer turned out to be a Hungarian freedom fighter with anti-communist credentials as good as Dodd's.

There was also the time the senator's son, Tom Jr., brought home a "D" in a course at Georgetown University. The irate father, sensing something un-American about the low mark, ordered the professor investigated. The finding was that Tom Jr. had not been doing his homework.

GOP POVERTY BATTLE

The battle over anti - poverty starts this week in a humdrum education and labor committee room of the house of representatives. The battle will be waged on one hand by Rep. Albert Quie of Dennison, Minn., and Rep. Charlie Goodell of Jamestown, N.Y., both Republicans; on the other, Sargent Shriver, John F. Kennedy's brother-in-law who chalked up such a fine record with the peace corps that he dispelled any criticism of nepotism.

Albert Quie is a bright young junior Chamber of Commerce product, recipient of many home-town awards, who fought hard to gut aid-to -public schools but was defeated. His strategy of attack against anti-poverty is to support all of the program but try to junk the administrator and his assistants. He wants to move anti-poverty to various federal and local agencies, claiming this would eliminate "a bureaucracy of 91,000."

Only trouble is, Quie's arithmetic is whacky. In the 91,000 bureaucrats he wants to cut out, he includes the 35,500 doctors, nurses, and other professionals who are working part-time in local neighborhood centers; also the 41,000 poor people who are working in the program, and the 7,000 employed by Westinghouse, RCA, IBM and other private contractors to operate Job Corps centers.

There just aren't 91,000 bureaucrats to be cut. In fact, there are only 2,600 people running the anti - poverty program, both in Washington and all regional offices.

Quie has given his substitute for the anti - poverty program the Madison Avenue name of "Opportunity Crusade," and it will probably attract some converts. But it will not attract some of the biggest businessmen in the nation, now vigorously supporting the present program, nor a powerful southerner, Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, who voted against anti - poverty before.

In a recent speech in Little Rock, Mills, who is chairman of the tax-writing ways and means committee, said: "The strategy against poverty is to move people away from welfare into tax-producing employment... the cost of welfare, unless something is done, will double by 1972. We are trying to develop alternatives to help get these people off the welfare rolls."

It will be interesting to see who wins the debate, Junior Chamber of Commerce Quie or big business and the Johnson administration.

A FALCON NOT A HAWK

After Rep. Roman Pucinski, D-Ill., a defender of Johnson's policies in Vietnam, made a Chicago speech proposing that we stop bombing North Vietnam and withdraw our troops to "freedom santuaries" in the south, a newsman phoned him to inquire:

"I always thought you were a supporter of the President, a hawk, so to speak. Now are you changing into a dove?"

"Not exactly," replied Pucinski, "I'm now a Falcon, which is a noble hawk and considered more courageous."

PUSHBUTTON INTEGRATION

Gov't. Automates Its Drive For Minorities By Launching Computerized Pincer Offensive

Washington, D.C.: -- Now the federal government is developing push - button integration. It's computerizing its crusade.

In a few months, some anonymous statistician deep in the capital labyrinth will answer an intercom and make a note of his chief's wish to know just which employers in a certain field have not hired sufficient numbers of Negroes, Spanish-speaking citizens and American Indians. The technician will hit a button or telephone a Midwest city sub-headquarters of the Bureau of the Census in which is a grand computer. In its memory box will be millions of items on magnetic tape. The answer will be flashed back in a few seconds.

For in that computer will rest the intimate details of the hiring practices and personnel policies of hundreds of thousands of American employers: the racial components; the status of each racial group in the "mix"; the number in management; in policy - making echelons and in menial labor.

Much of this already is on tape though the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission still has a long way to go to record the policies of America's businessmen big or small. At best, the E.E.O.C., once headed by Franklin Roosevelt Jr. and now by a more professional chap, Steve Shulman, now can only handpick from among some tens of thousands of forms filed by firms in the past year.

Actually the government is developing a computerized pincer movement. While the intimate details of corporate hiring policies are being punched out on the Bureau of the Census feedback mechanism, another computer is being fed at the University of Pittsburgh. Into that memory box are going thousands of E.E.O.C. decisions, mediations, regulations, policy statements by Shulman and his fellow commissioners, opinions of the general counsel and regulations piled up in the past 22 months of E.E.O.C. turbulent life.

This will contain the drive for equality of the sexes as well as the intensity of integration. Thus, in a short while, Shulman or Labor Secretary Wirtz or someone over in the federal contract compliance division will be able to push some buttons, learn just what some coast-to-coast corporation has done recently -- especially in the construction field -- and what powers there are to needle it into action.

This electronic brain system will ease the drain on the men who are flying the circuit in the new city-by-city clampdown on contractors and other business handling any funds which have a penny of federal money. The jet planes are simply too slow. The federal enforcement people have been able to get around to few communities -- some of them in Northeast Ohio and as far west as the San Francisco Bay area. In a comparatively few federally assisted Ohio projects alone, some $44 million worth of such construction has or soon will be affected by government enforcement decisions.

The electronic pincers will be used to put muscle on what the E.E.O.C. people call "the arm of persuasion." Presumably, the computers will be used for lightning like feedbacks on complaints coming in from 11 regional offices -- stretching from the newest in this capital to Albuquerque to Los Angeles.

The pincer is both tactical and strategic, depending on what the government wants most at the moment. And right now the big drive is in the building and construction multibillion dollar area.

"We have a program oriented to the higher paid trades," says one top federal enforcement official who has been jetting across the land. "We're aiming at getting minority workers into jobs as electricians, mechanics, operating engineers, machine metal workers, sheet metal workers and the pipe trades. That's where you don't find the Negroes. We find them in the lower paid 'trowel and wet trades' mainly with the exception of some carpenters. But we have to spot-check the country now because we cannot, with our present facilities, sweep the whole nation."

Some employers' groups are irritated by being electronic data - processed not only because it puts their executive suite policies on a tape for anyone near a button who wants to punch it -- but also because the unions have not yet gone on the magnetic tape.

The employers can be processed because they already got a long questionnaire called form E.E.O.1 and dispatched their data. But there still is no form for the unions who supply the manpower to the companies. And there are some 7,000 apprentice programs and 50,000 local unions involved. They may not get a form for months. There must first be a public hearing. And that's scheduled for June 20. If this stretches out, the unions may not get their forms -- inquiries on the number of Negroes, Spanish - speaking citizens, Indians, etc., in their membership -- until '68.

Some employers groups are saying there now is an electronic gap -- and are preparing for the battle of the computers.

In our parish our pastor was trying hard to organize a choir. After a few weeks of dubious response, he made this announcement at Sunday Mass:

"Everybody in the parish is willing to have a choir. Seven are willing to sing in it. The rest are willing to let them."

In our parish Sister Marlene was making the Old Testament stories come alive for the 2nd graders. Timmy listened wide-eyed as she concluded the story of the fate of the wicked city of Sodom. "Lot's wife looked back and turned into--" Sister paused dramatically "--a pillar of salt!"

"Sister," Timmy said, waving his mand. "My mom did the same thing. She was driving me to school and she looked back and she turned into a telephone pole!"

APPETIZERS

As the name applies, appetizers are appetite-teasers. Their main function is not to satisfy hunger, but to whet the appetite.

When planning appetizers, keep in mind the meal that is to follow. If the dinner is to be rich and heavy, avoid appetizers that are rich and filling. Choose crisp, fresh ones such as raw vegetables with a sour cream dunk. A light meal calls for more filling appetizers.

Be sure that those appetizers that are to be served cold are crisp and cold, not lukewarm, melted, or wilted. Hot appetizers should be served piping hot.

CHEESE DIP

2 pounds processed cheese
1 can tomatoes with chili peppers

Combine ingredients, place over low heat until cheese melts. Serve hot or cold with chips. Makes about 2 cups.

CUCUMBER DIP

1 8-ounce package cream cheese
1/4 -1/2 cup unpeeled cucumber, shredded and drained
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Dash garlic salt

Combine cream cheese and cucumber, blend until smooth. Add Worcestershire sauce and garlic salt, mix well. Serve with chips.

SHRIMP DIP

1 can frozen shrimp soup
1 small package cream cheese
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon hot sauce
1/4 cup mayonnaise

Beat shrimp with electric mixer set at high speed until it is shredded. Add remaining ingredients and mix until smooth. Add more mayonnaise if mixture is not moist enough. Serve chilled as a dip or sandwich spread.

CHEESE LOG

1 large package cream cheese
1 jar old English cheese
1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup nuts, chopped or 1 cup parsley, minced

Combine cheeses, garlic salt and Worcestershire sauce with a fork until well blended. Shape cheese mixture into roll or ball, roll in nuts or parsley. Refrigerate.

It is now official, and you patients have been right all along.

Doctors do indeed make something besides diagnoses and house calls. They make a good buck at their trade.

Their business is so healthy, in fact, that they make more money on the average than bank presidents.

But bank presidents, as economists have suspected, make considerably more than shoeshine boys.

All this, and more, is revealed in a survey by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Inasmuch as there is scarcely anything more fascinating than poking a nose into someone else's business or bankbook, it is interesting to learn that doctors head a list of 321 occupations by earning an average annual income of $14,561.

This may not be as much as you have suspected your doctor makes, even on the average. But it's almost $2,000 more than the average yearly income of bankers and financiers, who are in second place with $12,757.

Lawyers are third with $10,587.

It is perhaps indicative of something or other that clergymen, with an average of 17.1 years of education, do somewhat better financially than bartenders, but not as well as truck drivers.

The clergymen earn an average of $4,008 a year to rank 245th, while the truck drivers make $4,188 and the bartenders $3,740. But bartenders meet such interesting people.

As long as we're snooping, we may as well know that airline pilots average $10,000 a year, college presidents, $9,704, funeral directors and embalmers $5,804, veterinarians $8,882, and bootblacks $847.

And while the survey didn't say so, an important fact to you, the reader, it that no matter how much you make compared with all these other people, it isn't enough.

And you don't need a survey to tell you so. Right?

The real qualities of leadership are found in those who are willing to sacrifice for the sake of objectives great enough to demand their whole-hearted allegiance. Simply holding a position of leadership does not make a man a leader. If you would be a real leader you must endure loneliness . . . you must endure weariness. Leadership requires vision. A real leader ought to be able to foresee what his policies will do to the next generation. Vision must have hope and optimism in it.

During a recent physiology class the instructor was lecturing on the bones of the human body. It came time for the identification of certain bones and the instructor dragged out a large cardboard box containing an assortment of various human bones.

We would study one for a while, identify it and pass it on. Finally a very large, flat hip bone reached me. On it had been written some very small words which I managed to decipher: "If you can read this, you're getting fresh!"

CHANGE OF VIEW

I saw a show 30 years ago,
I shed o'er it my youthful tears,
That a girl, so charming, so bright and young,
Could love a dullard of middle years!

Last night that show I saw rerun,
I wept again and showed my rage;
That a man so charming, bright and kind,
Could love a dullard - half his age!

SUPER SATURATED

I'm tired of Georgy Girls and Alfie Boys,
Beatle-mania degenerated joys,
And mod, mini-skirted Caraby Street--
If it isn't British it isn't neat.
I've seen and heard it all, and I've surmised
That everything is over - Anglicized:
Film, music, art, culture, food and dress,
TV series, and all that long hair mess.

Doctors Say Hormones Make Skin Look Younger Safely

NEW YORK (Special)—A leading dermatologist and his assistants have conducted a "half-woman" test that proves conclusively estrogenic hormones make skin look younger, smooth dry-skin wrinkles, often fade "old-age" skin discolorations.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck and to one hand of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula containing no hormones was used on the other side. It was quickly apparent that the side treated with hormones looked better. At the end of the test in all but two cases, skin lines were definitely less noticeable, complexion was softer, smoother, fresher. There was no local irritation in any case; examination revealed absolutely no systemic effects. The hormones had beautified effectively and safely.

In an effort to speed up hormones' beautifying action, a trustworthy 50-year-old laboratory developed a fluid formula called HORMONEX Beauty Serum. This laboratory conducted a test on 15,000 women volunteers who were asked to use the formula for just twelve days on one side of the face and neck. An impressive percentage signified that good results were attained even in this short period.

HORMONEX Beauty Serum acts so rapidly because pure female hormones are dissolved in a combination of penetrating Sesame Oil and a patented, liquid Lanolin. Only 7 drops a day are required to treat face and neck.

If you would like to test HORMONEX Beauty Serum without risk, get a bottle at your favorite toiletry counter today, use it just twelve days. If the change is not astounding—if you are not completely satisfied, your dealer is authorized to refund purchase price without question. HORMONEX Beauty Serum is inexpensive to use. A 100-day supply costs only $3.50. Look younger quickly. See these dry-skin wrinkles smooth out, starting today! You may obtain HORMONEX Beauty Serum at:

Streak Goes To Five Games

Cardinals Take Pair

St. Louis continued its winning streak, adding victory number four and five yesterday afternoon as it swept a double header and the series from the Los Angeles Dodgers, 8-7 and 7-5.

The two consecutive losses added to the Dodgers losing string were its sixth and seventh. Los Angeles lost its three previous outings before coming into St. Louis Friday night.

Mike Shannon provided the heroics in yesterday afternoon's doubleheader, driving in the deciding run in each game.

Shannon hit a run-scoring double in the ninth inning to break a 7-7 deadlock in the first game and then singled in the fifth inning of the second game to score Orlando Cepeda with the Cards' sixth and deciding run.

Roger Maris scored the deciding run in the first game after starting the inning off with a single and added an insurance run in the second with his second homer of the series, fourth of the year in the seventh inning.

Maris connected in Saturday night's 11th inning and blasted a three-run homer giving the Cardinals a 5-2 victory. He went one for one Saturday night and collected three hits in the first game in four trips to the plate. He had a hit in three trips in the second game.

Nelson Briles won the opener in relief and Al Jackson got credit for the second victory although he needed help over the last 31-3 innings.

The Cardinals continued to slug the ball, getting 12 hits in the opener and 11 in the final. The Dodgers had 13 hits in the first game, including homers by Wes Parker and Jim Lefebrve. He hammered the Cardinal pitchers for 11 hits in the wrapup contest.

Lefebvre's smash in the ninth inning of the first game was a three-run blast as the Dodgers scored four runs in the frame for a 7-7 tie only to have the Cardinals bounce back in their half of the round to win on Shannon's hit.

The Cardinals go after its sixth straight as the Birds open a road trip in Pittsburg. Steve Carlton will be on the mound for St. Louis and Dennis Ribant for the Pirates.

Cubs Clip Mets Twice; Sox Move Into AL First

Adolfo Phillips still takes his share of lumps, but the Chicago Cubs' Panama Flash has stopped running for his life—and started hitting back.

Phillips smashed four homers Sunday, driving in eight runs and leading the suddenly ferocious Cubs to a 5-3, 18-10 doubleheader sweep over the New York Mets.

The fleet outfielder, who set Cub records of 32 stolen bases and 135 strikeouts — and was plunked 12 times by pitchers for another club mark — last season, went down for the count when he tried to steal home in the eighth inning of the opener.

But he bounced back in the nightcap, walloping three homers to vault into the National League's top five in both homers (11) and RBI (38).

While Phillips was landing Sunday punches against the Mets, Atlanta slugger Hank Aaron was on the run against San Francisco. Aaron collected four hits — including a pair of infield singles — and stole three bases before scoring the winning run from second on an infield error as the Braves edged the Giants 4-3 in 10 innings.

Cincinnati's league leaders dropped the first game of their doubleheader to Houston 7-4, then rebounded on Don Pavletich's grand slam homer for an 8-4 nightcap victory. Philadelphia buried Pittsburgh 14-1 in a single game.

Phillips, who started his power spree with a bases-empty homer in the second inning of the opener, tried to duplicate Ted Savage's steal of home in the eighth but was tagged — on the chin — by Mets catcher Bob Taylor. Adolfo lay on the ground for several minutes while the Cubs' trainer waved smelling salts under his nose.

Not long afterward, however, Phillips was back in the swing and his fans in the Wrigley Field bleachers were chanting "Ole Adolfo" again. His successive homers in the third, fifth and sixth innings accounted for seven runs.

Randy Hundley hit two homers, Ron Santo and Ernie Banks one each for the Cubs, while Ron Swoboda, Jerry Buchek, Jerry Grote and Bob Johnson connected for the Mets as the clubs tied the major league record of 11 circuits in one game.

"I'm happy when I make the fans happy," Phillips exclaimed after raising his batting average to .314 with six hits in nine trips to the plate. "I don't try to hit home runs. I just try to meet the ball."

Jim Bunning scattered eight hits while the Phillies bombed four Pittsburgh pitchers for 17. A six-run explosion in the first inning — keyed by Tony Taylor's triple and doubles by Cookie Rojas and Bunning — started the runaway.

Jim Perry provided the Minnesota Twins with relief in more ways than one and then went home in an effort to get some for himself.

Perry, suffering from a sore throat and fever, entered the second game of a doubleheader Sunday in the third inning. He left after the sixth inning and went home.

In between his arrival and departure, the veteran righthander was tough on Baltimore batters, hit a two-run homer and singled in another run as the Twins won 10-7 after losing the opener 5-2.

While the Twins and Orioles were splitting, the Chicago White Sox moved into first place in the American League by a game over Detroit. The White Sox scored 2-1 and 4-2 victories over the New York Yankees, and Detroit lost 6-4 to California.

Cleveland beat Kansas City 12-1 and 3-2 and Boston split with Washington, winning 4-3 before losing 8-7 in other AL games.

Perry, now 2-4, relieved Jim "Mudcat" Grant in the third inning with two runs in and a man on third. He gave up a run-scoring single and then got the next two men to end the inning.

Minnesota tied the game at 4-4 in the fifth when Ted Uhlaender singled and Perry hit his first homer, and won the game in the sixth with four runs.

Singles by Tony Oliva and Bob Allison and a walk to Rich Rollins loaded the bases. Then after a force out at home, Russ Nixon tripled and Perry singled.

Second game rained out in second inning. Rotary held a 9-0 lead over John Deere.

It was the usual routine of a woman customer of a little grocery store to wander about sampling the cookies, candy, and nuts from the opened boxes before placing her order.

One month she noticed a charge of $1 on her bill and demanded to know what it was for.

"That, ma'am," said the old grocer politely, "is the fee for grazing."

Rain Halts Connie Mack Opener

The scheduled opening game for the Sikeston Potlatch Forester baseball team at Dexter Saturday night was rained out.

No games will be re-scheduled in the Black River league. The Sikeston team opens the season at Home Wednesday against Fisk.

Poplar Bluff will be at Puxico for a league game tonight.

While 15,000 eagerly expectant fans of Frank Sinatra's waited for their idol to appear at the Forest Hills Music Festival in New York, the skies began to darken and thunder rumbled on the horizon. Because this was an open-air stadium, rain would cancel the performance, and Sinatra's busy schedule did not permit a performance the following night.

One woman -- evidently a Frank Sinatra fan from "bobby sox" days -- was particularly disturbed by the threatening skies, and kept expressing her fear that the concert would be rained out before Frank even began to sing.

The gentleman beside her finally couldn't take her moaning and groaning any longer. "Look, lady," he said. "Don't worry. It won't rain. Frank won't let it!"

Bill 512 Set For East-West Game Hearing Tuesday Set For July 8

JEFFERSON CITY -- "If this bill passes the Senate and is signed into law, it could seriously curtail the natural resource management of the State." This statement by Ed Stegner, Executive Secretary of the Conservation Federation of Missouri, refers to House Bill 512 which allows the legislature to set fees for hunting and fishing licenses and provides free fishing permits for those under 17 and over 64.

The bill is scheduled for hearing Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. It has passed the House.

Stegner said the proposed law would cost an estimated $320,000 and would force the Conservation Commission to increase license fees or reduce part of its natural resource program.

This comes at a time when Missouri is booming as a tourist center and recreational playground. Anything which would damage this expanding tourist industry would be extremely harmful to Missouri, Stenger said.

He said the bill does not distinguish between needy elderly people and those who could well afford to buy their fishing permits. Stegner suggested that if there is a sufficient number of needy elderly people who could not afford fishing permits, the legislature could appropriate General Revenue funds for this purpose.

Stegner said his 21,000 member organization was solidly opposed to this welfare-type legislation as it is now proposed. The Conservation Federation is a statewide independent organization composed of individuals dedicated to the wise use of Missouri's natural resources.

ATLANTA (AP) — The East, hoping to rebound from a shelling by the West in the 1966 Coaches All-America football game, is loaded with talent for the 1967 battle July 8.

Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier, the comeback quarterback at Florida, and quarterback Bob Griese of Purdue head up the East team announced Saturday.

The West was announced a week ago.

Spurrier and Griese, who probably will share quarterbacking duties, will be able to call on some of the nation's top runners in Floyd Little of Syracuse and Nick Eddy of Notre Dame.

Target for the East's passes probably will be end Gene Washington of Michigan State.

The West rolled to a 24-7 triumph last year, evening the series at 3-3.

As the hour of noon rolled around, the pilot and copilot of our SAC Jet Tanker decided to eat lunch. The young copilot was dressed as though he were over enemy territory; he had a revolver strapped to one boot and a hunting knife strapped to the other.

He picked up a can of fruit juice and took out his knife. Two quick thrusts of the knife punctured the top of the can.

Because I was new on the crew, the older, more experienced pilot turned to me and sighed, "Thank God! He usually shoots them open."

My cousin's husband had left for the military service, and her 7-year-old son received all the usual lectures about being good, taking care of his mother and all that because he was the man in the family and had to act just like his father now.

No one realized how seriously he took this advice until the first time we were all out at a restaurant and a somewhat patronizing waiter addressed him directly, "And what would you like, little fellow?"

Without even looking up from the menu, the boy replied, "Bring me a Scotch on the rocks with a splash of water."

TRANSOGRAM COMPANY PREDICTS CONTINUED GROWTH FOR 1967

Roy R. Raizen, president, Transogram Company (AMEX), New York, a leading toy and leisure products manufacturer, told stockholders attending the company's annual meeting that sales in 1967 should be approximately $21 million as compared with $18,665,631 reported in 1966. He said profits should show a "vast improvement" over the net income and special item of $240,553 or $.19 per share reported a year ago.

Mr. Raizen said the company's new PhotoMate, a sophisticated toy photo printer and enlarger designed for family use, will be available for the first time in retail stores starting in September. A second product, a dry process copier also designed for toy and family use and produced under license from the 3M Company, is scheduled to be introduced on the market early in 1968, Mr. Raizen told stockholders. Seminoles Score Court Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Seminole Indians, losers in a bloody battle more than a century ago that ended with their eviction from their Florida homeland, have scored what could be a very profitable victory in court.

A U.S. Claims Court ruled Friday the Seminoles have established their legal ownership of almost all of Florida.

The court said the Indians must be paid for 32 million acres—a decision that could cost the U.S. government about $40 million. The court's unanimous decision still could be appealed to the Supreme Court.

When the United States got Florida from Spain in 1821, the Seminoles hunted and fished over most the land. They were forced to occupy a four-million-acre reservation two years later and awarded $152,500 for the 28 million acres they lost.

The Indians rebelled when the government later tried to move them to an Oklahoma reservation. Joined by runaway Negro slaves, they battled federal troops for seven years, killing 1,500 U.S. soldiers.

No treaty ever was signed. But 3,824 Semonolies and Negroes finally were sent to Oklahoma while other Indians fled into the Florida Everglades. An estimated 1,300 Seminoles now live there.

The government argued the Indians originally owned only a small part of Florida. But the Claims Court said actual possession need not be proved to show they had rightful title to most of Florida.

John D. Rockefeller recalled, in his Random Reminiscences, that he was once whipped by his mother for "some unfortunate doings" in the village school. In the middle of his punishment he protested his innocence. "Never mind," said his mother grimly. "We have started in on this whipping, and we may as well proceed. I: will do for the next time."

THROWN SIDE-BY-SIDE by the quirk of a seating arrangement, Israel's Gideon Rafael (left) and Syria's Georges Tomeh maintain an air of indifference at the extraordinary session of the U. N. Security Council held at 4 a.m. Saturday morning. The call came shortly after reports of renewed fighting between the two neighboring countries.

Dexter Pilot Leads Attack

SAIGON (AP) -- U.S. Helicopter gunships caught a guerrilla band attempting to strip a downed Air Force bomber and killed 30 in a day-long fight to remove the bodies of the two crewmen, U.S. headquarters reported Sunday.

The B57 Canberra had smashed into a 4760-foot Nui Gia Mountain Friday, seven miles from Cam Ranh Bay on the coast. The guerrillas and the American helicopters apparently located the wreckage at about the same time Saturday.

A fight began immediately, with the guerrillas attempting to get machine guns and 500-pound bombs from the wrecked plane and the armed helipcopters trying to clear the area so U.S. and South Korean assault infantrymen could get in.

Each time troop-carrying helicopters approached, they met a hail of machine gun fire. A small infantry group and an air force demolition team finally reached the bomber late in the afternoon. The bodies of the crewmen were removed and the demolition experts blew up the plane.

The lead copter gunship was flown by Capt. David Kidd of Dexter, Mo.

At A US Army officers' club in Germany, a group of us were swapping experiences with several of our British counterparts when the subject turned to the perpetual battle of Volkswagens vs. tanks. Frequently an impatient German driver would attempt to scoot across an intersection in front of one of these 50 - ton monsters. This happened recently in the British Zone and the startled but unhurt driver was left with a Volkswagen only about six inches high from the rear seat backward. In such a situation, an American tank driver is usually more shaken than the auto driver. Not so the British. The tank driver got out, surveyed the damage, and returned to his tank for an accident report form. When he came to the space marked Damage to Other Vehicle, his calm and very British analysis was: "Tank tread marks on roof of auto."

During basic training at Parks AFB, I was assigned as flight leader over 48 other men of Flight 391. I was assigned all barracks' cleaning details, barracks' guard and KP duty, etc.

I guess I gave the guys a pretty rough time because when I returned to the barracks one night, I found this note:

Cates --
Tomorrow will be Tuesday -- if it's all right with you. Thanks.

PLUMBING CARE TIPS IN HELPFUL BOOKLET

Knowing how to shut off the water in your house can be extremely important in an emergency, to prevent damage to walls or furnishings. Shutoff valves should be tagged and instructions should be written down and kept in an accessible place.

How to locate and tag valves is just one of the dozens of tips on home plumbing in a booklet entitled "Plumbing Care & Repair." Others include how to clear clogged drains, what to do about noisy plumbing, how to extend the life of your water heater, how to replace faucet washers, how to thaw frozen pipes. The booklet also tells you what jobs should be done only by plumbing contractors. It's available for 25 cents from Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill., 60601.

AIR CONDITIONING
When you purchase your unit from your dealer, remember
WE RECOMMEND . . .
(1) 240-volt units for best results. (These require separate circuits usually)
(2) Notify us or have your dealer to, as we may need to install a new service or a larger transformer.
(3) Don't wait until the unit won't run; this may delay the work necessary to make the unit operate.
(4) Your dealer or electric contractor can always call us, so that everything can be ready when you want service.
(5) If you are thinking about air conditioning, plan now! Don't wait until the hottest day!
(6) Our job is to serve YOU. Give us a chance to do a good job.

DON'T YOU READ BEFORE YOU BUY?

Just about everybody does.
They read. They clip and save. They show to friends. They compare prices. They pin on bulletin boards. They file away. And they re-read.
Because there's no better way to study a product's color, freshness, style, beauty or price.
Is your product colorful? Edible? Marked-down? Competitive? Driveable? Or decorative?
Then put your message where ready-to-buy customers can find it. Put it in print.
Print makes sense, because print makes sales.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
June 12, 1917

The Bank of Sikeston has subscribed for $115,000 of the Liberty Bonds of Scott County. Sikeston is doing her part in this patriots matter.

Aubrey Shain, who has been night operator at the Frisco depot in Hayti, has been transferred to Matthews, where he will be station agent. This is a splendid position for so young a man.

A story that certainly created a big sensation in this city and nearby towns Tuesday and Wednesday, was that a woman had jumped into the water tank in this city and drowned herself. Painters at work on the tower discovered a note Tuesday stating that they would find the writer's body in the tank and a woman's name was signed to the note. It turned out that two of our mischievous high school boys had climbed to the tower some time ago and left the note. One of the boys has a name easily mistaken for a lady's name and he signed the note. Some of the people have refused to drink the city water since the story has been going around, but there is absolutely nothing to it but a joke.

The Prayer
From The Upper Room

From a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. (II Timothy 3:15)

PRAYER: Our Father, we pray that we may be granted the wisdom we need to guide and direct others in pathways toward Thee. Through scripture, prayer, and daily living may we influence them toward salvation; through Christ our Lord. Amen

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently in your column that you did not think it was in good taste for a person to hang notes on new furniture asking guests to keep their feet off the upholstery and their wet glasses off the teakwood tables.

What would you do about a 300-pound sister-in-law with stiletto heels who comes to visit and punches holes in your brand new hardwood floors? This happened to us during Christmas and I was sick about it. We had the floors sanded in January and refinished in February. You guessed it - Two Ton Tessie came for Easter and our floors are ruined again.

I know hardwood grows on trees, but money doesn't. I would like your opinion on how to deal with this problem. - ONE MAD RELATIVE

Dear Mad: If your 300-pound sister-in-law ruined your floors because she was doing Spanish dances you'd be justified in asking her to cut it out. But floors are for walking on and if all she does is walk on them you can't ask her to stop. Put down throw rugs when Tessie comes to visit and tell her about the problem. If she's a good egg, she'll offer to remove her shoes.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 11-year-old daughter Dee saw an ad offering a $25 reward for the return of a pet cat. Dee telephoned her friend Ruthie who had also seen the ad.

They decided to look for the cat together. Dee went to Ruthie's house. They got a rope and a piece of meat and off they went.

After some hunting they spotted the cat in the hedges near the woman's home. When the cat ran under the porch they notified the woman that her pet has been cornered. The woman was very happy and retrieved her cat with no trouble. She handed Ruthie the reward money - $25.

When they arrived at Ruthie's house her mother said, "Let's give Dee $5. After all, it was Ruthie's rope and meat that caught the cat so she should have most of the money."

Dee felt this was unfair and left empty-handed. She did not say anything, she just started to cry and came home and told me the story. A few minutes later Ruthie's mother called and asked me to send Dee back for the $5. I replied, "Let's just forget it."

My husband says I should have insisted on a fair deal - a 50-50 split. He claims that children should learn early in life not to let people take advantage of them. What do you say? - ONE WHO HATES FIGHTS

Dear One: The girls should have shared equally in the reward money. Ruthie's mother ought to be told that it's too late for the split now, but, in the interest of fairness, she should write a check to your state organization for retarded children and present it in your daughter's name.

Dear Ann Landers: Our next door neighbor has been divorced for five years. She has two children. I had heard a rumor that she is pregnant but I refused to believe it. I saw her today and she is indeed very pregnant.

What shall I say to our 14-year-old daughter when she notices? She is sure to ask how this can be. I need your help - SPEECHLESS

Dear Speechless: If your 14-year-old daughter does not know how this "can be," it's high time you explained it to her. Steer clear of moral judgments for the sake of the woman's children. This is your opportunity to demonstrate true compassion.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting - And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Five to Attend Credit Parley

Manager Thatcher Scism, Gordon Hill, Kenneth D. Williams, Scott Waters and Fred Alexander, representating the Sikeston Production Credit Association will attend the 14th annual Missouri Production Credit conference Thursday and Friday in Columbia.

"We have a rapidly changing farm economy," Scism said. "Certainly credit has been and will continue to play an increasingly important part in the farmer's total operation.

"Production credit associations in Missouri in 1966, for example, extended $196 million of credit to farmers. This important tool of credit enabled farmers to buy seed, fertilizer, insecticides, fuel, livestock, machinery and other production items."

"It is expected," Scism said, "that credit needs by farmers in the next ten years will more than double their current requirements. It is during conferences that we are better able to evaluate the credit needs of farmers in the years ahead."

FROM EFFORT TO ART

Sometimes I try to please him,
I try, I try, I try
To speak a word for Jesus
To folk who pass him by.

But I fall down exhausted;
The effort saps the strength
And leaves me cross and ugly,
Until at weary length

I turn and wait upon him
And make his will my goal;
No strain, no grind, no fretting-
His peace then floods my soul.

So sitting there in quiet
And looking on his face,
Amazed, I watch the pattern
Of life slip into place.

The things I'd set my heart on
Are done, and many more;
A loved one is converted,
Friends find a lost rapport.

For God, who made beginnings,
Has all the endings planned,
And every human detail
Is under his good hand.

So help me, Lord, like Mary,
To choose the better part.
Make of my life not effort
Or wasted zeal, but art.

Perfection, love, enjoyment,
Shine out through all Your ways.
Grant me the thrill of watching
And sharing, all my days.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE BE-BOPPED BEAUTY

When pert Peggy walked down the street, she automatically improved the vision of every normal male pedestrian she passed. Nothing, however, could improve her own eyesight which functioned at a defective level of efficiency. And, while her shapely figure was tough to miss in the daytime, Horace had no difficulty striking it in the nighttime. As she crossed a street, he be-bopped her with his automobile.

Landing on her well-cushioned derriere, Peggy sued Horace for her injuries.

"The accident was her own fault." Horace protested in court. "A girl with poor vision should know better than to go out at night. Had she been able to see, she'd have been able to get out of the way of my car and there'd been no accident."

"At the rate of speed he was going," was Peggy's answer, "not even 20-20 vision would have saved me. He came at me like he had been launched at Cape Kennedy."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the be-bopped girl to collect?

This is how the judge ruled: Peggy collected. The judge held that a person with poor eyesight may use the public streets without being guilty of carelessness. All that is required is that the person exercise the degree of care for his safety as would an ordinarily prudent person similarly afflicted under the same circumstances. And, in this case, concluded the judge in effect, Peggy saw all she was required to see under the circumstances and Horace did not.

Burial alive held no terror for the Nubians, a people of the upper Nile, who long ago walked in whole groups into large open graves and laid themselves down to be covered with earth. Their remains, brought to light by archeologists after nearly 4,000 years, tell a strange story. When a Nubian of princely rank died, a circular grave area some 100 or more feet across was enclosed with a mud-brick wall. The dead man was placed on a bed in the center, where he rested as if asleep. Leading to the pit was a broad trench, and here assembled those who were to accompany their master and protector into the Hereafter - his wives, councilors, servants and, sometimes, children. They lay down, and hundreds of workers filled trench and pit with earth, creating a great walled mound. Archelogists opening the largest graves have counted as many as 300 skeletons. Their postures - some with hands over faces, some lying in companionable embrace -- show little struggle against the suffocation they endured. As the only people ever known to have practiced self-burial, devout Nubians may have found, oddly, a relatively merciful and easy death. Llewellyn T. Jones.

Corrigan Attends Board Meeting

KANSAS CITY -- W. S. Corrigan of Sikeston participated in the 27th annual meeting of the board of trustees of Missouri Public Expenditure Survey Thursday.

The survey is a non-partisan governmental research organization with offices in Jefferson City.

A 75-year-old grandmother who had escaped from Hungary during the '56 uprising was eagerly looking forward to acquiring her United States citizenship. Because she doesn't read or write English, her family translated all the history and civics material necessary for the test. She memorized it perfectly.

After she passed the oral portion of the test, the examiner asked for a sample of her writing skill. Greatly distressed, she admitted her weakness.

"Isn't there anything you can write in English?" he asked. Her face brightened, and she wrote the one English sentence she had memorized: "Dear Milkman, please leave three bottles of milk today."

She passed.

Lathum son of Mr. and Mrs. Eber Lathum, received a commission as a second lieutenant in the Missouri Army National Guard when he graduated Saturday, June 10, from the Missouri National Guard Officer Candidate school. Lieutenant Lathum has been a candidate in the Missouri National Guard OCS for the last year. During that time he has undergone four weeks of intensive training in the field and attended twelve weekend periods of instruction. The last two weeks he hax been in training at Camp Clark, Missouri.

A rising young executive usually managed to indulge in his favorite pastime, golf, while on frequent business trips, by staying near the local golf course. Because he made a very modest salary, the young man chose his overnight accommodation carefully, shopping around for the best deal. Arriving in a large western city, he quickly located a fine golf course with several adjacent motels. At the first, he was told the room rate was a steep $25 a day. Leaving, he noticed a tray of golf balls tagged at $1 each.

At the next motel, he found the room rate a much more satisfactory $5. While registering, he said, "I'll need a couple of those golf balls," indicating a counter display. "Yes sir!" answered the clerk. "That'll be $5 for the room and $25 each for the balls."

"You must be kidding," said the young man. "Down the street they sell for only a dollar."

"Yes, sir," smiled the clerk. "But down there they've got you by the rooms!"

Free pamphlet series helps mark
THE ROAD TO CHRISTIAN UNITY
Most Christians today agree with the Ecumenical Council that "Division openly contradicts the will of Christ, scandalizes the world and damages the holy cause of preaching the Gospel to every creature."
Few, however, are clear on how Christians should proceed in finding the one fold Christ intended for all his followers.
This free pamphlet series, offered by the Knights of Columbus affords some practical and useful guidelines. It explains, for instance, how Christians must find strength and harmony in the beliefs they hold in common:
- The central place that Catholics and their separated brethren give to Christ.
- Their mutual love and reverence for Sacred Scripture.
- Their common acceptance of Baptism and the celebration of the Lord's Supper.
- The dynamic social action of all Christian denominations that is so evidently Gospel inspired.
The literature also defines the Catholic Church's attitude toward her separated brethren. It explains how divisiveness in the past was caused by faults on both sides . . . and how each side must now accept its share of blame for the other . . . how every Christian must see in the face of the other a brother's face.
ECUMENISM EXPLAINED
This free pamphlet series combines two booklets; one that presents the official decree of the Catholic Church on ecumenism and another that offers a commentary on the meaning of the decree. Both explain clearly the attitude Catholics are to take toward other Christians in the effort to effect cooperation between church bodies. This series is invaluable to all who seek the harmony and unified strength Christendom once knew.

Waiting for my case to be tried in Manhattan Traffic Court, I heard the man ahead of me plead guilty, with extenuating circumstances, to parking his car in a restricted area.

"Your Honor," he explained, "when I pulled into this parking place, I asked the policeman standing nearby if it was all right. He said okay. But when I came back I found a ticket on the car."

The judge asked, "Do you think you would recognize this officer if you saw him again?"

"I think I would," the man answered.

"Well," replied the judge, "the next time you see him, tell him he owes you five dollars."

COINCIDENCE SERIES

SKARA, Sweden AP — Two Swedish drivers collided near here and found: Both cars were the same make, built in the same year.

Both were red and had been purchased from the same car dealer.

Both drivers were the same age, worked in the same factory and lived in the same town, Haellekis.

Both drivers were uninjured and each car suffered the same damage -- both fenders were buckled and both headlights were smashed.

And finally both cars were insured in the same firm.

Overcome by all these likenesses, the drivers adjourned for a coffee, had a good talk and decided they might as well be good friends, too.

If you're among the growing number of families who are planning a backyard swimming pool this year, don't forget to include heating equipment, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau advises. It will enable you to use your pool earlier in the spring and later in the fall, nearly doubling the swimming season.

Bull Meets Match in Truck Load of Hogs

FRUITLAND, Mo. (AP)— An angus bull harassed motorists on U.S. 61 Friday night, but finally met his match in a tractor-trailer loaded with hogs bound for market.

The bull was killed along with one hog.

The driver of the truck was not seriously injured. The force of the collision overturned the truck, opening a hole in the roof of the trailer and 145 hogs escaped. The hogs were later rounded up by Cape Girardeau County Sheriff's Officers and Highway Patrolmen.

ALL NUMBER CALLING is coming

All Number Calling (ANC) simply means that telephone numbers consist of seven numerals instead of two letters and five numerals. About three-fourths of the nation's telephones now have this numbering system.

The change to ANC is beginning in Sikeston and Morehouse. Whenever anyone in these communities has a new phone installed, moves to a new address or changes his telephone number, we'll give him one of the new all-numeral numbers.

The change to ANC isn't really much of a change. For example, if your old number was KLondike 5-2368, your new one is 555-2368. Technically, it isn't a new number. It's your same old number expressed a different way. And you'll dial it exactly as you always have. Look at your dial—5 is the same as K and L. So, for most practical purposes, there's no change at all.

Most of these phone numbers will stay the same for the present. However, all will have this new type of number with the December, 1967, directory issue.

Why the change? The reason we're eliminating central office names is simple. On a nationwide basis, we're running out of suitable, easy-to-pronounce-and-understand names. All Number Calling gives us about 50 percent more usable telephone numbers. We need these numbers to keep up with the demand for new service.

All-numeral numbers really aren't difficult when you get used to them. For instance, we think of a number such as 555-2368 in three parts like this: 555 (pause), 23 (pause), 68. It's much easier to say and to remember that way.

There are several things you'll like about All Number Calling. Confusion between letters and figures (such as I and one, O and zero) and between central office names (such as HUbbard and HObart) will be eliminated. This means fewer pesky "wrong numbers" —something we can all do without.

Also, your dialing will be faster and easier, with only numbers to look for on the dial.

While the changeover to All Number Calling is not until December, we thought you'd like to know now that it's on the way. If you have any questions about the change, just call your telephone business office.

You can't always see the stars and stripes on the homes and apartments in your neighborhood, but they're there just the same.

A big percentage of American families own U.S. Savings Bonds. Many of these star-spangled families have been buying Bonds since they were first issued 25 years ago.

Altogether, Uncle Sam has sold $150 billion in E and H Bonds. About $100 billion of these have been cashed in for college, retirement, new furniture, emergencies, and down payments for those homes.

Americans still own a nest egg of nearly $50 billion in Bonds for tomorrow's needs. And as the nest egg grows, Uncle Sam uses the dollars to help support our fighting men in Vietnam—and help keep our economy strong.

Israel Denies Advancing Of Tanks Since Cease-Fire

Flood Threat Mounts

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A tornado damaged several homes in Greater Kanas City early today and surging floodwaters forced 15 or more families out of their homes.

A tornado dipped into Kansas City North near 52nd St. and Randolph and demolished one house and damaged four others and a church. No deaths or serious injuries resulted.

Overflowing water temporarily closed several roads in the Kansas City and adjoining eastern Kansas areas. Creeks raged and subsided quickly. The weather bureau kept close watch for possible serious flooding on tributaries of major rivers in northeastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri.

Residents of low-lying areas of Smithville, north of Kansas City, moved to higher ground as waters from the Little Platte River once again threatened that town.

Lightning and damaging winds disrupted electric service for short periods in more than 40 neighborhoods in the Kansas City metropolitan area.

Forecasts indicated there will be no letup in the showers and thunderstorms that have soaked much of western Missouri and eastern Kansas the past week.

Lester C. Gritz, 63, of Neodesha, Kan., drowned early Sunday when high water swept his pickup truck off a rural road southwest of Independence, Kan.

A jittery public reported seeing dozens of tornadoes Sunday, but only a few twisters were confirmed as hitting the ground.

One dipped into a residential area in the north part of Kansas City at 1:15 a.m., demolishing two houses, unroofing three others and damaging a church. One man suffered a minor injury.

Hail wiped out nearly-ripened wheat and other crops in some areas.

Up to eight inches of rain fell in Southeastern Kansas Saturday night.

Water flowed over roads in the Greater Kansas City area and west of there in eastern Kansas. Several roads were closed temporarily, including U.S. 24 between Lawrence and Topeka which was impassable in several places.

Walker Libel Case Reversed

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Supreme Court threw out today a $500,000 libel judgment won by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker against The Associated Press.

All nine judges voted to set aside the judgment, won by Walker in a Fort Worth, Tex., state court in 1964. They entered four separate opinions to state their views.

In the controlling opinion, Justice John M. Harlan said there wasn't "the slightest hint of a severe departure from accepted publishing standards" in the way The Associated Press reported Walker's activities at the University of Mississippi campus at Oxford in 1962.

"We therefore conclude that Gen. Walker should not be entitled to damages from The Associated Press."

Riots swept the Mississippi campus the night of Sept. 30, occasioned by the admission of a Negro, James Meredith, into the university. The AP reported Oct. 2 and 3 that Walker had "assumed command of the crowd" and had "led a charge of students against federal marshals."

Harlan said there was no evidence of "personal prejudice or incompetency" on the part of the AP's reporter, Van Savell, or The Associated Press.

Harlan noted that Walker had "denied categorically taking part in any charge against the federal marshals." However, Harlan also noted that Savell "was actually present during the events described and had reported them almost immediately to The Associated Press office in Atlanta."

The justice said "a discrepancy" was shown between an oral account given the office and a later written dispatch. But he said it related solely to whether Walker had spoken to a group of students on campus "before or after approaching the marshals."

Harlan referred to this as a "minor discrepancy" and said: "Negligence, it may have been; malice, it was not."

The nub of Harlan's opinion was that The Associated Press exercised a proper "degree of care" in its dispatches.

Search for Boys Fails Again

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — The search for three boys missing in Hannibal since May 10 apparently ended Sunday after the boys' parents said they were convinced the youths were not in Murphy's Cave.

Rescue workers dug through a recently discovered second level in the cave over the weekend and found no clues in the search for Billy, 11, and Joel Hoag, 13, and Edwin Craig Dowell, 14. The boys were last seen in the area of the cave.

Aqaba Shipping Resumes

By The Associated Press

Israel has denied Syrian charges that its tanks invaded deeper into Syria after a cease-fire but says it intends to keep some of the land it won from Syria, Egypt and Jordan in the six-day Middle East War.

Cheering crowds in the Israeli port of Elath Sunday night greeted the first Israeli freighter to enter the Gulf of Aqaba since Egypt's proclaimed blockade of the gulf led the Middle East to the brink of war.

The Jewish nation had assured reopening of the gulf by capturing Sharm el Sheikh, from which Egyptians guns overlooked the gulf entrance at the Strait of Tiran.

An Israeli army spokesman said the war against the Arabs killed 679 Israeli soldiers and wounded 2,563. Jordan has announced that 15,000 Jordanians were killed. Egypt and Syria have not announced any casualty figures.

Estimates of the number of prisoners taken by Israel, mostly Egyptians, range from 13,000 to 15,000. They still are being counted.

The U. N. Security Council, meeting past 2:30 a.m. for the second straight day, adopted a new resolution demanding that Israel and Syria avoid any forward movement of troops and withdraw any units that have crossed cease-fire lines established Saturday.

Syria said Israel moved armored units forward Sunday. Israel said its tank movements were entirely behind the cease-fire lines. U.N. truce observers confirmed movement of tanks in the area.

Israeli troops now occupy Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, the biblical cities in Jordan west of the Jordan river and a 25-mile Syrian front which extends as deep as 15 miles into Syrian territory. Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a public meeting Sunday night that Israel would not return to the armistice lines of 1949. For the first time, he said, Israel's Galilee settlements were out of danger from Syrian guns on high ground overlooking them.

The Jerusalem Post, which often reflects Foreign Ministry views, said; "The 1949 armistice agreements and their armistice demarcation lines are no longer recognized by Israel, having been invalidated by Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian aggression."

Coordinator Named For Head Start

PORTAGEVILLE--A coordinator for the summer Head Start program in the Bootheel has been appointed by the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation.

Robert Williams, a counselor in the Portageville schools, will serve as coordinator, Bratton Wallace, executive director of SMDC, said.

Williams has worked in the year round Head Start program in the Bootheel and is familiar with the project.

Although final approval of about $600,000 in federal funds has not been given by the Office of Economic Opportunity for the Bootheel project, approval is expected shortly.

A training program for about 360 Head Start employes will begin June 19, and the Head Start program is expected to get underway June 26, Wallace said.

The SMDC agreed to take over the Head Start program when the regional OEO office at Kansas City ruled that the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation could not administer the program.

SMDC is a non-profit corporation serving, Scott, Mississippi New Madrid, Stoddard, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

Sharp Clash Expected In Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— A major battle was expected to erupt in the Missouri Senate today over powers of the Senate Economics Committee.

Two members have offered rule changes to curtail the committee's broad powers over appropriations and expenditures.

Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, would make all 34 members of the Senate members of the committee, which now has 11 members and is headed by Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty, the majority floor leader.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, would limit the committee to consideration of bills requiring $250,000 or more in appropriations.

Opponents of the committee charge it has too often considered bills on their merits rather than taking only the expenditures into account.

Both Houses scheduled longer work hours this week, with only three weeks left before automatic adjournment at midnight June 30. The Senate plans five-day weeks from now on instead of quitting at noon on Thursdays.

One controversial issue comes up as a special order of business Wednesday, congressional redistricting. The House bill is far different from the Senate version and would put most of the St. Louis Negro voters in the present Republican 2nd district represented by verteran Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves.

The Senate bill would put most of the Negro voters in the Democratic 1st District of north St. Louis, represented now by Rep. Frank M. Karsten.

Rusk Heads for NATO Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk left today for Luxembourg to attend a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign minister which is expected to discuss primarily the Middle East problem.

The United States, especially Rusk, has urged the Allies on various occasions to look beyond the relatively narrow area of NATO but the Allies up to now have not seemed interested.

Officials now see signs of rapidly growing interest in the Middle East.

Rusk's position is known to be that the Middle East is primarily a responsibility of Western Europe, especially the former colonial powers, Britain and France.

Eshkol Says Israel Will Not Accept Old Confines

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told the world today that Israel, winner of its war with the Arabs, never would return to the old days of narrow confines, threats and insecurity.

The Israeli leader's proclamation to the Knesset (parliament) was clear notice that his people, after 20 years of fear and attack from all sides, will decide themselves the framework of the future.

As Eshkol spoke to the lawmakers in Jerusalem, Israeli troops were in command on the banks of the Suez Canal, on the west bank of the Jordan River, in all Jerusalem and on the Syrian heights above the Sea of Galilee.

Outside the honey-colored stone parliament building, crowds of young Israelis carriers banners declaring: "Do not return the occupied areas."

Said Eshkol: "Let there be no fostering of illusions. We fought alone for our survival.

"We alone are entitled to determine the nature of the vital interests of our country and how our interest must be secured.

"Let the international community be informed that the situation which existed until now shall not be allowed to return.

"The borders of Israel are to longer a no-man's land open to murder and sabotage from without."

Symington's Niece Dies In Mishap

STORMVILLE, N.Y. (AP)— Diedre H. Symington, niece of U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., fell to her death Sunday when her parachute failed to open during her first attempt at skydiving.

The 21-year-old Miss Symington, a student at Boston University, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Symington of Leesburg, Va.

Nathanael Sweet, instructor at Stormville Airport, said Miss Symington jumped from 2,600 feet. Her parachute did not open fully, he added, and "she did not activate her reserve chute."

Highway Toll to Four

The highway patrol reported four deaths during the weekend resulting from highway accidents in Southeast Missouri.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Trujillo, 24, of Cincinnati, a Catholic priest, died Saturday at Baptist hospital in Memphis from a skull fracture sustained in a van crash Thursday afternoon on U.S. 60 south of Sikeston.

Seven other priests were injured when the driver lost control of the vehicle which ran off the road and overturned.

A motorcyclist was killed at 4:30 a.m. today on U.S. highway 61, one-half mile south of Steele when his cycle was apparently run over by a car driven by Richard Friend Jr., 23, of Zion, Ill., troopers said.

Denny Gossett Jr., 48, of Houston, Tex., was dead on arrival at Pemiscot Memorial hospital at Hayti.

A pedestrian, John Sipes, 53, of Gibson, was killed when he was struck by a car on Missouri highway 53, one mile south of Campbell at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

The highway patrol said the driver, Billy Gene Meadows, 27, left the accident scene and was picked up at Campbell seven hours later for investigation on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Clarence Thiele, 63, of Sedgewickville was killed when his pickup truck ran off route B and hit a tree. The accident occurred at 4:45 p.m. Saturday, seven miles south of Perryville.

Ritter Services Slated Thursday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The body of Joseph Cardinal Ritter will lie in state until a pontifical requiem mass is celebrated in St. Louis Cathedral Thursday.

The funeral mass will be televised, enabling a higher percentage of Catholics in the St. Louis archdiocese to witness the mass.

Nine bishops are expected to participate in the funeral mass, among them is the Most Rev. John Cody, archbishop of Chicago and a cardinal designate.

The sermon will be offered by the Most Rev. Charles Helmsing, bishop of the Kansas City-St. Joseph, Mo., diocese.

As many as 100 bishops from throughout the United States are expected to attend the services.

Cardinal Ritter died Saturday following two heart attacks.

Addresses Mixed In Court Story

In an account of city court activity published on the front page Saturday the address of 408 Lillian street omitted for Chester F. Dockins, charged with assault and battery, whose case was dismissed.

Jerral L. Adams, 205 South Handy, charged on two counts, one for disturbing the peace and the other for imprudent driving, had one wrong address listed.

Optimists Hear Ku Klux Klan Interview

Phil Nash, news director of radio station KMPL, gave a recorded interview made with unidentified members of the Ku Klux Klan to the Optimist club today.

Propaganda of the organization based on the claim, "Klan Fights Communism," with a St. Louis headquarters address was displayed. Another card read: "You have been patronized by the K.K.K."

When Klan members were asked in the interview what interest they had in this area, a spokesman said:

"When we learn there is Communism or other unAmerican teachings in the schools, we make it a point to investigate. At no time do we reveal the names of other members of the Klan, and only a first name is given. There may be a number of members that may have the same first name."

When Nash asked the members about the size of membership in this area the only comment he received was that membership had increased 800 per cent and could be several hundred thousand in Missouri between St. Louis and the Arkansas line. Nash said the Federal Bureau of Investigation challenged this estimate.

A secret ballot is voted on membership proposals and if the person is rejected, he can apply the following year.

"All meetings are opened with a prayer," commented one Klansman.

Members must take an oath, hold no allegiance to any other country and must believe in God.

If a member leaves the organization, he must leave all literature and identification with the organization.

It takes two hours for an initiation. Basic requirements are secrecy and no mixed marriages. A spokesman said:

"We do not interfere with the events of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as long as there are no unAmerican activities assocated with any movement. When any group breaks the state or local law, we believe the tax dollar should not support the violation. We believe that any violation of law can be investigated by the public. An example was a recent meeting by 1,100 students in St. Louis when at a meeting a Flag was displayed four days in a backward position. We do not believe in the United Nations and believe the money given for it in its give-away program could better be spent to build our own country stronger."

In a question period the speaker related that the membership of the Ku Klux Klan, was greatly exaggerated, according to the FBI.

A report of a newly organized baseball league under the optimist clubs sponsorship that opened play Thursday night at Dancler Field, more than 40 boys reported.

Two games will be played each Thursday night. Play is open to any boy between eight and 15, who has not had the opportunity to participate in any other league.

Crime Study Favors Treatment to Jail for Drunks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consultant to the President's crime commission suggested today even moderate drinkers might turn to potent drugs if sources of alcoholic beverages were shut off.

Richard A. Blum explained that most Americans are not about to stop drinking since it "gives more pleasure than pain and ordinarily does not lead to trouble.

And problem drinkers, "without anything else but alcohol as a focus of life or source of pleasure or tranquilization, may well ask us what we have that is better than their spirituous familiar," he said.

Blum, a research director at Stanford University's Institute for the Study of Human Problems in California, made the comments in a report to the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice.

In a telephone interview, he added that because nearly all human cultures use drugs—and he considers alcohol a drug—"there's a reasonable guess that if we went back to prohibition, we would, of course, try to find other drugs that were acceptable and use them.

"We're so heavily committed to drug use that it would be inconceivable that we could reduce the use of drugs," Blum said.

Blum's report was one of nine on drunkeness prepared by consultants to the crime commission. The papers made public today comprised the sixth of the panel's nine specialized reports to be published. All were summarized in the commission's report issued last February.

Aside from the consultant's papers, the report contained only the same chapter on drunkenness, with the addition of footnotes, that appeared in the February report.

The commission, noting that the two million persons arrested yearly for drunkenness comprise a third of all arrests, recommended that drunkenness no longer be considered a crime and that drunks not be considered criminals.

But it said "disorderly and other criminal conduct accompanied by drunkenness should remain punishable as separate crimes."

To curb the problem of drunken derelicts—the unemployed homeless men who inhabit the nation's skid rows—the commission suggested the organization of detoxification centers to which alcoholics may be taken voluntarily.

One model cited by a commission consultant is the Vera Institute's Bowery Project in New York, expected to become a fully operational program in October at an estimated yearly cost of $350,000.

Vera is setting up a 50-bed facility on the Bowery with a detoxification center operated by St. Vincent's Hospital. Drunks will be approached by roving teams of civilians—accompanied by plainclothes police—and asked whether they wish to go to the center.

Those who refuse would be left alone. Those who accept would remain at the center up to four days or hospitalized if they are seriously ill. After they are dried out they would be sent to one of several rehabilitation centers.

Vera officials hope that once derelicts find they are well treated at the center, they will volunteer for treatment.

This would be the nation's first completely voluntary program for commitment of drunks. In St. Louis a similar program is run by police who take drunks to a rehabilitation facility under threat of summons.

Vera is a nonprofit, charitable organization engaging in research and experimental programs in the administration of criminal justice.

James Vorenberg, commission executive director, called the recommendations on drunkenness among the panel's least controversial and "the most doable."

Vorenberg urged communities to incorporate swiftly the commission's recommendations, especially that of removing police from the business of handling drunks.

"It's work that does not make being a policeman very attractive," he told newsmen at a briefing.

And, he added, the commission believes fear of conviction for drunkenness no deterrence since most alcoholics have long arrest records. He said one study reported the average alcoholic had been arrested 58.5 times.

Blum's report is one of four he and others prepared on mind-altering drugs and dangerous behavior. It is based largely on hitherto unpublished studies prepared by a group headed by Ira Cisin of George Washington University here.

Blum said any suggestion to reduce drinking was futile and "unnecessary, for there is no reason for the normal drinker to stop. His drinking is controlled, need not become a progressive disease, gives more pleasure than pain, and ordinarily does not lead to trouble."

Some benefits of alcohol, he said, include its value as a tranquilizer and sedative, food for nutritional use and treatment of disorders of appetite, obesity, diabetes, nutritional deficiencies and some heart diseases.

"Its beneficial social and psychological effects, including tension reduction, social interaction facilitation and direct euphoria, are better known," he added.

But alcoholism, he noted, is associated with early death and a high frequency of heart disease, tuberculosis and cirrhosis of the liver.

Blum said "culturally integrated drinking allows for heavy consumption without heavy trouble following in its wake." Integrated drinking is that which occurs as part of other important activities such as meals, festivals and religious rites when other people are present, he said.

Blum noted that in the United States, Italian, Greek and Jewish families introduce their children to wine and other mild beverages early in life as part of family dining or religious rituals.

On the other hand Irish and New England offspring began drinking later in adolescence and more often use hard liquor and drink outside the home, he said. Generally, Irish Catholics drink more than Protestants, and Jews drink least of the three, Blum contended.

The presumption, he said, is that "one should teach people how to drink. That means that either beginning in childhood in the family setting—which means a cohesive family must exist—or later in life as an adult, people must be taught to drink just before or during meals, to prefer the blood level low-peak, slow-acting beverages."

Blum concluded that the largest proportions of drinkers are among males, younger persons in their 20s and 30s and among people of higher social and economic status.

Regionally, New England and the Middle Atlantic states have the highest proportion of drinkers; the east South-Central region the lowest, he said.

Among religions, Jews, Episcopalians, Catholics and Lutherans drink more than Baptists and other antialcohol groups, his study noted.

But in contrast to these normal drinkers, most heavy drinkers are among the lower socioeconomic groups, especially among older men, and in particular those of Puerto Rican or Latin extraction, Negroes and Protestants not affiliated with churches.

The study shows also that when males have begun drinking early outside the family, have been separated from one or both parents as children, have been active Catholics or, as older persons, Protestant Fundamentalists, "one or more out of every three such persons runs the risk of being a heavy drinker."

Blum reported also the results of a 30-year study of a group of normal public school children. It showed that those who became problem drinkers as adults also became aggressive, attention seeking, socially extroverted, resentful of authority, and lacking in feeling for others.

As children they have indifferent mothers and live in families lacking warmth and understanding, the study said.

At the other extreme, "abstainers were lacking in social poise, the males were more feminine, and they were rigid and self-righteous," Blum noted.

He added that "moderate drinkers, compared either to problem drinkers or to abstainers, were better adjusted children, adolescents and adults."

Another report prepared by David J. Pittman, a sociology professor at Washington University in St. Louis, said "excessive drinking of alcoholic beverages is a significant fact in the commission of crimes."

The Pittman study said the closest relationship between drunkenness and criminal behavior involves assaults. The relationship is "especially high for lower-class Negroes and whites," it said.

Israel Denies Advancing Of Tanks Since Cease-Fire

Flood Threat Mounts

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A tornado damaged several homes in Greater Kanas City early today and surging floodwaters forced 15 or more families out of their homes.

A tornado dipped into Kansas City North near 52nd St. and Randolph and demolished one house and damaged four others and a church. No deaths or serious injuries resulted.

Overflowing water temporarily closed several roads in the Kansas City and adjoining eastern Kansas areas. Creeks raged and subsided quickly. The weather bureau kept close watch for possible serious flooding on tributaries of major rivers in northeastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri.

Residents of low-lying areas of Smithville, north of Kansas City, moved to higher ground as waters from the Little Platte River once again threatened that town.

Lightning and damaging winds disrupted electric service for short periods in more than 40 neighborhoods in the Kansas City metropolitan area.

Forecasts indicated there will be no letup in the showers and thunderstorms that have soaked much of western Missouri and eastern Kansas the past week.

Lester C. Gritz, 63, of Neodesha, Kan., drowned early Sunday when high water swept his pickup truck off a rural road southwest of Independence, Kan.

A jittery public reported seeing dozens of tornadoes Sunday, but only a few twisters were confirmed as hitting the ground.

One dipped into a residential area in the north part of Kansas City at 1:15 a.m., demolishing two houses, unroofing three others and damaging a church. One man suffered a minor injury.

Hail wiped out nearly-ripened wheat and other crops in some areas.

Up to eight inches of rain fell in Southeastern Kansas Saturday night.

Water flowed over roads in the Greater Kansas City area and west of there in eastern Kansas. Several roads were closed temporarily, including U.S. 24 between Lawrence and Topeka which was impassable in several places.

Walker Libel Case Reversed

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Supreme Court threw out today a $500,000 libel judgment won by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker against The Associated Press.

All nine judges voted to set aside the judgment, won by Walker in a Fort Worth, Tex., state court in 1964. They entered four separate opinions to state their views.

In the controlling opinion, Justice John M. Harlan said there wasn't "the slightest hint of a severe departure from accepted publishing standards" in the way The Associated Press reported Walker's activities at the University of Mississippi campus at Oxford in 1962.

"We therefore conclude that Gen. Walker should not be entitled to damages from The Associated Press."

Riots swept the Mississippi campus the night of Sept. 30, occasioned by the admission of a Negro, James Meredith, into the university. The AP reported Oct. 2 and 3 that Walker had "assumed command of the crowd" and had "led a charge of students against federal marshals."

Harlan said there was no evidence of "personal prejudice or incompetency" on the part of the AP's reporter, Van Savell, or The Associated Press.

Harlan noted that Walker had "denied categorically taking part in any charge against the federal marshals." However, Harlan also noted that Savell "was actually present during the events described and had reported them almost immediately to The Associated Press office in Atlanta."

The justice said "a discrepancy" was shown between an oral account given the office and a later written dispatch. But he said it related solely to whether Walker had spoken to a group of students on campus "before or after approaching the marshals."

Harlan referred to this as a "minor discrepancy" and said: "Negligence, it may have been; malice, it was not."

The nub of Harlan's opinion was that The Associated Press exercised a proper "degree of care" in its dispatches.

Search for Boys Fails Again

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — The search for three boys missing in Hannibal since May 10 apparently ended Sunday after the boys' parents said they were convinced the youths were not in Murphy's Cave.

Rescue workers dug through a recently discovered second level in the cave over the weekend and found no clues in the search for Billy, 11, and Joel Hoag, 13, and Edwin Craig Dowell, 14. The boys were last seen in the area of the cave.

Aqaba Shipping Resumes

By The Associated Press

Israel has denied Syrian charges that its tanks invaded deeper into Syria after a cease-fire but says it intends to keep some of the land it won from Syria, Egypt and Jordan in the six-day Middle East War.

Cheering crowds in the Israeli port of Elath Sunday night greeted the first Israeli freighter to enter the Gulf of Aqaba since Egypt's proclaimed blockade of the gulf led the Middle East to the brink of war.

The Jewish nation had assured reopening of the gulf by capturing Sharm el Sheikh, from which Egyptians guns overlooked the gulf entrance at the Strait of Tiran.

An Israeli army spokesman said the war against the Arabs killed 679 Israeli soldiers and wounded 2,563. Jordan has announced that 15,000 Jordanians were killed. Egypt and Syria have not announced any casualty figures.

Estimates of the number of prisoners taken by Israel, mostly Egyptians, range from 13,000 to 15,000. They still are being counted.

The U. N. Security Council, meeting past 2:30 a.m. for the second straight day, adopted a new resolution demanding that Israel and Syria avoid any forward movement of troops and withdraw any units that have crossed cease-fire lines established Saturday.

Syria said Israel moved armored units forward Sunday. Israel said its tank movements were entirely behind the cease-fire lines. U.N. truce observers confirmed movement of tanks in the area.

Israeli troops now occupy Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, the biblical cities in Jordan west of the Jordan river and a 25-mile Syrian front which extends as deep as 15 miles into Syrian territory. Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a public meeting Sunday night that Israel would not return to the armistice lines of 1949. For the first time, he said, Israel's Galilee settlements were out of danger from Syrian guns on high ground overlooking them.

The Jerusalem Post, which often reflects Foreign Ministry views, said: "The 1949 armistice agreements and their armistice demarcation lines are no longer recognized by Israel, having been invalidated by Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian aggression."

Coordinator Named For Head Start

PORTAGEVILLE--A coordinator for the summer Head Start program in the Bootheel has been appointed by the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation.

Robert Williams, a counselor in the Portageville schools, will serve as coordinator, Bratton Wallace, executive director of SMDC, said.

Williams has worked in the year round Head Start program in the Bootheel and is familiar with the project.

Although final approval of about $600,000 in federal funds has not been given by the Office of Economic Opportunity for the Bootheel project, approval is expected shortly.

A training program for about 360 Head Start employes will begin June 19, and the Head Start program is expected to get underway June 26, Wallace said.

The SMDC agreed to take over the Head Start program when the regional OEO office at Kansas City ruled that the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation could not administer the program.

SMDC is a non-profit corporation serving, Scott, Mississippi New Madrid, Stoddard, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

Sharp Clash Expected In Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— A major battle was expected to erupt in the Missouri Senate today over powers of the Senate Economics Committee.

Two members have offered rule changes to curtail the committee's broad powers over appropriations and expenditures.

Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, would make all 34 members of the Senate members of the committee, which now has 11 members and is headed by Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty, the majority floor leader.

Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, would limit the committee to consideration of bills requiring $250,000 or more in appropriations.

Opponents of the committee charge it has too often considered bills on their merits rather than taking only the expenditures into account.

Both Houses scheduled longer work hours this week, with only three weeks left before automatic adjournment at midnight June 30. The Senate plans five-day weeks from now on instead of quitting at noon on Thursdays.

One controversial issue comes up as a special order of business Wednesday, congressional redistricting. The House bill is far different from the Senate version and would put most of the St. Louis Negro voters in the present Republican 2nd district represented by verteran Rep. Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves.

The Senate bill would put most of the Negro voters in the Democratic 1st District of north St. Louis, represented now by Rep. Frank M. Karsten.

Rusk Heads for NATO Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk left today for Luxembourg to attend a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign minister which is expected to discuss primarily the Middle East problem.

The United States, especially Rusk, has urged the Allies on various occasions to look beyond the relatively narrow area of NATO but the Allies up to now have not seemed interested.

Officials now see signs of rapidly growing interest in the Middle East.

Rusk's position is known to be that the Middle East is primarily a responsibility of Western Europe, especially the former colonial powers, Britain and France.

Eshkol Says Israel Will Not Accept Old Confines

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told the world today that Israel, winner of its war with the Arabs, never would return to the old days of narrow confines, threats and insecurity.

The Israeli leader's proclamation to the Knesset (parliament) was clear notice that his people, after 20 years of fear and attack from all sides, will decide themselves the framework of the future.

As Eshkol spoke to the lawmakers in Jerusalem, Israeli troops were in command on the banks of the Suez Canal, on the west bank of the Jordan River, in all Jerusalem and on the Syrian heights above the Sea of Galilee.

Outside the honey-colored stone parliament building, crowds of young Israelis carriers banners declaring: "Do not return the occupied areas."

Said Eshkol: "Let there be no fostering of illusions. We fought alone for our survival.

"We alone are entitled to determine the nature of the vital interests of our country and how our interest must be secured.

"Let the international community be informed that the situation which existed until now shall not be allowed to return.

"The borders of Israel are to longer a no-man's land open to murder and sabotage from without."

STORMVILLE, N.Y. (AP)— Diedre H. Symington, niece of U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., fell to her death Sunday when her parachute failed to open during her first attempt at skydiving.

The 21-year-old Miss Symington, a student at Boston University, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Symington of Leesburg, Va.

Nathanael Sweet, instructor at Stormville Airport, said Miss Symington jumped from 2,600 feet. Her parachute did not open fully, he added, and "she did not activate her reserve chute."

Highway Toll to Four

The highway patrol reported four deaths during the weekend resulting from highway accidents in Southeast Missouri.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Trujillo, 24, of Cincinnati, a Catholic priest, died Saturday at Baptist hospital in Memphis from a skull fracture sustained in a van crash Thursday afternoon on U.S. 60 south of Sikeston.

Seven other priests were injured when the driver lost control of the vehicle which ran off the road and overturned.

A motorcyclist was killed at 4:30 a.m. today on U.S. highway 61, one-half mile south of Steele when his cycle was apparently run over by a car driven by Richard Friend Jr., 23, of Zion, Ill., troopers said.

Denny Gossett Jr., 48, of Houston, Tex., was dead on arrival at Pemiscot Memorial hospital at Hayti.

A pedestrian, John Sipes, 53, of Gibson, was killed when he was struck by a car on Missouri highway 53, one mile south of Campbell at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

The highway patrol said the driver, Billy Gene Meadows, 27, left the accident scene and was picked up at Campbell seven hours later for investigation on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Clarence Thiele, 63, of Sedgewickville was killed when his pickup truck ran off route B and hit a tree. The accident occurred at 4:45 p.m. Saturday, seven miles south of Perryville.

Ritter Services Slated Thursday

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The body of Joseph Cardinal Ritter will lie in state until a pontifical requiem mass is celebrated in St. Louis Cathedral Thursday.

The funeral mass will be televised, enabling a higher percentage of Catholics in the St. Louis archdiocese to witness the mass.

Nine bishops are expected to participate in the funeral mass, among them is the Most Rev. John Cody, archbishop of Chicago and a cardinal designate.

The sermon will be offered by the Most Rev. Charles Helmsing, bishop of the Kansas City-St. Joseph, Mo., diocese.

As many as 100 bishops from throughout the United States are expected to attend the services.

Cardinal Ritter died Saturday following two heart attacks.

Addresses Mixed In Court Story

In an account of city court activity published on the front page Saturday the address of 408 Lillian street omitted for Chester F. Dockins, charged with assault and battery, whose case was dismissed.

Jerral L. Adams, 205 South Handy, charged on two counts, one for disturbing the peace and the other for imprudent driving, had one wrong address listed.

Optimists Hear Ku Klux Klan Interview

Phil Nash, news director of radio station KMPL, gave a recorded interview made with unidentified members of the Ku Klux Klan to the Optimist club today.

Propaganda of the organization based on the claim, "Klan Fights Communism," with a St. Louis headquarters address was displayed. Another card read; "You have been patronized by the K.K.K."

When Klan members were asked in the interview what interest they had in this area, a spokesman said:

"When we learn there is Communism or other unAmerican teachings in the schools, we make it a point to investigate. At no time do we reveal the names of other members of the Klan, and only a first name is given. There may be a number of members that may have the same first name."

When Nash asked the members about the size of membership in this area the only comment he received was that membership had increased 800 per cent and could be several hundred thousand in Missouri between St. Louis and the Arkansas line. Nash said the Federal Bureau of Investigation challenged this estimate.

A secret ballot is voted on membership proposals and if the person is rejected, he can apply the following year.

"All meetings are opened with a prayer," commented one Klansman.

Members must take an oath, hold no allegiance to any other country and must believe in God.

If a member leaves the organization, he must leave all literature and identification with the organization.

It takes two hours for an initiation. Basic requirements are secrecy and no mixed marriages.

A spokesman said:

"We do not interfere with the events of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as long as there are no unAmerican activities assocated with any movement. When any group breaks the state or local law, we believe the tax dollar should not support the violation. We believe that any violation of law can be investigated by the public. An example was a recent meeting by 1,100 students in St. Louis when at a meeting a Flag was displayed four days in a backward position. We do not believe in the United Nations and believe the money given for it in its give-away program could better be spent to build our own country stronger."

In a question period the speaker related that the membership of the Ku Klux Klan, was greatly exaggerated, according to the FBI.

A report of a newly organized baseball league under the optimist clubs sponsorship that opened play Thursday night at Dancler Field, more than 40 boys reported.

Two games will be played each Thursday night. Play is open to any boy between eight and 15, who has not had the opportunity to participate in any other league.

Crime Study Favors Treatment to Jail for Drunks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consultant to the President's crime commission suggested today even moderate drinkers might turn to potent drugs if sources of alcoholic beverages were shut off.

Richard A. Blum explained that most Americans are not about to stop drinking since it "gives more pleasure than pain and ordinarily does not lead to trouble.

And problem drinkers, "without anything else but alcohol as a focus of life or source of pleasure or tranquilization, may well ask us what we have that is better than their spirituous familiar," he said.

Blum, a research director at Stanford University's Institute for the Study of Human Problems in California, made the comments in a report to the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice.

In a telephone interview, he added that because nearly all human cultures use drugs—and he considers alcohol a drug—"there's a reasonable guess that if we went back to prohibition, we would, of course, try to find other drugs that were acceptable and use them.

"We're so heavily committed to drug use that it would be inconceivable that we could reduce the use of drugs," Blum said.

Blum's report was one of nine on drunkeness prepared by consultants to the crime commission. The papers made public today comprised the sixth of the panel's nine specialized reports to be published. All were summarized in the commission's report issued last February.

Aside from the consultant's papers, the report contained only the same chapter on drunkenness, with the addition of footnotes, that appeared in the February report.

The commission, noting that the two million persons arrested yearly for drunkenness comprise a third of all arrests, recommended that drunkenness no longer be considered a crime and that drunks not be considered criminals.

But it said "disorderly and other criminal conduct accompanied by drunkenness should remain punishable as separate crimes."

To curb the problem of drunken derelicts—the unemployed homeless men who inhabit the nation's skid rows—the commission suggested the organization of detoxification centers to which alcoholics may be taken voluntarily.

One model cited by a commission consultant is the Vera Institute's Bowery Project in New York, expected to become a fully operational program in October at an estimated yearly cost of $350,000.

Vera is setting up a 50-bed facility on the Bowery with a detoxification center operated by St. Vincent's Hospital. Drunks will be approached by roving teams of civilians—accompanied by plainclothes police—and asked whether they wish to go to the center.

Those who refuse would be left alone. Those who accept would remain at the center up to four days or hospitalized if they are seriously ill. After they are dried out they would be sent to one of several rehabilitation centers.

Vera officials hope that once derelicts find they are well treated at the center, they will volunteer for treatment.

This would be the nation's first completely voluntary program for commitment of drunks. In St. Louis a similar program is run by police who take drunks to a rehabilitation facility under threat of summons.

Vera is a nonprofit, charitable organization engaging in research and experimental programs in the administration of criminal justice.

James Vorenberg, commission executive director, called the recommendations on drunkenness among the panel's least controversial and "the most doable."

Vorenberg urged communities to incorporate swiftly the commission's recommendations, especially that of removing police from the business of handling drunks.

"It's work that does not make being a policeman very attractive," he told newsmen at a briefing.

And, he added, the commission believes fear of conviction for drunkenness no deterrence since most alcoholics have long arrest records. He said one study reported the average alcoholic had been arrested 58.5 times.

Blum's report is one of four he and others prepared on mind-altering drugs and dangerous behavior. It is based largely on hitherto unpublished studies prepared by a group headed by Ira Cisin of George Washington University here.

Blum said any suggestion to reduce drinking was futile and "unnecessary, for there is no reason for the normal drinker to stop. His drinking is controlled, need not become a progressive disease, gives more pleasure than pain, and ordinarily does not lead to trouble."

Some benefits of alcohol, he said, include its value as a tranquilizer and sedative, food for nutritional use and treatment of disorders of appetite, obesity, diabetes, nutritional deficiencies and some heart diseases.

"Its beneficial social and psychological effects, including tension reduction, social interaction facilitation and direct euphoria, are better known," he added.

But alcoholism, he noted, is associated with early death and a high frequency of heart disease, tuberculosis and cirrhosis of the liver.

Blum said "culturally integrated drinking allows for heavy consumption without heavy trouble following in its wake." Integrated drinking is that which occurs as part of other important activities such as meals, festivals and religious rites when other people are present, he said.

Blum noted that in the United States, Italian, Greek and Jewish families introduce their children to wine and other mild beverages early in life as part of family dining or religious rituals.

On the other hand Irish and New England offspring began drinking later in adolescence and more often use hard liquor and drink outside the home, he said. Generally, Irish Catholics drink more than Protestants, and Jews drink least of the three, Blum contended.

The presumption, he said, is that "one should teach people how to drink. That means that either beginning in childhood in the family setting—which means a cohesive family must exist—or later in life as an adult, people must be taught to drink just before or during meals, to prefer the blood level low-peak, slow-acting beverages."

Blum concluded that the largest proportions of drinkers are among males, younger persons in their 20s and 30s and among people of higher social and economic status.

Regionally, New England and the Middle Atlantic states have the highest proportion of drinkers; the east South-Central region the lowest, he said.

Among religions, Jews, Episcopalians, Catholics and Lutherans drink more than Baptists and other antialcohol groups, his study noted.

But in contrast to these normal drinkers, most heavy drinkers are among the lower socioeconomic groups, especially among older men, and in particular those of Puerto Rican or Latin extraction, Negroes and Protestants not affiliated with churches.

The study shows also that when males have begun drinking early outside the family, have been separated from one or both parents as children, have been active Catholics or, as older persons, Protestant Fundamentalists, "one or more out of every three such persons runs the risk of being a heavy drinker."

Blum reported also the results of a 30-year study of a group of normal public school children. It showed that those who became problem drinkers as adults also became aggressive, attention seeking, socially extroverted, resentful of authority, and lacking in feeling for others.

As children they have indifferent mothers and live in families lacking warmth and understanding, the study said.

At the other extreme, "abstainers were lacking in social poise, the males were more feminine, and they were rigid and self-righteous," Blum noted.

He added that "moderate drinkers, compared either to problem drinkers or to abstainers, were better adjusted children, adolescents and adults."

Another report prepared by David J. Pittman, a sociology professor at Washington University in St. Louis, said "excessive drinking of alcoholic beverages is a significant fact in the commission of crimes."

The Pittman study said the closest relationship between drunkenness and criminal behavior involves assaults. The relationship is "especially high for lower-class Negroes and whites," it said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A campaign waged by the National Safety Council aims at putting bright Slow Moving Vehicle Emblems on all 12 million farm, road building, and other vehicles that normally travel the highways at less than 25 m.p.h. There is no organization doing more to reduce highway accidents than the state highway patrol.

It is no fault of the patrol that their efforts are inadequate.

Until motorists adopt safe driving habits, are thoroughly educated in how to drive safely under all conditions and adopt an attitude of brotherhood while behind the wheel, the carnage and awesome property damage will continue to rise.

But no organization is infallible.

It may be that Robert A. Dickey, personnel manager of the Mississippi Lime Company at Ste. Genevieve, has a valid point in requesting that the state legislature begin an investigation of what he calls irregularities in the patrol.

A former patrolman himself, Dickey lost his daughter, Roberta Lea Dickey, in a highway accident. She was killed in a car-truck collision Jan. 19 in Ste. Genevieve county.

Dickey charges that the patrol's investigation of the crash was inaccurate and incomplete, that it was endorsed by a probationary officer's superiors, and accuses the patrol of harassment in his own efforts to investigate the crash.

Dickey's own account may be deficient but it has the ring of truth in it. He does not indict the patrol as a whole. He even welcomes an investigation of the accident by "conscientious officers" of the patrol. This appears to be both a lenient and fair minded approach. Dickey is content to have the patrol investigate the patrol.

Death on the highways is so frequent and so continuous that there is a danger that those who investigate them will treat them in a routine manner. The dead quickly become statistics to all except those who knew them well.

Roberta Lea Dickey will never be a statistic to her father or mother.

If there is any basis at all for Robert A. Dickey's accusations against the patrol they merit investigation. Even if there isn't, the patrol's own investigative effort would be well spent in clearing the air.

His concern should not be written off casually as behavior of a "distraught father."

Let's go one step further.

To keep the patrol operating at top efficiency why not have its performance spot checked annually in a surprise aduit by by impartial, out-of-state, professional investigators?

This should serve to keep the organization on its toes and performing as nearly perfectly as it is possible for any group of human beings. It would also be excellent public realtions.

CONGRESS AND THE RAILROADS

House Speaker John W. McCormack (D Mass.) says a resolution (H J Res 559) providing for the settlement of the dispute between the railroads and six shop craft unions will reach the floor by Monday (June 12). That would leave just one week to speed the measure to passage by June 19, the already postponed strike deadline.

Time is running out again in the railroad dispute. The Senate Labor Committee may reach a vote on the administration measure by June 10, but the parallel measure in the House is having a rougher trip. The truth is that representatives on both sides of the aisle are weary of the Johnson formula for the rail dispute.

The administration wants an enforced outside settlement if the unions and management fail to resolve their differences in 90 days. The administration calls this "extended collective bargaining with mediation to finality." Labor calls it plain old compulsory arbitration and wants no part of it.

If Congress turns down the Presidential plan, it may provide for government seizure of the roads. Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R N.Y.) already has introduced seizure amendments, and labor of course would prefer seizure to the Johnson formula.

Or Congress could just do nothing, as Rep. Harley O. Staggers (D Va.) chairman of the House Commerce Committee, has explained. The unions have offered to move vital materials even if a strike were called.

The President on April 10 said that a nationwide rail strike would do "incalculable" damage by snarling passenger traffic and shipment of domestic goods and defense materials for the war in Viet Nam. Some 40 per cent of the total freight shipped by the Defense Department, he asserted, is moved by rail. A strike would impede the movement of such necessary materials as ammunition, jet fuel, strategic missiles, and weapons.

Whether it would be feasible for the unions to permit the movement of only war materials is a real question. And it is unlikely in any event that the carriers would consent to operation on such a half-a-loaf basis.

When the President asked for an extension of the strike deadline on April 28 several senators, led by Sen. Javits, voiced their disapproval of having to enact emergency labor legislation instead of having a general law revision providing a more permanent solution to such threats. The President had promised such legislation in his 1966 State of the Union Message. He did not repeat the promise this year.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Transportation Alan S. Boyd in a joint statement of April 23 had said: "The ugly fact is that collective bargaining has fallen flat on its face. The country is on the verge of a nationwide railroad strike. It is a shame for democracy to be put on trial over so small a disagreement."

The six unions represent 137,000 workers. The issues are basically, though not entirely, bread-and-butter. Some 65 per cent of railroad workers have accepted a 5 per cent wage rise which the shop craft unions consistently have rejected.

The Wirtz-Boyd statement holds as true as it did a month and a half ago. Nothing has changed materially except that a weary public has grown even more apathetic and is inclined to wish a plague on both houses.

THE MOST VALUABLE

The more local a newspaper is, the more it means to a community.

This generalization is illustrated by the recent failure of the New York Times to maintain a Pacific coast edition, with the center of publication in Los Angeles.

Nearly everyone agrees that the New York Times is a great newspaper. But the Times could not succeed where other newspapers were in greater demand.

In spite of its prestige, the Times made no inroad into the demand for local newspapers.

Local advertising, then, remained in local newspapers. Advertising inevitably follows the greatest concentration of paid circulation. The retailer knows that his soundest promotion investment is advertising in a publication read most extensively by people who live within the vicinity of his store.

In some cases the best read publication is a suburban weekly or daily; in some cases it is a county seat newspaper; for a huge department store it may be the nearest metropolitan daily. In every case the newspaper which gets the bulk of retail advertising investment is one which gives emphasis to local news and community problems.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If your snoring keeps your wife awake, it may be simply because you're too fat. Other causes of snoring as reported by the American Medical Association: allergies, too much smoking, sinus condition, and general poor health.

Unless men learn how to live longer, it's estimated there'll be 10 million U.S. widows by the end of 1975, but only one-fifth that many widowers. On the average, a 20-year-old girl who marries a 22-year-old man will outlive her husband by eight years.

Tiny Israel, which has a population of only 2,650,000, is one of the most conglomerate countries on earth. In the last 19 years it has drawn a million migrants from nearly 100 other lands.

Scientists say 12,000 people a day die of starvation or malnutrition disease throughout the world—but the number of people alive on the earth is increasing by 7,000 an hour.

Cage a robin in your home and you'll have bad luck.

U.S. farming methods are so efficient that food production has doubled since the end of World War II, although the area of tilled land has declined by about 60 million acres.

Women don't have to be behind the wheel to cause traffic accidents. Investigating 96 drivers involved in mishaps, a Michigan psychiatrist found 20 per cent had been emotionally disturbed just prior to the crashes. Most of the drivers, he said, "had had violent quarrels, for the most part with women."

Worth remembering: "Flattery is something nice someone tells you about yourself that you wish was true."

There's such an acute shortage of nurses—of the 815,000 registered, only 283,000 are professionally active—that efforts are being made to get more men to enter the field. At present only 1.8 per cent of student nurses are male.

PRACTICING CAPITALISTS

Regular readers of this space will not be surprised to find us saluting the capitalist system. But the statistics on one group of practicing capitalists may come as a surprise -- as it did to us.

We're talking about the teenagers who deliver newspapers. They're practicing capitalists, who learn quickly the fundamentals of American captalism.

As a rule this capitalist is in business for himself. He buys his product at wholesale, sells it at retail. He makes his own deliverires and collections. He learns simple bookkeeping. And, he gets a practical course in salesmanship.

He learns quickly that it is necessary to have a good product for which he can develop and expand a demand. He learnes that his delivery service is the "place utility" between publisher and customer for which he is entitled to make a charge. He learns about human nature, too, and how to mollify the occasional unreasonable customer. And he learns that his earnings are dependent upon the efforts, mental and physical, which he devotes to his business.

There develops in the newspaperboy a sense of responsibility that follows him through life. He learns punctuality and reliability. He learns that he cannot shirk his job because the weather is bad or because he is not feeling his best. He realizes that his efforts can generate the earnings that will supplement what hs parents can provide, and may determine whether or not he gets a college education. Conscious of these simple facts, there is no reason for him to look for hand-outs or to seek a subsidy. And that is a characteristic which usually will follow him through life.

All this comes to mind because The Register, in Santa Ana, California published an estimate that there are 70,000 newspaperboys in California, and that those capitalists earn some $20 million a year.

On a national basis, this is equivalent to some 800,000 young merchants who are earning about $230 million a year, which is probably more than the total national product of some of the newest members of the United Nations.

America is a great country, and these practicing capitalists help make it so, today -- and more importantly, tomorrow.

TAX GROUP URGES FEWER HOLIDAYS

The California Taxpayers' Association s advocating a reduction in the number of paid vacation days of state workers to correspond with those granted by business and industry.

The state workers now average in excess of 12 holidays a year. The most recent survey of industries and businesses the Association reports, shows almost 85 per cent provide 7 or 8 holidays for employees. The most recent survey by the League of California Cities show 57 per cent observed fewer holidays than the state does.

The recent appeal by Governor Reagan for state employees to forego holidays was not successful.

If a saving is to be realized for the taxpayer, Cal-Tax stressed the decrease in holidays must be provided by the legislature.

CONFESSION OF CRIME

Many far-reaching changes in the rules of criminal evidence in this country have been made during recent years -- not by the enactment of laws but through decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court. One of the most drastic of these changes resulted from a court ruling that a voluntary confession by a suspected criminal cannot be used against him when he is brought to trial. This is a wild distortion of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, which provides that no man "shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." A majority of the Supreme Court has ruled that any police interrogation of a suspected criminal which elicits a confession of crime is the same as compelling the suspect to be a witness against himself. This ruling, as a dissenting Justice declared, "unjustifiably fetters legitimate police investigation." So it does, but the Supreme Court majority has shown repeatedly that it is less concerned with society's welfare than it is in imposing on the country its own ideas of how the suspected criminal shall be protected. Meanwhile, crimes of violence are increasing at a rate about four times as fast as the growth of population.

Sixteen U.S. Senators have introduced a joint resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to prohibit the Supreme Court or any lesser court from throwing out a conviction based on a voluntary confession. It is to be hoped the proposed amendment will be promptly approved by Congress and submitted to the states. The necessity for curbing the Supreme Court daily grows more imperative. HLH

THE LINE-UP FOR WAR

A penetrating prediction of things to come was written from Israel by Drew Pearson in a series of columns during January, 1966. In those columns Pearson gave the line-up of overwhelming Arab strength vs. Israeli armed strength but predicted that "as in the battle of David and Goliath, the agility, determination, and indomitable spirit of the Jewish people"... will permit Israel to survive.

Pearson interviewed Israeli Chief of Staff Gen. Isaac Rabin who described the blitz tactics Israel probably would use in case of war. These were used almost exactly last week.

WASHINGTON -- With the long-delayed debate on censuring Sen. Tom Dodd opening tomorrow (June 13), the senator from Connecticut more than ever is using anti-communism as his defense. His objective is to scare wavering senators into voting for him for fear they may be criticized at home as being pro-communist.

This is a tactic which the silver - haired senator has frequently used in the past. Dodd has always been able to see a communist plot in unfavorable publicity, no matter how trivial. For instance, the Insider's Newsletter reported Oct. 25, 1965, that Dodd had flunked his bar exam and that his political friends had the rules changed to get him admitted to the Connecticut bar.

The item found its way to Dodd's office on Nov. 2. Suspecting the worst, his former trostkyite assistant, David Martin, dashed off this memo:

"The paragraph in question is so maliciously irrelevant that it is hard to believe it was not motivated. My personal hunch is that the apparatus is trotting out its guns in preparation for a sustained campaign of character assassination."

Dodd scrawled across the bottom of the memo instructions to Martin, who was his personal chief-of-staff on the senate internal security subcommittee.

"David," he wrote, "immediately check on this outfit. Find out who they are -- carefully and thoroughly."

Investigation showed that the Insider's Newsletter was published by Cowles Publications, which puts out Look Magazine, the Des Moines Register and Tribune, The Minneapolis Star and The Tribune, The Suffolk, L. I., Sun, the Lakeland, Fla., Ledger, and owns several TV stations.

PROBING SCHOOL TEACHERS

On another occasion, a lecturer at Windham high school in Willimantic, Conn., made some comments mildly critical of Dodd. Later in the afternoon of Sept. 28, 1962, the senator received a phone call from his sister, Mrs. Mary Dwyer, reporting what had been said.

Angrily, Dodd buzzed his secretary, Mrs. Marjorie Carpenter, and told her to get the school's principal on the phone. With Mrs. Carpenter still on the line, the senator gave principal H. Chester Nelson a merciless tongue lashing for 10 minutes.

Then Dodd called in Martin and ordered him to run an investigation of the offending speaker. The lecturer turned out to be a Hungarian freedom fighter with anti-communist credentials as good as Dodd's.

There was also the time the senator's son, Tom Jr., brought home a "D" in a course at Georgetown University. The irate father, sensing something un-American about the low mark, ordered the professor investigated. The finding was that Tom Jr. had not been doing his homework.

GOP POVERTY BATTLE

The battle over anti - poverty starts this week in a humdrum education and labor committee room of the house of representatives. The battle will be waged on one hand by Rep. Albert Quie of Dennison, Minn., and Rep. Charlie Goodell of Jamestown, N.Y., both Republicans; on the other, Sargent Shriver, John F. Kennedy's brother-in-law who chalked up such a fine record with the peace corps that he dispelled any criticism of nepotism.

Albert Quie is a bright young Junior Chamber of Commerce product, recipient of many home-town awards, who fought hard to gut aid-to-public schools but was defeated. His strategy of attack against anti-poverty is to support all of the program but try to junk the administrator and his assistants. He wants to move anti-poverty to various federal and local agencies, claiming this would eliminate "a bureaucracy of 91,000."

Only trouble is, Quie's arithmetic is whacky. In the 91,000 bureaucrats he wants to cut out, he includes the 35,500 doctors, nurses, and other professionals who are working part-time in local neighborhood centers; also the 41,000 poor people who are working in the program, and the 7,000 employed by Westinghouse, RCA, IBM and other private contractors to operate Job Corps centers.

There just aren't 91,000 bureaucrats to be cut. In fact, there are only 2,600 people running the anti - poverty program, both in Washington and all regional offices.

Quie has given his substitute for the anti - poverty program the Madison Avenue name of "Opportunity Crusade," and it will probably attract some converts. But it will not attract some of the biggest businessmen in the nation, now vigorously supporting the present program, nor a powerful southerner, Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, who voted against anti - poverty before.

In a recent speech in Little Rock, Mills, who is chairman of the tax-writing ways and means committee, said: "The strategy against poverty is to move people away from welfare into tax-producing employment. . . the cost of welfare, unless something is done, will double by 1972. We are trying to develop alternatives to help get these people off the welfare rolls."

It will be interesting to see who wins the debate, Junior Chamber of Commerce Quie or big business and the Johnson administration.

A FALCON NOT A HAWK

After Rep. Roman Pucinski, D-Ill., a defender of Johnson's policies in Vietnam, made a Chicago speech proposing that we stop bombing North Vietnam and withdraw our troops to "freedom santuaries" in the south, a newsman phoned him to inquire:

"I always thought you were a supporter of the President, a hawk, so to speak. Now are you changing into a dove?"

"Not exactly," replied Pucinski, "I'm now a Falcon, which is a noble hawk and considered more courageous."

PUSHBUTTON INTEGRATION

Gov't. Automates Its Drive For Minorities By Launching Computerized Pincer Offensive

Washington, D.C.: -- Now the federal government is developing push - button integration. It's computerizing its crusade.

In a few months, some anonymous statistician deep in the capital labyrinth will answer an intercom and make a note of his chief's wish to know just which employers in a certain field have not hired sufficient numbers of Negroes, Spanish-speaking citizens and American Indians. The technician will hit a button or telephone a Midwest city subheadquarters of the Bureau of the Census in which is a grand computer. In its memory box will be millions of items on magnetic tape. The answer will be flashed back in a few seconds.

For in that computer will rest the intimate details of the hiring practices and personnel policies of hundreds of thousands of American employers: the racial components; the status of each racial group in the "mix"; the number in management; in policy - making echelons and in menial labor.

Much of this already is on tape though the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission still has a long way to go to record the policies of America's businessmen big or small. At best, the E.E.O.C., once headed by Franklin Roosevelt Jr. and now by a more professional chap, Steve Shulman, now can only handpick from among some tens of thousands of forms filed by firms in the past year.

Actually the government is developing a computerized pincer movement. While the intimate details of corporate hiring policies are being punched out on the Bureau of the Census feedback mechanism, another computer is being fed at the University of Pittsburgh. Into that memory box are going thousands of E.E.O.C. decisions, mediations, regulations, policy statements by Shulman and his fellow commissioners, opinions of the general counsel and regulations piled up in the past 22 months of E.E.O.C. turbulent life.

This will contain the drive for equality of the sexes as well as the intensity of integration. Thus, in a short while, Shulman or Labor Secretary Wirtz or someone over in the federal contract compliance division will be able to push some buttons, learn just what some coast-to-coast corporation has done recently -- especially in the construction field -- and what powers there are to needle it into action.

This electronic brain system will ease the drain on the men who are flying the circuit in the new city-by-city clampdown on contractors and other business handling any funds which have a penny of federal money. The jet planes are simply too slow. The federal enforcement people have been able to get around to few communities -- some of them in Northeast Ohio and as far west as the San Francisco Bay area. In a comparatively few federally assisted Ohio projects alone, some $44 million worth of such construction has or soon will be affected by government enforcement decisions.

The electronic pincers will be used to put muscle on what the E.E.O.C. people call "the arm of persuasion." Presumably, the computers will be used for lightning like feedbacks on complaints coming in from 11 regional offices -- stretching from the newest in this capital to Albuquerque to Los Angeles.

The pincer is both tactical and strategic, depending on what the government wants most at the moment. And right now the big drive is in the building and construction multibillion dollar area.

"We have a program oriented to the higher paid trades," says one top federal enforcement official who has been jetting across the land. "We're aiming at getting minority workers into jobs as electricians, mechanics, operating engineers, machine metal workers, sheet metal workers and the pipe trades. That's where you don't find the Negroes. We find them in the lower paid 'trowel and wet trades' mainly with the exception of some carpenters. But we have to spot-check the country now because we cannot, with our present facilities, sweep the whole nation."

Some employers' groups are irritated by being electronic data - processed not only because it puts their executive suite policies on a tape for anyone near a button who wants to punch it -- but also because the unions have not yet gone on the magnetic tape.

The employers can be processed because they already got a long questionnaire called form E.E.O.1 and dispatched their data. But there still is no form for the unions who supply the manpower to the companies. And there are some 7,000 apprentice programs and 50,000 local unions involved. They may not get a form for months. There must first be a public hearing. And that's scheduled for June 20. If this stretches out, the unions may not get their forms -- inquiries on the number of Negroes, Spanish - speaking citizens, Indians, etc., in their membership -- until '68.

Some employers groups are saying there now is an electronic gap -- and are preparing for the battle of the computers.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A campaign waged by the National Safety Council aims at putting bright Slow Moving Vehicle Emblems on all 12 million farm, road building, and other vehicles that normally travel the highways at less than 25 m.p.h. The SMV Emblem is a triangle that combines reflective and fluorescent materials, making it highly visible both day and night.

* * *

There is no organization doing more to reduce highway accidents than the state highway patrol.

It is no fault of the patrol that their efforts are inadequate.

Until motorists adopt safe driving habits, are thoroughly educated in how to drive safely under all conditions and adopt an attitude of brotherhood while behind the wheel, the carnage and awesome property damage will continue to rise.

But no organization is infallible.

It may be that Robert A. Dickey, personnel manager of the Mississippi Lime Company at Ste. Genevieve, has a valid point in requesting that the state legislature begin an investigation of what he calls irregularities in the patrol.

A former patrolman himself, Dickey lost his daughter, Roberta Lea Dickey, in a highway accident. She was killed in a car-truck collision Jan. 19 in Ste. Genevieve county.

Dickey charges that the patrol's investigation of the crash was inaccurate and incomplete, that it was endorsed by a probationary officer's superiors, and accuses the patrol of harassment in his own efforts to investigate the crash.

Dickey's own account may be deficient but it has the ring of truth in it. He does not indict the patrol as a whole. He even welcomes an investigation of the accident by "conscientious officers" of the patrol. This appears to be both a lenient and fair minded approach. Dickey is content to have the patrol investigate the patrol.

Death on the highways is so frequent and so continuous that there is a danger that those who investigate them will treat them in a routine manner. The dead quickly become statistics to all except those who knew them well.

Roberta Lea Dickey will never be a statistic to her father or mother.

If there is any basis at all for Robert A. Dickey's accusations against the patrol they merit investigation. Even if there isn't, the patrol's own investigative effort would be well spent in clearing the air.

His concern should not be written off casually as behavior of a "distraught father."

Let's go one step further.

To keep the patrol operating at top efficiency why not have its performance spot checked annually in a surprise aduit by by impartial, out-of-state, professional investigators?

This should serve to keep the organization on its toes and performing as nearly perfectly as it is possible for any group of human beings. It would also be excellent public realtions.

CONGRESS AND THE RAILROADS

House Speaker John W. McCormack (D Mass.) says a resolution (H J Res 559) providing for the settlement of the dispute between the railroads and six shop craft unions will reach the floor by Monday (June 12). That would leave just one week to speed the measure to passage by June 19, the already postponed strike deadline.

Time is running out again in the railroad dispute. The Senate Labor Committee may reach a vote on the administration measure by June 10, but the parallel measure in the House is having a rougher trip. The truth is that representatives on both sides of the aisle are weary of the Johnson formula for the rail dispute.

The administration wants an enforced outside settlement if the unions and management fail to resolve their differences in 90 days. The administration calls this "extended collective bargaining with mediation to finality." Labor calls it plain old compulsory arbitration and wants no part of it.

If Congress turns down the Presidential plan, it may provide for government seizure of the roads. Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R N.Y.) already has introduced seizure amendments, and labor of course would prefer seizure to the Johnson formula.

Or Congress could just do nothing, as Rep. Harley O. Staggers (D Va.) chairman of the House Commerce Committee, has explained. The unions have offered to move vital materials even if a strike were called.

The President on April 10 said that a nationwide rail strike would do "incalculable" damage by snarling passenger traffic and shipment of domestic goods and defense materials for the war in Viet Nam. Some 40 per cent of the total freight shipped by the Defense Department, he asserted, is moved by rail. A strike would impede the movement of such necessary materials as ammunition, jet fuel, strategic missiles, and weapons.

Whether it would be feasible for the unions to permit the movement of only war materials is a real question. And it is unlikely in any event that the carriers would consent to operation on such a half-a-loaf basis.

When the President asked for an extension of the strike deadline on April 28 several senators, led by Sen. Javits, voiced their disapproval of having to enact emergency labor legislation instead of having a general law revision providing a more permanent solution to such threats. The President had promised such legislation in his 1966 State of the Union Message. He did not repeat the promise this year.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Transportation Alan S. Boyd in a joint statement of April 23 had said: "The ugly fact is that collective bargaining has fallen flat on its face. The country is on the verge of a nationwide railroad strike. It is a shame for democracy to be put on trial over so small a disagreement."

The six unions represent 137,000 workers. The issues are basically, though not entirely, bread-and-butter. Some 65 per cent of railroad workers have accepted a 5 per cent wage rise which the shop craft unions consistently have rejected.

The Wirtz-Boyd statement holds as true as it did a month and a half ago. Nothing has changed materially except that a weary public has grown even more apathetic and is inclined to wish a plague on both houses.

THE MOST VALUABLE

The more local a newspaper is, the more it means to a community.

This generalization is illustrated by the recent failure of the New York Times to maintain a Pacific coast edition, with the center of publication in Los Angeles.

Nearly everyone agrees that the New York Times is a great newspaper. But the Times could not succeed where other newspapers were in greater demand.

In spite of its prestige, the Times made no inroad into the demand for local newspapers.

Local advertising, then, remained in local newspapers. Advertising inevitably follows the greatest concentration of paid circulation. The retailer knows that his soundest promotion investment is advertising in a publication read most extensively by people who live within the vicinity of his store.

In some cases the best read publication is a suburban weekly or daily; in some cases it is a county seat newspaper; for a huge department store it may be the nearest metropolitan daily. In every case the newspaper which gets the bulk of retail advertising investment is one which gives emphasis to local news and community problems.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If your snoring keeps your wife awake, it may be simply because you're too fat. Other causes of snoring as reported by the American Medical Association: allergies, too much smoking, sinus condition, and general poor health.

Unless men learn how to live longer, it's estimated there'll be 10 million U.S. widows by the end of 1975, but only one-fifth that many widowers. On the average, a 20-year-old girl who marries a 22-year-old man will outlive her husband by eight years.

Tiny Israel, which has a population of only 2,650,000, is one of the most conglomerate countries on earth. In the last 19 years it has drawn a million migrants from nearly 100 other lands.

Scientists say 12,000 people a day die of starvation or malnutrition disease throughout the world—but the number of people alive on the earth is increasing by 7,000 an hour.

Cage a robin in your home and you'll have bad luck.

U.S. farming methods are so efficient that food production has doubled since the end of World War II, although the area of tilled land has declined by about 60 million acres.

Women don't have to be behind the wheel to cause traffic accidents. Investigating 96 drivers involved in mishaps, a Michigan psychiatrist found 20 per cent had been emotionally disturbed just prior to the crashes. Most of the drivers, he said, "had had violent quarrels, for the most part with women."

Worth remembering: "Flattery is something nice someone tells you about yourself that you wish was true."

There's such an acute shortage of nurses—of the 815,000 registered, only 283,000 are professionally active—that efforts are being made to get more men to enter the field. At present only 1.8 per cent of student nurses are male.

American babies are growing faster. A year-old infant today is 7 per cent taller and from 12 to 15 per cent heavier than his counterpart in the 19th century.

PRACTICING CAPITALISTS

Regular readers of this space will not be surprised to find us saluting the capitalist system. But the statistics on one group of practicing capitalists may come as a surprise -- as it did to us.

We're talking about the teenagers who deliver newspapers. They're practicing capitalists, who learn quickly the fundamentals of American captalism.

As a rule this capitalist is in business for himself. He buys his product at wholesale, sells it at retail. He makes his own deliverires and collections. He learns simple bookkeeping. And, he gets a practical course in salesmanship.

He learns quickly that it is necessary to have a good product for which he can develop and expand a demand. He learnes that his delivery service is the "place utility" between publisher and customer for which he is entitled to make a charge. He learns about human nature, too, and how to mollify the occasional unreasonable customer. And he learns that his earnings are dependent upon the efforts, mental and physical, which he devotes to his business.

There develops in the newspaperboy a sense of responsibility that follows him through life. He learns punctuality and reliability. He learns that he cannot shirk his job because the weather is bad or because he is not feeling his best. He realizes that his efforts can generate the earnings that will supplement what hs parents can provide, and may determine whether or not he gets a college education. Conscious of these simple facts, there is no reason for him to look for hand-outs or to seek a subsidy. And that is a characteristic which usually will follow him through life.

All this comes to mind because The Register, in Santa Ana, California published an estimate that there are 70,000 newspaperboys in California, and that those capitalists earn some $20 million a year.

On a national basis, this is equivalent to some 800,000 young merchants who are earning about $230 million a year, which is probably more than the total national product of some of the newest members of the United Nations.

America is a great country, and these practicing capitalists help make it so, today -- and more importantly, tomorrow.

TAX GROUP URGES FEWER HOLIDAYS

The California Taxpayers' Association s advocating a reduction in the number of paid vacation days of state workers to correspond with those granted by business and industry.

The state workers now average in excess of 12 holidays a year. These are Christmas, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Admission Day, Veteran's Day, Lincol's Birthday, Columbus Day, Washington's Birthday, from noon to 3 PM on Good Friday and primary and general election days.

The most recent survey of industries and businesses the Association reports, shows almost 85 per cent provide 7 or 8 holidays for employees. The most recent survey by the League of California Cities show 57 per cent observed fewer holidays than the state does.

The recent appeal by Governor Reagan for state employees to forego holidays was not successful.

If a saving is to be realized for the taxpayer, Cal-Tax stressed the decrease in holidays must be provided by the legislature.

CONFESSION OF CRIME

Many far-reaching changes in the rules of criminal evidence in this country have been made during recent years -- not by the enactment of laws but through decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court. One of the most drastic of these changes resulted from a court ruling that a voluntary confession by a suspected criminal cannot be used against him when he is brought to trial.

This is a wild distortion of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, which provides that no man "shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." A majority of the Supreme Court has ruled that any police interrogation of a suspected criminal which elicits a confession of crime is the same as compelling the suspect to be a witness against himself. This ruling, as a dissenting Justice declared, "unjustifiably fetters legitimate police investigation."

So it does, but the Supreme Court majority has shown repeatedly that it is less concerned with society's welfare than it is in imposing on the country its own ideas of how the suspected criminal shall be protected.

Meanwhile, crimes of violence are increasing at a rate about four times as fast as the growth of population.

Sixteen U.S. Senators have introduced a joint resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to prohibit the Supreme Court or any lesser court from throwing out a conviction based on a voluntary confession. It is to be hoped the proposed amendment will be promptly approved by Congress and submitted to the states. The necessity for curbing the Supreme Court daily grows more imperative. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

THE LINE-UP FOR WAR

A penetrating prediction of things to come was written from Israel by Drew Pearson in a series of columns during January, 1966. In those columns Pearson gave the line-up of overwhelming Arab strength vs. Israeli armed strength but predicted that "as in the battle of David and Goliath, the agility, determination, and indomitable spirit of the Jewish people"... will permit Israel to survive.

Pearson interviewed Israeli Chief of Staff Gen. Isaac Rabin who described the blitz tactics Israel probably would use in case of war. These were used almost exactly last week.

WASHINGTON -- With the long-delayed debate on censuring Sen. Tom Dodd opening tomorrow (June 13), the senator from Connecticut more than ever is using anti-communism as his defense. His objective is to scare wavering senators into voting for him for fear they may be criticized at home as being pro-communist.

This is a tactic which the silver - haired senator has frequently used in the past. Dodd has always been able to see a communist plot in unfavorable publicity, no matter how trivial. For instance, the Insider's Newsletter reported Oct. 25, 1965, that Dodd had flunked his bar exam and that his political friends had the rules changed to get him admitted to the Connecticut bar.

The item found its way to Dodd's office on Nov. 2. Suspecting the worst, his former trostkyite assistant, David Martin, dashed off this memo:

"The paragraph in question is so maliciously irrelevant that it is ...d to believe it was not mo... ed. My personal hunch is that the apparatus is trotting out its guns in preparation for a sustained campaign of character assassination."

Dodd scrawled across the bottom of the memo instructions to Martin, who was his personal chief-of-staff on the senate internal security subcommittee.

"David," he wrote, "immediately check on this outfit. Find out who they are -- carefully and thoroughly."

Investigation showed that the Insider's Newsletter was published by Cowles Publications, which puts out Look Magazine, the Des Moines Register and Tribune, The Minneapolis Star and The Tribune, The Suffolk, L. I., Sun, the Lakeland, Fla., Ledger, and owns several TV stations.

PROBING SCHOOL TEACHERS

On another occasion, a lecturer at Windham high school in Willimantic, Conn., made some comments mildly critical of Dodd. Later in the afternoon of Sept. 28, 1962, the senator received a phone call from his sister, Mrs. Mary Dwyer, reporting what had been said.

Angrily, Dodd buzzed his secretary, Mrs. Marjorie Carpenter, and told her to get the school's principal on the phone. With Mrs. Carpenter still on the line, the senator gave principal H. Chester Nelson a merciless tongue lashing for 10 minutes.

Then Dodd called in Martin and ordered him to run an investigation of the offending speaker. The lecturer turned out to be a Hungarian freedom fighter with anti-communist credentials as good as Dodd's.

There was also the time the senator's son, Tom Jr., brought home a "D" in a course at Georgetown University. The irate father, sensing something un-American about the low mark, ordered the professor investigated. The finding was that Tom Jr. had not been doing his homework.

GOP POVERTY BATTLE

The battle over anti - poverty starts this week in a humdrum education and labor committee room of the house of representatives. The battle will be waged on one hand by Rep. Albert Quie of Dennison, Minn., and Rep. Charlie Goodell of Jamestown, N.Y., both Republicans; on the other, Sargent Shriver, John F. Kennedy's brother-in-law who chalked up such a fine record with the peace corps that he dispelled any criticism of nepotism.

Albert Quie is a bright young Junior Chamber of Commerce product, recipient of many home-town awards, who fought hard to gut aid-to -public schools but was defeated. His strategy of attack against anti-poverty is to support all of the program but try to junk the administrator and his assistants. He wants to move anti-poverty to various federal and local agencies, claiming this would eliminate "a bureaucracy of 91,000."

Only trouble is, Quie's arithmetic is whacky. In the 91,000 bureaucrats he wants to cut out, he includes the 35,500 doctors, nurses, and other professionals who are working part-time in local neighborhood centers; also the 41,000 poor people who are working in the program, and the 7,000 employed by Westinghouse, RCA, IBM and other private contractors to operate Job Corps centers.

There just aren't 91,000 bureaucrats to be cut. In fact, there are only 2,600 people running the anti - poverty program, both in Washington and all regional offices.

Quie has given his substitute for the anti - poverty program the Madison Avenue name of "Opportunity Crusade," and it will probably attract some converts. But it will not attract some of the biggest businessmen in the nation, now vigorously supporting the present program, nor a powerful southerner, Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, who voted against anti - poverty before.

In a recent speech in Little Rock, Mills, who is chairman of the tax-writing ways and means committee, said: "The strategy against poverty is to move people away from welfare into tax-producing employment. . . the cost of welfare, unless something is done, will double by 1972. We are trying to develop alternatives to help get these people off the welfare rolls."

It will be interesting to see who wins the debate, Junior Chamber of Commerce Quie or big business and the Johnson administration.

A FALCON NOT A HAWK

After Rep. Roman Pucinski, D-Ill., a defender of Johnson's policies in Vietnam, made a Chicago speech proposing that we stop bombing North Vietnam and withdraw our troops to "freedom santuaries" in the south, a newsman phoned him to inquire:

"I always thought you were a supporter of the President, a hawk, so to speak. Now are you changing into a dove?"

"Not exactly," replied Pucinski, "I'm now a Falcon, which is a noble hawk and considered more courageous."

PUSHBUTTON INTEGRATION

Gov't. Automates Its Drive For Minorities By Launching Computerized Pincer Offensive

Washington, D.C.: -- Now the federal government is developing push - button integration. It's computerizing its crusade.

In a few months, some anonymous statistician deep in the capital labyrinth will answer an intercom and make a note of his chief's wish to know just which employers in a certain field have not hired sufficient numbers of Negroes, Spanish-speaking citizens and American Indians. The technician will hit a button or telephone a Midwest city subheadquarters of the Bureau of the Census in which is a grand computer. In its memory box will be millions of items on magnetic tape. The answer will be flashed back in a few seconds.

For in that computer will rest the intimate details of the hiring practices and personnel policies of hundreds of thousands of American employers: the racial components; the status of each racial group in the "mix"; the number in management; in policy - making echelons and in menial labor.

Much of this already is on tape though the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission still has a long way to go to record the policies of America's businessmen big or small. At best, the E.E.O.C., once headed by Franklin Roosevelt Jr. and now by a more professional chap, Steve Shulman, now can only handpick from among some tens of thousands of forms filed by firms in the past year.

Actually the government is developing a computerized pincer movement. While the intimate details of corporate hiring policies are being punched out on the Bureau of the Census feedback mechanism, another computer is being fed at the University of Pittsburgh. Into that memory box are going thousands of E.E.O.C. decisions, mediations, regulations, policy statements by Shulman and his fellow commissioners, opinions of the general counsel and regulations piled up in the past 22 months of E.E.O.C. turbulent life.

This will contain the drive for equality of the sexes as well as the intensity of integration. Thus, in a short while, Shulman or Labor Secretary Wirtz or someone over in the federal contract compliance division will be able to push some buttons, learn just what some coast-to-coast corporation has done recently -- especially in the construction field -- and what powers there are to needle it into action.

This electronic brain system will ease the drain on the men who are flying the circuit in the new city-by-city clampdown on contractors and other business handling any funds which have a penny of federal money. The jet planes are simply too slow. The federal enforcement people have been able to get around to few communities -- some of them in Northeast Ohio and as far west as the San Francisco Bay area. In a comparatively few federally assisted Ohio projects alone, some $44 million worth of such construction has or soon will be affected by government enforcement decisions.

The electronic pincers will be used to put muscle on what the E.E.O.C. people call "the arm of persuasion." Presumably, the computers will be used for lightning like feedbacks on complaints coming in from 11 regional offices -- stretching from the newest in this capital to Albuquerque to Los Angeles.

The pincer is both tactical and strategic, depending on what the government wants most at the moment. And right now the big drive is in the building and construction multibillion dollar area.

"We have a program oriented to the higher paid trades," says one top federal enforcement official who has been jetting across the land. "We're aiming at getting minority workers into jobs as electricians, mechanics, operating engineers, machine metal workers, sheet metal workers and the pipe trades. That's where you don't find the Negroes. We find them in the lower paid 'trowel and wet trades' mainly with the exception of some carpenters. But we have to spot-check the country now because we cannot, with our present facilities, sweep the whole nation."

Some employers' groups are irritated by being electronic data - processed not only because it puts their executive suite policies on a tape for anyone near a button who wants to punch it -- but also because the unions have not yet gone on the magnetic tape.

The employers can be processed because they already got a long questionnaire called form E.E.O.1 and dispatched their data. But there still is no form for the unions who supply the manpower to the companies. And there are some 7,000 apprentice programs and 50,000 local unions involved. They may not get a form for months. There must first be a public hearing. And that's scheduled for June 20. If this stretches out, the unions may not get their forms -- inquiries on the number of Negroes, Spanish - speaking citizens, Indians, etc., in their membership -- until '68.

Some employers groups are saying there now is an electronic gap -- and are preparing for the battle of the computers.

APPETIZERS

As the name applies, appetizers are appetite-teasers. Their main function is not to satisfy hunger, but to whet the appetite.

When planning appetizers, keep in mind the meal that is to follow. If the dinner is to be rich and heavy, avoid appetizers that are rich and filling. Choose crisp, fresh ones such as raw vegetables with a sour cream dunk. A light meal calls for more filling appetizers.

Be sure that those appetizers that are to be served cold are crisp and cold, not lukewarm, melted, or wilted. Hot appetizers should be served piping hot.

CHEESE DIP

2 pounds processed cheese
1 can tomatoes with chili peppers

Combine ingredients, place over low heat until cheese melts. Serve hot or cold with chips. Makes about 2 cups.

CUCUMBER DIP

1 8-ounce package cream cheese
1/4 -1/2 cup unpeeled cucumber, shredded and drained
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

SHRIMP DIP

1 can frozen shrimp soup
1 small package cream cheese
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon hot sauce
1/4 cup mayonnaise

Beat shrimp with electric mixer set at high speed until it is shredded. Add remaining ingredients and mix until smooth. Add more mayonnaise if mixture is not moist enough. Serve chilled as a dip or sandwich spread.

CHEESE LOG

1 large package cream cheese
1 jar old English cheese
1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup nuts, chopped or 1 cup parsley, minced

It is now official, and you patients have been right all along.

Doctors do indeed make something besides diagnoses and house calls. They make a good buck at their trade.

Their business is so healthy, in fact, that they make more money on the average than bank presidents.

But bank presidents, as economists have suspected, make considerably more than shoeshine boys.

All this, and more, is revealed in a survey by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Inasmuch as there is scarcely anything more fascinating than poking a nose into someone else's business or bankbook, it is interesting to learn that doctors head a list of 321 occupations by earning an average annual income of $14,561.

This may not be as much as you have suspected your doctor makes, even on the average. But it's almost $2,000 more than the average yearly income of bankers and financiers, who are in second place with $12,757.

Lawyers are third with $10,587.

It is perhaps indicative of something or other that clergymen, with an average of 17.1 years of education, do somewhat better financially than bartenders, but not as well as truck drivers.

The clergymen earn an average of $4,008 a year to rank 245th, while the truck drivers make $4,188 and the bartenders $3,740. But bartenders meet such interesting people.

As long as we're snooping, we may as well know that airline pilots average $10,000 a year, college presidents, $9,704, funeral directors and embalmers $5,804, veterinarians $8,882, and bootblacks $847.

And while the survey didn't say so, an important fact to you, the reader, it that no matter how much you make compared with all these other people, it isn't enough.

And you don't need a survey to tell you so. Right?

The real qualities of leadership are found in those who are willing to sacrifice for the sake of objectives great enough to demand their whole-hearted allegiance. Simply holding a position of leadership does not make a man a leader. If you would be a real leader you must endure loneliness . . . you must endure weariness. Leadership requires vision. A real leader ought to be able to foresee what his policies will do to the next generation. Vision must have hope and optimism in it.

CHANGE OF VIEW

I saw a show 30 years ago,
I shed o'er it my youthful tears,
That a girl, so charming, so bright and young,
Could love a dullard of middle years!

Last night that show I saw re-run,
I wept again and showed my rage;
That a man so charming, bright and kind,
Could love a dullard - half his age!

Doctors Say Hormones Make Skin Look Younger Safely

NEW YORK (Special):—A leading dermatologist and his assistants have conducted a "half-woman" test that proves conclusively estrogenic hormones make skin look younger, smooth dry-skin wrinkles, often fade "old-age" skin discolorations.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck and to one hand of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula containing no hormones was used on the other side. It was quickly apparent that the side treated with hormones looked better. At the end of the test in all but two cases, skin lines were definitely less noticeable, complexion was softer, smoother, fresher. There was no local irritation in any case; examination revealed absolutely no systemic effects. The hormones had beautified effectively and safely.

In an effort to speed up hormones' beautifying action, a trustworthy 50-year-old laboratory developed a fluid formula called HORMONEX Beauty Serum. This laboratory conducted a test on 15,000 women volunteers who were asked to use the formula for just twelve days on one side of the face and neck. An impressive percentage signified that good results were attained even in this short period.

APPETIZERS

As the name applies, appetizers are appetite-teasers. Their main function is not to satisfy hunger, but to whet the appetite.

When planning appetizers, keep in mind the meal that is to follow. If the dinner is to be rich and heavy, avoid appetizers that are rich and filling. Choose crisp, fresh ones such as raw vegetables with a sour cream dunk. A light meal calls for more filling appetizers.

Be sure that those appetizers that are to be served cold are crisp and cold, not lukewarm, melted, or wilted. Hot appetizers should be served piping hot.

CHEESE DIP

2 pounds processed cheese
1 can tomatoes with chili peppers

Combine ingredients, place over low heat until cheese melts. Serve hot or cold with chips. Makes about 2 cups.

CUCUMBER DIP

1 8-ounce package cream cheese
1/4 -1/2 cup unpeeled cucumber, shredded and drained
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Dash garlic salt

SHRIMP DIP

1 can frozen shrimp soup
1 small package cream cheese
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon hot sauce
1/4 cup mayonnaise

Beat shrimp with electric mixer set at high speed until it is shredded. Add remaining ingredients and mix until smooth. Add more mayonnaise if mixture is not moist enough. Serve chilled as a dip or sandwich spread.

CHEESE LOG

1 large package cream cheese
1 jar old English cheese
1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup nuts, chopped or 1 cup parsley, minced

Combine cheeses, garlic salt and Worcestershire sauce with a fork until well blended. Shape cheese mixture into roll or ball, roll in nuts or parsley. Refrigerate.

It is now official, and you patients have been right all along.

Doctors do indeed make something besides diagnoses and house calls. They make a good buck at their trade.

Their business is so healthy, in fact, that they make more money on the average than bank presidents.

But bank presidents, as economists have suspected, make considerably more than shoeshine boys.

All this, and more, is revealed in a survey by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Inasmuch as there is scarcely anything more fascinating than poking a nose into someone else's business or bankbook, it is interesting to learn that doctors head a list of 321 occupations by earning an average annual income of $14,561.

This may not be as much as you have suspected your doctor makes, even on the average. But it's almost $2,000 more than the average yearly income of bankers and financiers, who are in second place with $12,757.

Lawyers are third with $10,587.

It is perhaps indicative of something or other that clergymen, with an average of 17.1 years of education, do somewhat better financially than bartenders, but not as well as truck drivers.

The clergymen earn an average of $4,008 a year to rank 245th, while the truck drivers make $4,188 and the bartenders $3,740. But bartenders meet such interesting people.

As long as we're snooping, we may as well know that airline pilots average $10,000 a year, college presidents, $9,704, funeral directors and embalmers $5,804, veterinarians $8,882, and bootblacks $847.

And while the survey didn't say so, an important fact to you, the reader, it that no matter how much you make compared with all these other people, it isn't enough.

And you don't need a survey to tell you so. Right?

The real qualities of leadership are found in those who are willing to sacrifice for the sake of objectives great enough to demand their whole-hearted allegiance. Simply holding a position of leadership does not make a man a leader. If you would be a real leader you must endure loneliness . . . you must endure weariness. Leadership requires vision. A real leader ought to be able to foresee what his policies will do to the next generation. Vision must have hope and optimism in it.

During a recent physiology class the instructor was lecturing on the bones of the human body. It came time for the identification of certain bones and the instructor dragged out a large cardboard box containing an assortment of various human bones.

We would study one for a while, identify it and pass it on. Finally a very large, flat hip bone reached me. On it had been written some very small words which I managed to decipher: "If you can read this, you're getting fresh!"

CHANGE OF VIEW

I saw a show 30 years ago,
I shed o'er it my youthful tears,
That a girl, so charming, so bright and young,
Could love a dullard of middle years!

Last night that show I saw re-run,
I wept again and showed my rage;
That a man so charming, bright and kind,
Could love a dullard - half his age!

SUPER SATURATED

I'm tired of Georgy Girls and Alfie Boys,
Beatle-mania degenerated joys,
And mod, mini-skirted Caraby Street--
If it isn't British it isn't neat.
I've seen and heard it all, and I've surmised
That everything is over - Anglicized:
Film, music, art, culture, food and dress,
TV series, and all that long hair mess.

Doctors Say Hormones Make Skin Look Younger Safely

NEW YORK (Special)—A leading dermatologist and his assistants have conducted a "half-woman" test that proves conclusively estrogenic hormones make skin look younger, smooth dry-skin wrinkles, often fade "old-age" skin discolorations.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck and to one hand of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula containing no hormones was used on the other side. It was quickly apparent that the side treated with hormones looked better. At the end of the test in all but two cases, skin lines were definitely less noticeable, complexion was softer, smoother, fresher. There was no local irritation in any case; examination revealed absolutely no systemic effects. The hormones had beautified effectively and safely.

In an effort to speed up hormones' beautifying action, a trustworthy 50-year-old laboratory developed a fluid formula called HORMONEX Beauty Serum. This laboratory conducted a test on 15,000 women volunteers who were asked to use the formula for just twelve days on one side of the face and neck. An impressive percentage signified that good results were attained even in this short period.

HORMONEX Beauty Serum acts so rapidly because pure female hormones are dissolved in a combination of penetrating Sesame Oil and a patented, liquid Lanolin. Only 7 drops a day are required to treat face and neck.

If you would like to test HORMONEX Beauty Serum without risk, get a bottle at your favorite toiletry counter today, use it just twelve days. If the change is not astounding—if you are not completely satisfied, your dealer is authorized to refund purchase price without question. HORMONEX Beauty Serum is inexpensive to use. A 100-day supply costs only $3.50. Look younger quickly. See these dry-skin wrinkles smooth out, starting today! You may obtain HORMONEX Beauty Serum at:

Streak Goes To Five Games

Cardinals Take Pair

St. Louis continued its winning streak, adding victory number four and five yesterday afternoon as it swept a double header and the series from the Los Angeles Dodgers, 8-7 and 7-5.

The two consecutive losses added to the Dodgers losing string were its sixth and seventh. Los Angeles lost its three previous outings before coming into St. Louis Friday night.

Mike Shannon provided the heroics in yesterday afternoon's doubleheader, driving in the deciding run in each game.

Shannon hit a run-scoring double in the ninth inning to break a 7-7 deadlock in the first game and then singled in the fifth inning of the second game to score Orlando Cepeda with the Cards' sixth and deciding run.

Roger Maris scored the deciding run in the first game after starting the inning off with a single and added an insurance run in the second with his second homer of the series, fourth of the year in the seventh inning.

Maris connected in Saturday night's 11th inning and blasted a three-run homer giving the Cardinals a 5-2 victory. He went one for one Saturday night and collected three hits in the first game in four trips to the plate. He had a hit in three trips in the second game.

Nelson Briles won the opener in relief and Al Jackson got credit for the second victory although he needed help over the last 31-3 innings.

The Cardinals continued to slug the ball, getting 12 hits in the opener and 11 in the final. The Dodgers had 13 hits in the first game, including homers by Wes Parker and Jim Lefebrve. He hammered the Cardinal pitchers for 11 hits in the wrapup contest.

Lefebvre's smash in the ninth inning of the first game was a three-run blast as the Dodgers scored four runs in the frame for a 7-7 tie only to have the Cardinals bounce back in their half of the round to win on Shannon's hit.

The Cardinals go after its sixth straight as the Birds open a road trip in Pittsburg. Steve Carlton will be on the mound for St. Louis and Dennis Ribant for the Pirates.

Cubs Clip Mets Twice; Sox Move Into AL First

Adolfo Phillips still takes his share of lumps, but the Chicago Cubs' Panama Flash has stopped running for his life—and started hitting back.

Phillips smashed four homers Sunday, driving in eight runs and leading the suddenly ferocious Cubs to a 5-3, 18-10 doubleheader sweep over the New York Mets.

The fleet outfielder, who set Cub records of 32 stolen bases and 135 strikeouts — and was plunked 12 times by pitchers for another club mark — last season, went down for the count when he tried to steal home in the eighth inning of the opener.

But he bounced back in the nightcap, walloping three homers to vault into the National League's top five in both homers (11) and RBI (38).

While Phillips was landing Sunday punches against the Mets, Atlanta slugger Hank Aaron was on the run against San Francisco. Aaron collected four hits — including a pair of infield singles — and stole three bases before scoring the winning run from second on an infield error as the Braves edged the Giants 4-3 in 10 innings.

Cincinnati's league leaders dropped the first game of their doubleheader to Houston 7-4, then rebounded on Don Pavletich's grand slam homer for an 8-4 nightcap victory. Philadelphia buried Pittsburgh 14-1 in a single game.

Phillips, who started his power spree with a bases-empty homer in the second inning of the opener, tried to duplicate Ted Savage's steal of home in the eighth but was tagged — on the chin — by Mets catcher Bob Taylor. Adolfo lay on the ground for several minutes while the Cubs' trainer waved smelling salts under his nose.

Not long afterward, however, Phillips was back in the swing and his fans in the Wrigley Field bleachers were chanting "Ole Adolfo" again. His successive homers in the third, fifth and sixth innings accounted for seven runs.

Randy Hundley hit two homers, Ron Santo and Ernie Banks one each for the Cubs, while Ron Swoboda, Jerry Buchek, Jerry Grote and Bob Johnson connected for the Mets as the clubs tied the major league record of 11 circuits in one game.

"I'm happy when I make the fans happy," Phillips exclaimed after raising his batting average to .314 with six hits in nine trips to the plate. "I don't try to hit home runs. I just try to meet the ball."

Jim Bunning scattered eight hits while the Phillies bombed four Pittsburgh pitchers for 17. A six-run explosion in the first inning — keyed by Tony Taylor's triple and doubles by Cookie Rojas and Bunning — started the runaway.

Jim Perry provided the Minnesota Twins with relief in more ways than one and then went home in an effort to get some for himself.

Perry, suffering from a sore throat and fever, entered the second game of a doubleheader Sunday in the third inning. He left after the sixth inning and went home.

In between his arrival and departure, the veteran right-hander was tough on Baltimore batters, hit a two-run homer and singled in another run as the Twins won 10-7 after losing the opener 5-2.

While the Twins and Orioles were splitting, the Chicago White Sox moved into first place in the American League by a game over Detroit. The White Sox scored 2-1 and 2 victories over the New York Yankees, and Detroit lost 6-4 to California.

Cleveland beat Kansas City 12-1 and 3-2 and Boston split with Washington, winning 4-3 before losing 8-7 in other AL games.

Perry, now 2-4, relieved Jim "Mudcat" Grant in the third inning with two runs in and a man on third. He gave up a run-scoring single and then got the next two men to end the inning.

Minnesota tied the game at 4-4 in the fifth when Ted Uhlaender singled and Perry hit his first homer, and won the game in the sixth with four runs.

Singles by Tony Oliva and Bob Allison and a walk to Rich Rollins loaded the bases. Then after a force out at home, Russ Nixon tripled and Perry singled.

It was the usual routine of a woman customer of a little grocery store to wander about sampling the cookies, candy, and nuts from the opened boxes before placing her order.

One month she noticed a charge of $1 on her bill and demanded to know what it was for.

"That, ma'am," said the old grocer politely, "is the fee for grazing."

Rain Halts Connie Mack Opener

The scheduled opening game for the Sikeston Potlatch Forester baseball team at Dexter Saturday night was rained out.

No games will be re-scheduled in the Black River league. The Sikeston team opens the season at Home Wednesday against Fisk.

Poplar Bluff will be at Puxico for a league game tonight.

While 15,000 eagerly expectant fans of Frank Sinatra's waited for their idol to appear at the Forest Hills Music Festival in New York, the skies began to darken and thunder rumbled on the horizon. Because this was an open-air stadium, rain would cancel the performance, and Sinatra's busy schedule did not permit a performance the following night.

One woman -- evidently a Frank Sinatra fan from "bobby sox" days -- was particularly disturbed by the threatening skies, and kept expressing her fear that the concert would be rained out before Frank even began to sing.

The gentleman beside her finally couldn't take her moaning and groaning any longer. "Look, lady," he said. "Don't worry. It won't rain. Frank won't let it!"

Bill 512 Set For Hearing Tuesday

East-West Game Set For July 8

JEFFERSON CITY -- "If this bill passes the Senate and is signed into law, it could seriously curtail the natural resource management of the State." This statement by Ed Stegner, Executive Secretary of the Conservation Federation of Missouri, refers to House Bill 512 which allows the legislature to set fees for hunting and fishing licenses and provides free fishing permits for those under 17 and over 64.

The bill is scheduled for hearing Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. It has passed the House.

Stegner said the proposed law would cost an estimated $320,000 and would force the Conservation Commission to increase license fees or reduce part of its natural resource program.

This comes at a time when Missouri is booming as a tourist center and recreational playground. Anything which would damage this expanding tourist industry would be extremely harmful to Missouri, Stenger said.

He said the bill does not distinguish between needy elderly people and those who could well afford to buy their fishing permits. Stegner suggested that if there is a sufficient number of needy elderly people who could not afford fishing permits, the legislature could appropriate General Revenue funds for this purpose.

Stegner said his 21,000 member organization was solidly opposed to this welfare-type legislation as it is now proposed. The Conservation Federation is a statewide independent organization composed of individuals dedicated to the wise use of Missouri's natural resources.

ATLANTA (AP) — The East, hoping to rebound from a shelling by the West in the 1966 Coaches All-America football game, is loaded with talent for the 1967 battle July 8.

Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier, the comeback quarterback at Florida, and quarterback Bob Griese of Purdue head up the East team announced Saturday.

The West was announced a week ago.

Spurrier and Griese, who probably will share quarterbacking duties, will be able to call on some of the nation's top runners in Floyd Little of Syracuse and Nick Eddy of Notre Dame.

Target for the East's passes probably will be end Gene Washington of Michigan State.

The West rolled to a 24-7 triumph last year, evening the series at 3-3.

As the hour of noon rolled around, the pilot and copilot of our SAC Jet Tanker decided to eat lunch. The young copilot was dressed as though he were over enemy territory; he had a revolver strapped to one boot and a hunting knife strapped to the other.

He picked up a can of fruit juice and took out his knife. Two quick thrusts of the knife punctured the top of the can.

Because I was new on the crew, the older, more experienced pilot turned to me and sighed, "Thank God! He usually shoots them open."

Without even looking up from the menu, the boy replied, "Bring me a Scotch on the rocks with a splash of water."

Streak Goes To Five Games

Cardinals Take Pair

St. Louis continued its winning streak, adding victory number four and five yesterday afternoon as it swept a double header and the series from the Los Angeles Dodgers, 8-7 and 7-5.

The two consecutive losses added to the Dodgers losing string were its sixth and seventh. Los Angeles lost its three previous outings before coming into St. Louis Friday night.

Mike Shannon provided the heroics in yesterday afternoon's doubleheader, driving in the deciding run in each game.

Shannon hit a run-scoring double in the ninth inning to break a 7-7 deadlock in the first game and then singled in the fifth inning of the second game to score Orlando Cepeda with the Cards' sixth and deciding run.

Roger Maris scored the deciding run in the first game after starting the inning off with a single and added an insurance run in the second with his second homer of the series, fourth of the year in the seventh inning.

Maris connected in Saturday night's 11th inning and blasted a three-run homer giving the Cardinals a 5-2 victory. He went one for one Saturday night and collected three hits in the first game in four trips to the plate. He had a hit in three trips in the second game.

Nelson Briles won the opener in relief and Al Jackson got credit for the second victory although he needed help over the last 31-3 innings.

The Cardinals continued to slug the ball, getting 12 hits in the opener and 11 in the final. The Dodgers had 13 hits in the first game, including homers by Wes Parker and Jim Lefebrve. He hammered the Cardinal pitchers for 11 hits in the wrapup contest.

Lefebvre's smash in the ninth inning of the first game was a three-run blast as the Dodgers scored four runs in the frame for a 7-7 tie only to have the Cardinals bounce back in their half of the round to win on Shannon's hit.

The Cardinals go after its sixth straight as the Birds open a road trip in Pittsburg. Steve Carlton will be on the mound for St. Louis and Dennis Ribant for the Pirates.

Cubs Clip Mets Twice; Sox Move Into AL First

Adolfo Phillips still takes his share of lumps, but the Chicago Cubs' Panama Flash has stopped running for his life—and started hitting back.

Phillips smashed four homers Sunday, driving in eight runs and leading the suddenly ferocious Cubs to a 5-3, 18-10 doubleheader sweep over the New York Mets.

The fleet outfielder, who set Cub records of 32 stolen bases and 135 strikeouts — and was plunked 12 times by pitchers for another club mark — last season, went down for the count when he tried to steal home in the eighth inning of the opener.

But he bounced back in the nightcap, walloping three homers to vault into the National League's top five in both homers (11) and RBI (38).

While Phillips was landing Sunday punches against the Mets, Atlanta slugger Hank Aaron was on the run against San Francisco. Aaron collected four hits — including a pair of infield singles — and stole three bases before scoring the winning run from second on an infield error as the Braves edged the Giants 4-3 in 10 innings.

Cincinnati's league leaders dropped the first game of their doubleheader to Houston 7-4, then rebounded on Don Pavletich's grand slam homer for an 8-4 nightcap victory. Philadelphia buried Pittsburgh 14-1 in a single game.

Phillips, who started his power spree with a bases-empty homer in the second inning of the opener, tried to duplicate Ted Savage's steal of home in the eighth but was tagged — on the chin — by Mets catcher Bob Taylor. Adolfo lay on the ground for several minutes while the Cubs' trainer waved smelling salts under his nose.

Not long afterward, however, Phillips was back in the swing and his fans in the Wrigley Field bleachers were chanting "Ole Adolfo" again. His successive homers in the third, fifth and sixth innings accounted for seven runs.

Randy Hundley hit two homers, Ron Santo and Ernie Banks one each for the Cubs, while Ron Swoboda, Jerry Buchek, Jerry Grote and Bob Johnson connected for the Mets as the clubs tied the major league record of 11 circuits in one game.

"I'm happy when I make the fans happy," Phillips exclaimed after raising his batting average to .314 with six hits in nine trips to the plate. "I don't try to hit home runs. I just try to meet the ball."

Jim Bunning scattered eight hits while the Phillies bombed four Pittsburgh pitchers for 17. A six-run explosion in the first inning — keyed by Tony Taylor's triple and doubles by Cookie Rojas and Bunning — started the runaway.

Jim Perry provided the Minnesota Twins with relief in more ways than one and then went home in an effort to get some for himself.

Perry, suffering from a sore throat and fever, entered the second game of a doubleheader Sunday in the third inning. He left after the sixth inning and went home.

In between his arrival and departure, the veteran right-hander was tough on Baltimore batters, hit a two-run homer and singled in another run as the Twins won 10-7 after losing the opener 5-2.

While the Twins and Orioles were splitting, the Chicago White Sox moved into first place in the American League by a game over Detroit. The White Sox scored 2-1 and 2 victories over the New York Yankees, and Detroit lost 6-4 to California.

Cleveland beat Kansas City 12-1 and 3-2 and Boston split with Washington, winning 4-3 before losing 8-7 in other AL games.

Perry, now 2-4, relieved Jim "Mudcat" Grant in the third inning with two runs in and a man on third. He gave up a run-scoring single and then got the next two men to end the inning.

Minnesota tied the game at 4-4 in the fifth when Ted Uhlaender singled and Perry hit his first homer, and won the game in the sixth with four runs.

Singles by Tony Oliva and Bob Allison and a walk to Rich Rollins loaded the bases. Then after a force out at home, Russ Nixon tripled and Perry singled.

It was the usual routine of a woman customer of a little grocery store to wander about sampling the cookies, candy, and nuts from the opened boxes before placing her order.

One month she noticed a charge of $1 on her bill and demanded to know what it was for.

"That, ma'am," said the old grocer politely, "is the fee for grazing."

Rain Halts Connie Mack Opener

The scheduled opening game for the Sikeston Potlatch Forester baseball team at Dexter Saturday night was rained out.

No games will be re-scheduled in the Black River league. The Sikeston team opens the season at Home Wednesday against Fisk.

Poplar Bluff will be at Puxico for a league game tonight.

While 15,000 eagerly expectant fans of Frank Sinatra's waited for their idol to appear at the Forest Hills Music Festival in New York, the skies began to darken and thunder rumbled on the horizon. Because this was an open-air stadium, rain would cancel the performance, and Sinatra's busy schedule did not permit a performance the following night.

One woman -- evidently a Frank Sinatra fan from "bobby sox" days -- was particularly disturbed by the threatening skies, and kept expressing her fear that the concert would be rained out before Frank even began to sing.

The gentleman beside her finally couldn't take her moaning and groaning any longer. "Look, lady," he said. "Don't worry. It won't rain. Frank won't let it!"

Bill 512 Set For Hearing Tuesday

JEFFERSON CITY -- "If this bill passes the Senate and is signed into law, it could seriously curtail the natural resource management of the State." This statement by Ed Stegner, Executive Secretary of the Conservation Federation of Missouri, refers to House Bill 512 which allows the legislature to set fees for hunting and fishing licenses and provides free fishing permits for those under 17 and over 64.

The bill is scheduled for hearing Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. It has passed the House.

Stegner said the proposed law would cost an estimated $320,000 and would force the Conservation Commission to increase license fees or reduce part of its natural resource program.

This comes at a time when Missouri is booming as a tourist center and recreational playground. Anything which would damage this expanding tourist industry would be extremely harmful to Missouri, Stenger said.

He said the bill does not distinguish between needy elderly people and those who could well afford to buy their fishing permits. Stegner suggested that if there is a sufficient number of needy elderly people who could not afford fishing permits, the legislature could appropriate General Revenue funds for this purpose.

Stegner said his 21,000 member organization was solidly opposed to this welfare-type legislation as it is now proposed. The Conservation Federation is a statewide independent organization composed of individuals dedicated to the wise use of Missouri's natural resources.

East-West Game Set For July 8

ATLANTA (AP) — The East, hoping to rebound from a shelling by the West in the 1966 Coaches All-America football game, is loaded with talent for the 1967 battle July 8.

Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier, the comeback quarterback at Florida, and quarterback Bob Griese of Purdue head up the East team announced Saturday.

The West was announced a week ago.

Spurrier and Griese, who probably will share quarterbacking duties, will be able to call on some of the nation's top runners in Floyd Little of Syracuse and Nick Eddy of Notre Dame.

Target for the East's passes probably will be end Gene Washington of Michigan State.

The West rolled to a 24-7 triumph last year, evening the series at 3-3.

As the hour of noon rolled around, the pilot and copilot of our SAC Jet Tanker decided to eat lunch. The young copilot was dressed as though he were over enemy territory; he had a revolver strapped to one boot and a hunting knife strapped to the other.

He picked up a can of fruit juice and took out his knife. Two quick thrusts of the knife punctured the top of the can.

Because I was new on the crew, the older, more experienced pilot turned to me and sighed, "Thank God! He usually shoots them open." Capt. G. G. Gibbons

Seminoles Score Court Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Seminole Indians, losers in a bloody battle more than a century ago that ended with their eviction from their Florida homeland, have scored what could be a very profitable victory in court.

A U.S. Claims Court ruled Friday the Seminoles have established their legal ownership of almost all of Florida.

The court said the Indians must be paid for 32 million acres—a decision that could cost the U.S. government about $40 million. The court's unanimous decision still could be appealed to the Supreme Court.

When the United States got Florida from Spain in 1821, the Seminoles hunted and fished over most the land. They were forced to occupy a four-million-acre reservation two years later and awarded $152,500 for the 28 million acres they lost.

The Indians rebelled when the government later tried to move them to an Oklahoma reservation. Joined by runaway Negro slaves, they battled federal troops for seven years, killing 1,500 U.S. soldiers.

No treaty ever was signed. But 3,824 Semonolies and Negroes finally were sent to Oklahoma while other Indians fled into the Florida Everglades. An estimated 1,300 Seminoles now live there.

The government argued the Indians originally owned only a small part of Florida. But the Claims Court said actual possession need not be proved to show they had rightful title to most of Florida.

POSTPONED

I meant to write a poem today,
Instead, I watched the children play;
Cleaned the closet, waxed the floor,
And then 'twas almost half-past two,
I had the dishes done by seven,
But guests arrived and stayed till 'eleven.
Today there wasn't time for rhyme --
I'll write a poem some other time.

TRANSOGRAM COMPANY PREDICTS CONTINUED GROWTH FOR 1967

Roy R. Raizen, president, Transogram Company (AMEX), New York, a leading toy and leisure products manufacturer, told stockholders attending the company's annual meeting that sales in 1967 should be approximately $21 million as compared with $18,665,631 reported in 1966. He said profits should show a "vast improvement" over the net income and special item of $240,553 or $.19 per share reported a year ago.

Mr. Raizen said the company's new PhotoMate, a sophisticated toy photo printer and enlarger designed for family use, will be available for the first time in retail stores starting in September. He added, the company is planning a national consumer advertising and promotion program to introduce the unique new product.

A second product, a dry process copier also designed for toy and family use and produced under license from the 3M Company, is scheduled to be introduced on the market early in 1968, Mr. Raizen told stockholders. This new product will retail for approximately $25 and will make copies of anything (even a page in a bound book or magazine) up to size 8" x 10" in about 30 seconds at a cost of pennies per copy.

Edna Mae R. Fadem, a major shareholder, was elected an interim director at the stockholder meeting. Robert S. Rubin, a partner at Lehman Brothers was also elected a director of the company. He replaces Donald H. Loomis, also of Lehman Brothers, who is retiring as a director of Transogram.

Seminoles Score Court Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Seminole Indians, losers in a bloody battle more than a century ago that ended with their eviction from their Florida homeland, have scored what could be a very profitable victory in court.

A U.S. Claims Court ruled Friday the Seminoles have established their legal ownership of almost all of Florida.

The court said the Indians must be paid for 32 million acres—a decision that could cost the U.S. government about $40 million. The court's unanimous decision still could be appealed to the Supreme Court.

When the United States got Florida from Spain in 1821, the Seminoles hunted and fished over most the land. They were forced to occupy a four-million-acre reservation two years later and awarded $152,500 for the 28 million acres they lost.

The Indians rebelled when the government later tried to move them to an Oklahoma reservation. Joined by runaway Negro slaves, they battled federal troops for seven years, killing 1,500 U.S. soldiers.

No treaty ever was signed. But 3,824 Semonolies and Negroes finally were sent to Oklahoma while other Indians fled into the Florida Everglades. An estimated 1,300 Seminoles now live there.

The government argued the Indians originally owned only a small part of Florida. But the Claims Court said actual possession need not be proved to show they had rightful title to most of Florida.

Dexter Man Dies Saturday

DEXTER -- Pierce D. Allen, 67, died Saturday at his home.

Born July 29, 1899, in Hagarville, Ark., he had lived in Missouri since 1937.

He was a retired employe of the highway maintenance department and a member of the Church of Christ.

John D. Rockefeller recalled, in his Random Reminiscences, that he was once whipped by his mother for "some unfortunate doings" in the village school. In the middle of his punishment he protested his innocence. "Never mind," said his mother grimly. "We have started in on this whipping, and we may as well proceed. It will do for the next time."

THROWN SIDE-BY-SIDE by the quirk of a seating arrangement, Israel's Gideon Rafael (left) and Syria's Georges Tomeh maintain an air of indifference at the extraordinary session of the U. N. Security Council held at 4 a.m. Saturday morning. The call came shortly after reports of renewed fighting between the two neighboring countries.

Dexter Pilot Leads Attack

SAIGON (AP) -- U.S. Helicopter gunships caught a guerrilla band attempting to strip a downed Air Force bomber and killed 30 in a day-long fight to remove the bodies of the two crewmen, U.S. headquarters reported Sunday.

The B57 Canberra had smashed into a 4760-foot Nui Gia Mountain Friday, seven miles from Cam Ranh Bay on the coast. The guerrillas and the American helicopters apparently located the wreckage at about the same time Saturday.

A fight began immediately, with the guerrillas attempting to get machine guns and 500-pound bombs from the wrecked plane and the armed helipcopters trying to clear the area so U.S. and South Korean assault infantrymen could get in.

Each time troop-carrying helicopters approached, they met a hail of machine gun fire. A small infantry group and an air force demolition team finally reached the bomber late in the afternoon. The bodies of the crewmen were removed and the demolition experts blew up the plane.

The lead copter gunship was flown by Capt. David Kidd of Dexter, Mo.

At A US Army officers' club in Germany, a group of us were swapping experiences with several of our British counterparts when the subject turned to the perpetual battle of Volkswagens vs. tanks. Frequently an impatient German driver would attempt to scoot across an intersection in front of one of these 50 - ton monsters.

This happened recently in the British Zone and the startled but unhurt driver was left with a Volkswagen only about six inches high from the rear seat backward. In such a situation, an American tank driver is usually more shaken than the auto driver. Not so the British. The tank driver got out, surveyed the damage, and returned to his tank for an accident report form. When he came to the space marked Damage to Other Vehicle, his calm and very British analysis was: "Tank tread marks on roof of auto."

During basic training at Parks AFB, I was assigned as flight leader over 48 other men of Flight 391. I was assigned all barracks' cleaning details, barracks' guard and KP duty, etc.

I guess I gave the guys a pretty rough time because when I returned to the barracks one night, I found this note:

Cates --

Tomorrow will be Tuesday -- if it's all right with you. Thanks.

PLUMBING CARE TIPS IN HELPFUL BOOKLET

Knowing how to shut off the water in your house can be extremely important in an emergency, to prevent damage to walls or furnishings. Shutoff valves should be tagged and instructions should be written down and kept in an accessible place.

How to locate and tag valves is just one of the dozens of tips on home plumbing in a booklet entitled "Plumbing Care & Repair." Others include how to clear clogged drains, what to do about noisy plumbing, how to extend the life of your water heater, how to replace faucet washers, how to thaw frozen pipes. The booklet also tells you what jobs should be done only by plumbing contractors. It's available for 25 cents from Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago. Ill., 60601.

DEXTER -- Pierce D. Allen, 67, died Saturday at his home.

John D. Rockefeller recalled, in his Random Reminiscences, that he was once whipped by his mother for "some unfortunate doings" in the village school. In the middle of his punishment he protested his innocence. "Never mind," said his mother grimly. "We have started in on this whipping, and we may as well proceed. I will do for the next time."

THROWN SIDE-BY-SIDE by the quirk of a seating arrangement, Israel's Gideon Rafael (left) and Syria's Georges Tomeh maintain an air of indifference at the extraordinary session of the U. N. Security Council held at 4 a.m. Saturday morning. The call came shortly after reports of renewed fighting between the two neighboring countries.

Dexter Pilot Leads Attack

SAIGON (AP) -- U.S. Helicopter gunships caught a guerrilla band attempting to strip a downed Air Force bomber and killed 30 in a day-long fight to remove the bodies of the two crewmen, U.S. headquarters reported Sunday.

The B57 Canberra had smashed into a 4760-foot Nui Gia Mountain Friday, seven miles from Cam Ranh Bay on the coast. The guerrillas and the American helicopters apparently located the wreckage at about the same time Saturday.

A fight began immediately, with the guerrillas attempting to get machine guns and 500-pound bombs from the wrecked plane and the armed helipcopters trying to clear the area so U.S. and South Korean assault infantrymen could get in.

Each time troop-carrying helicopters approached, they met a hail of machine gun fire. A small infantry group and an air force demolition team finally reached the bomber late in the afternoon. The bodies of the crewmen were removed and the demolition experts blew up the plane.

The lead copter gunship was flown by Capt. David Kidd of Dexter, Mo.

At A US Army officers' club in Germany, a group of us were swapping experiences with several of our British counterparts when the subject turned to the perpetual battle of Volkswagens vs. tanks. Frequently an impatient German driver would attempt to scoot across an intersection in front of one of these 50 - ton monsters. This happened recently in the British Zone and the startled but unhurt driver was left with a Volkswagen only about six inches high from the rear seat backward. In such a situation, an American tank driver is usually more shaken than the auto driver. Not so the British. The tank driver got out, surveyed the damage, and returned to his tank for an accident report form. When he came to the space marked Damage to Other Vehicle, his calm and very British analysis was: "Tank tread marks on roof of auto."

I guess I gave the guys a pretty rough time because when I returned to the barracks one night, I found this note:

Cates --
Tomorrow will be Tuesday -- if it's all right with you. Thanks.

PLUMBING CARE TIPS IN HELPFUL BOOKLET

Knowing how to shut off the water in your house can be extremely important in an emergency, to prevent damage to walls or furnishings. Shutoff valves should be tagged and instructions should be written down and kept in an accessible place.

How to locate and tag valves is just one of the dozens of tips on home plumbing in a booklet entitled "Plumbing Care & Repair." Others include how to clear clogged drains, what to do about noisy plumbing, how to extend the life of your water heater, how to replace faucet washers, how to thaw frozen pipes. The booklet also tells you what jobs should be done only by plumbing contractors. It's available for 25 cents from Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill., 60601.

The Bank of Sikeston has subscribed for $115,000 of the Liberty Bonds of Scott County. Sikeston is doing her part in this patriots matter.

Aubrey Shain, who has been night operator at the Frisco depot in Hayti, has been transferred to Matthews, where he will be station agent. This is a splendid position for so young a man.

A story that certainly created a big sensation in this city and nearby towns Tuesday and Wednesday, was that a woman had jumped into the water tank in this city and drowned herself. Painters at work on the tower discovered a note Tuesday stating that they would find the writer's body in the tank and a woman's name was signed to the note. It turned out that two of our mischievous high school boys had climbed to the tower some time ago and left the note. One of the boys has a name easily mistaken for a lady's name and he signed the note. Some of the people have refused to drink the city water since the story has been going around, but there is absolutely nothing to it but a joke.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently in your column that you did not think it was in good taste for a person to hang notes on new furniture asking guests to keep their feet off the upholstery and their wet glasses off the teakwood tables.

What would you do about a 300-pound sister-in-law with stiletto heels who comes to visit and punches holes in your brand new hardwood floors? This happened to us during Christmas and I was sick about it. We had the floors sanded in January and refinished in February. You guessed it - Two Ton Tessie came for Easter and our floors are ruined again.

I know hardwood grows on trees, but money doesn't. I would like your opinion on how to deal with this problem. - ONE MAD RELATIVE

Dear Mad: If your 300-pound sister-in-law ruined your floors because she was doing Spanish dances you'd be justified in asking her to cut it out. But floors are for walking on and if all she does is walk on them you can't ask her to stop. Put down throw rugs when Tessie comes to visit and tell her about the problem. If she's a good egg, she'll offer to remove her shoes.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 11-year-old daughter Dee saw an ad offering a $25 reward for the return of a pet cat. Dee telephoned her friend Ruthie who had also seen the ad.

They decided to look for the cat together. Dee went to Ruthie's house. They got a rope and a piece of meat and off they went.

After some hunting they spotted the cat in the hedges near the woman's home. When the cat ran under the porch they notified the woman that her pet has been cornered. The woman was very happy and retrieved her cat with no trouble. She handed Ruthie the reward money - $25.

When they arrived at Ruthie's house her mother said, "Let's give Dee $5. After all, it was Ruthie's rope and meat that caught the cat so she should have most of the money."

Dee felt this was unfair and left empty-handed. She did not say anything, she just started to cry and came home and told me the story. A few minutes later Ruthie's mother called and asked me to send Dee back for the $5. I replied, "Let's just forget it."

My husband says I should have insisted on a fair deal - a 50-50 split. He claims that children should learn early in life not to let people take advantage of them. What do you say? - ONE WHO HATES FIGHTS

Dear One: The girls should have shared equally in the reward money. Ruthie's mother ought to be told that it's too late for the split now, but, in the interest of fairness, she should write a check to your state organization for retarded children and present it in your daughter's name.

Dear Ann Landers: Our next door neighbor has been divorced for five years. She has two children. I had heard a rumor that she is pregnant but I refused to believe it. I saw her today and she is indeed very pregnant.

What shall I say to our 14-year-old daughter when she notices? She is sure to ask how this can be. I need your help - SPEECHLESS

Dear Speechless: If your 14-year-old daughter does not know how this "can be," it's high time you explained it to her.

Steer clear of moral judgments for the sake of the woman's children. This is your opportunity to demonstrate true compassion.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting - And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Five to Attend Credit Parley

Manager Thatcher Scism, Gordon Hill, Kenneth D. Williams, Scott Waters and Fred Alexander, representating the Sikeston Production Credit Association will attend the 14th annual Missouri Production Credit conference Thursday and Friday in Columbia.

"We have a rapidly changing farm economy," Scism said. "Certainly credit has been and will continue to play an increasingly important part in the farmer's total operation.

"Production credit associations in Missouri in 1966, for example, extended $196 million of credit to farmers. This important tool of credit enabled farmers to buy seed, fertilizer, insecticides, fuel, livestock, machinery and other production items."

"It is expected," Scism said, "that credit needs by farmers in the next ten years will more than double their current requirements. It is during conferences that we are better able to evaluate the credit needs of farmers in the years ahead."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE BE-BOPPED BEAUTY

When pert Peggy walked down the street, she automatically improved the vision of every normal male pedestrian she passed. Nothing, however, could improve her own eyesight which functioned at a defective level of efficiency. And, while her shapely figure was tough to miss in the daytime, Horace had no difficulty striking it in the nighttime. As she crossed a street, he be-bopped her with his automobile.

Landing on her well-cushioned derriere, Peggy sued Horace for her injuries.

"The accident was her own fault." Horace protested in court. "A girl with poor vision should know better than to go out at night. Had she been able to see, she'd have been able to get out of the way of my car and there'd been no accident."

"At the rate of speed he was going," was Peggy's answer, "not even 20-20 vision would have saved me. He came at me like he had been launched at Cape Kennedy."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the be-bopped girl to collect?

This is how the judge ruled: Peggy collected. The judge held that a person with poor eyesight may use the public streets without being guilty of carelessness. All that is required is that the person exercise the degree of care for his safety as would an ordinarily prudent person similarly afflicted under the same circumstances. And, in this case, concluded the judge in effect, Peggy saw all she was required to see under the circumstances and Horace did not.

Burial alive held no terror for the Nubians, a people of the upper Nile, who long ago walked in whole groups into large open graves and laid themselves down to be covered with earth. Their remains, brought to light by archeologists after nearly 4,000 years, tell a strange story. When a Nubian of princely rank died, a circular grave area some 100 or more feet across was enclosed with a mud-brick wall. The dead man was placed on a bed in the center, where he rested as if asleep. Leading to the pit was a broad trench, and here assembled those who were to accompany their master and protector into the Hereafter - his wives, councilors, servants and, sometimes, children. They lay down, and hundreds of workers filled trench and pit with earth, creating a great walled mound. Archelogists opening the largest graves have counted as many as 300 skeletons. Their postures - some with hands over faces, some lying in companionable embrace - show little struggle against the suffocation they endured. As the only people ever known to have practiced self-burial, devout Nubians may have found, oddly, a relatively merciful and easy death. Llewellyn T. Jones.

Corrigan Attends Board Meeting

KANSAS CITY -- W. S. Corrigan of Sikeston participated in the 27th annual meeting of the board of trustees of Missouri Public Expenditure Survey Thursday.

The survey is a non-partisan governmental research organization with offices in Jefferson City.

A 75-year-old grandmother who had escaped from Hungary during the '56 uprising was eagerly looking forward to acquiring her United States citizenship. Because she doesn't read or write English, her family translated all the history and civics material necessary for the test. She memorized it perfectly.

After she passed the oral portion of the test, the examiner asked for a sample of her writing skill. Greatly distressed, she admitted her weakness.

"Isn't there anything you can write in English?" he asked. Her face brightened, and she wrote the one English sentence she had memorized: "Dear Milkman, please leave three bottles of milk today."

She passed.

Jerry E. Lathum son of Mr. and Mrs. Eber Lathum, received a commission as a second lieutenant in the Missouri Army National Guard when he graduated Saturday, June 10, from the Missouri National Guard Officer Candidate school. Lieutenant Lathum was a member of the fifth class to be graduated from the school.

Graduation ceremonies were held at 10:00 a.m. Saturday at Camp Clark, Nevada, Missouri, conducted by Major General L.B. Adams, the Adjutant General of Missouri. Principal speaker was Brigadier General Robert S. Dale of Carthage, Missouri.

Lieutenant Lathum has been a candidate in the Missouri National Guard OCS for the last year. During that time he has undergone four weeks of intensive training in the field and attended twelve weekend periods of instruction. The last two weeks he hax been in training at Camp Clark, Missouri.

The course trains outstanding young men in leadership and other aspects of military science. The student learns both in the classroom and through practical exercises, and is commissioned at the end of the course.

Lieutenant Lathum is assigned to the Co B 2nd Bn (Mech) 140th Inf., Sikeston.

A rising young executive usually managed to indulge in his favorite pastime, golf, while on frequent business trips, by staying near the local golf course. Because he made a very modest salary, the young man chose his overnight accommodation carefully, shopping around for the best deal. Arriving in a large western city, he quickly located a fine golf course with several adjacent motels. At the first, he was told the room rate was a steep $25 a day. Leaving, he noticed a tray of golf balls tagged at $1 each.

At the next motel, he found the room rate a much more satisfactory $5. While registering, he said, "I'll need a couple of those golf balls," indicating a counter display. "Yes sir!" answered the clerk. "That'll be $5 for the room and $25 each for the balls."

"You must be kidding," said the young man. "Down the street they sell for only a dollar."

"Yes, sir," smiled the clerk. "But down there they've got you by the rooms!"

Free pamphlet series helps mark
THE ROAD TO CHRISTIAN UNITY

Most Christians today agree with the Ecumenical Council that "Division openly contradicts the will of Christ, scandalizes the world and damages the holy cause of preaching the Gospel to every creature."

Few, however, are clear on how Christians should proceed in finding the one fold Christ intended for all his followers.

This free pamphlet series, offered by the Knights of Columbus affords some practical and useful guidelines. It explains, for instance, how Christians must find strength and harmony in the beliefs they hold in common:

- The central place that Catholics and their separated brethren give to Christ.
- Their mutual love and reverence for Sacred Scripture.
- Their common acceptance of Baptism and the celebration of the Lord's Supper.
- The dynamic social action of all Christian denominations that is so evidently Gospel inspired.

The literature also defines the Catholic Church's attitude toward her separated brethren. It explains how divisiveness in the past was caused by faults on both sides . . . and how each side must now accept its share of blame for the other . . . how every Christian must see in the face of the other a brother's face.

ECUMENISM EXPLAINED

This free pamphlet series combines two booklets; one that presents the official decree of the Catholic Church on ecumenism and another that offers a commentary on the meaning of the decree. Both explain clearly the attitude Catholics are to take toward other Christians in the effort to effect cooperation between church bodies. This series is invaluable to all who seek the harmony and unified strength Christendom once knew.

A story that certainly created a big sensation in this city and nearby towns Tuesday and Wednesday, was that a woman had jumped into the water tank in this city and drowned herself. Painters at work on the tower discovered a note Tuesday stating that they would find the writer's body in the tank and a woman's name was signed to the note. It turned out that two of our mischievous high school boys had climbed to the tower some time ago and left the note. One of the boys has a name easily mistaken for a lady's name and he signed the note. Some of the people have refused to drink the city water since the story has been going around, but there is absolutely nothing to it but a joke.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I read recently in your column that you did not think it was in good taste for a person to hang notes on new furniture asking guests to keep their feet off the upholstery and their wet glasses off the teakwood tables.

What would you do about a 300-pound sister-in-law with stiletto heels who comes to visit and punches holes in your brand new hardwood floors? This happened to us during Christmas and I was sick about it. We had the floors sanded in January and refinished in February. You guessed it - Two Ton Tessie came for Easter and our floors are ruined again.

I know hardwood grows on trees, but money doesn't. I would like your opinion on how to deal with this problem. - ONE MAD RELATIVE

Dear Mad: If your 300-pound sister-in-law ruined your floors because she was doing Spanish dances you'd be justified in asking her to cut it out. But floors are for walking on and if all she does is walk on them you can't ask her to stop. Put down throw rugs when Tessie comes to visit and tell her about the problem. If she's a good egg, she'll offer to remove her shoes.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 11-year-old daughter Dee saw an ad offering a $25 reward for the return of a pet cat. Dee telephoned her friend Ruthie who had also seen the ad.

They decided to look for the cat together. Dee went to Ruthie's house. They got a rope and a piece of meat and off they went.

After some hunting they spotted the cat in the hedges near the woman's home. When the cat ran under the porch they notified the woman that her pet has been cornered. The woman was very happy and retrieved her cat with no trouble. She handed Ruthie the reward money - $25.

When they arrived at Ruthie's house her mother said, "Let's give Dee $5. After all, it was Ruthie's rope and meat that caught the cat so she should have most of the money."

Dee felt this was unfair and left empty-handed. She did not say anything, she just started to cry and came home and told me the story. A few minutes later Ruthie's mother called and asked me to send Dee back for the $5. I replied, "Let's just forget it."

My husband says I should have insisted on a fair deal - a 50-50 split. He claims that children should learn early in life not to let people take advantage of them. What do you say? - ONE WHO HATES FIGHTS

Burial alive held no terror for the Nubians, a people of the upper Nile, who long ago walked in whole groups into large open graves and laid themselves down to be covered with earth. Their remains, brought to light by archeologists after nearly 4,000 years, tell a strange story. When a Nubian of princely rank died, a circular grave area some 100 or more feet across was enclosed with a mud-brick wall. The dead man was placed on a bed in the center, where he rested as if asleep. Leading to the pit was a broad trench, and here assembled those who were to accompany their master and protector into the Hereafter - his wives, councilors, servants and, sometimes, children. They lay down, and hundreds of workers filled trench and pit with earth, creating a great walled mound. Archelogists opening the largest graves have counted as many as 300 skeletons. Their postures - some with hands over faces, some lying in companionable embrace - show little struggle against the suffocation they endured. As the only people ever known to have practiced self-burial, devout Nubians may have found, oddly, a relatively merciful and easy death. Llewellyn T. Jones.

Corrigan Attends Board Meeting

KANSAS CITY -- W. S. Corrigan of Sikeston participated in the 27th annual meeting of the board of trustees of Missouri Public Expenditure Survey Thursday.

The survey is a non-partisan governmental research organization with offices in Jefferson City.

A 75-year-old grandmother who had escaped from Hungary during the '56 uprising was eagerly looking forward to acquiring her United States citizenship. Because she doesn't read or write English, her family translated all the history and civics material necessary for the test. She memorized it perfectly.

After she passed the oral portion of the test, the examiner asked for a sample of her writing skill. Greatly distressed, she admitted her weakness.

"Isn't there anything you can write in English?" he asked. Her face brightened, and she wrote the one English sentence she had memorized: "Dear Milkman, please leave three bottles of milk today."

She passed.

ARMED FORCES

U. S. ARMY, VIETNAM (AHTNC) -- Army Private First Class Charles E. Smith, 19, whose father, Carlos Smith Jr., lives at 1319 S. Kostner, Chicago, Ill., was assigned to the 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam, May 25.

Smith, a tanker with Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion of the division's 47th Infantry, entered the Army in April 1966 and was last assigned in Germany.

He attended Marshall High School, Chicago. His wife, Bernice, lives at 409 W. Market, Charleston, Mo.

Jerry E. Lathum son of Mr. and Mrs. Eber Lathum, received a commission as a second lieutenant in the Missouri Army National Guard when he graduated Saturday, June 10, from the Missouri National Guard Officer Candidate school. Lieutenant Lathum was a member of the fifth class to be graduated from the school.

Graduation ceremonies were held at 10:00 a.m. Saturday at Camp Clark, Nevada, Missouri, conducted by Major General L.B. Adams, the Adjutant General of Missouri. Principal speaker was Brigadier General Robert S. Dale of Carthage, Missouri.

Lieutenant Lathum has been a candidate in the Missouri National Guard OCS for the last year. During that time he has undergone four weeks of intensive training in the field and attended twelve weekend periods of instruction. The last two weeks he hax been in training at Camp Clark, Missouri.

The course trains outstanding young men in leadership and other aspects of military science. The student learns both in the classroom and through practical exercises, and is commissioned at the end of the course.

Lieutenant Lathum is assigned to the Co B 2nd Bn (Mech) 140th Inf., Sikeston.

A rising young executive usually managed to indulge in his favorite pastime, golf, while on frequent business trips, by staying near the local golf course. Because he made a very modest salary, the young man chose his overnight accommodation carefully, shopping around for the best deal. Arriving in a large western city, he quickly located a fine golf course with several adjacent motels. At the first, he was told the room rate was a steep $25 a day. Leaving, he noticed a tray of golf balls tagged at $1 each.

At the next motel, he found the room rate a much more satisfactory $5. While registering, he said, "I'll need a couple of those golf balls," indicating a counter display. "Yes sir!" answered the clerk. "That'll be $5 for the room and $25 each for the balls."

"You must be kidding," said the young man. "Down the street they sell for only a dollar."

"Yes, sir," smiled the clerk. "But down there they've got you by the rooms!"

Free pamphlet series helps mark
THE ROAD TO CHRISTIAN UNITY

Most Christians today agree with the Ecumenical Council that "Division openly contradicts the will of Christ, scandalizes the world and damages the holy cause of preaching the Gospel to every creature."

Few, however, are clear on how Christians should proceed in finding the one fold Christ intended for all his followers.

This free pamphlet series, offered by the Knights of Columbus affords some practical and useful guidelines. It explains, for instance, how Christians must find strength and harmony in the beliefs they hold in common:

- The central place that Catholics and their separated brethren give to Christ.
- Their mutual love and reverence for Sacred Scripture.
- Their common acceptance of Baptism and the celebration of the Lord's Supper.
- The dynamic social action of all Christian denominations that is so evidently Gospel inspired.

The literature also defines the Catholic Church's attitude toward her separated brethren. It explains how divisiveness in the past was caused by faults on both sides . . . and how each side must now accept its share of blame for the other . . . how every Christian must see in the face of the other a brother's face.

ECUMENISM EXPLAINED

This free pamphlet series combines two booklets; one that presents the official decree of the Catholic Church on ecumenism and another that offers a commentary on the meaning of the decree. Both explain clearly the attitude Catholics are to take toward other Christians in the effort to effect cooperation between church bodies. This series is invaluable to all who seek the harmony and unified strength Christendom once knew.

Waiting for my case to be tried in Manhattan Traffic Court, I heard the man ahead of me plead guilty, with extenuating circumstances, to parking his car in a restricted area.

"Your Honor," he explained, "when I pulled into this parking place, I asked the policeman standing nearby if it was all right. He said okay. But when I came back I found a ticket on the car."

The judge asked, "Do you think you would recognize this officer if you saw him again?"

"I think I would," the man answered.

"Well," replied the judge, "the next time you see him, tell him he owes you five dollars."

There's a short - cut past the meadow,
But I took the longer way
Just to see that lovely fountain
With its green and graceful play.

On a gorgeous April day!

SKARA, Sweden AP — Two Swedish drivers collided near here and found: Both cars were the same make, built in the same year.

Both were red and had been purchased from the same car dealer.

Both drivers were the same age, worked in the same factory and lived in the same town, Haellekis.

Both drivers were uninjured and each car suffered the same damage -- both fenders were buckled and both headlights were smashed.

And finally both cars were insured in the same firm.

Overcome by all these likenesses, the drivers adjourned for a coffee, had a good talk and decided they might as well be good friends, too.

If you're among the growing number of families who are planning a backyard swimming pool this year, don't forget to include heating equipment, the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau advises. It will enable you to use your pool earlier in the spring and later in the fall, nearly doubling the swimming season.

Bull Meets Match in Truck Load of Hogs

FRUITLAND, Mo. (AP)— An angus bull harassed motorists on U.S. 61 Friday night, but finally met his match in a tractor-trailer loaded with hogs bound for market.

The bull was killed along with one hog.

The driver of the truck was not seriously injured. The force of the collision overturned the truck, opening a hole in the roof of the trailer and 145 hogs escaped. The hogs were later rounded up by Cape Girardeau County Sheriff's Officers and Highway Patrolmen.

ALL NUMBER CALLING is coming

All Number Calling (ANC) simply means that telephone numbers consist of seven numerals instead of two letters and five numerals. About three-fourths of the nation's telephones now have this numbering system.

The change to ANC is beginning in Sikeston and Morehouse. Whenever anyone in these communities has a new phone installed, moves to a new address or changes his telephone number, we'll give him one of the new all-numeral numbers.

The change to ANC isn't really much of a change. For example, if your old number was KLondike 5-2368, your new one is 555-2368. Technically, it isn't a new number. It's your same old number expressed a different way. And you'll dial it exactly as you always have. Look at your dial—5 is the same as K and L. So, for most practical purposes, there's no change at all.

Most of these phone numbers will stay the same for the present. However, all will have this new type of number with the December, 1967, directory issue.

Why the change? The reason we're eliminating central office names is simple. On a nationwide basis, we're running out of suitable, easy-to-pronounce-and-understand names. All Number Calling gives us about 50 percent more usable telephone numbers. We need these numbers to keep up with the demand for new service.

All-numeral numbers really aren't difficult when you get used to them. For instance, we think of a number such as 555-2368 in three parts like this: 555 (pause), 23 (pause), 68. It's much easier to say and to remember that way.

There are several things you'll like about All Number Calling. Confusion between letters and figures (such as I and one, O and zero) and between central office names (such as HUbbard and HObart) will be eliminated. This means fewer pesky "wrong numbers" —something we can all do without.

Also, your dialing will be faster and easier, with only numbers to look for on the dial.

While the changeover to All Number Calling is not until December, we thought you'd like to know now that it's on the way. If you have any questions about the change, just call your telephone business office.

The star-spangled street where you live

You can't always see the stars and stripes on the homes and apartments in your neighborhood, but they're there just the same.

A big percentage of American families own U.S. Savings Bonds. Many of these star-spangled families have been buying Bonds since they were first issued 25 years ago.

Altogether, Uncle Sam has sold $150 billion in E and H Bonds. About $100 billion of these have been cashed in for college, retirement, new furniture, emergencies, and down payments for those homes.

Americans still own a nest egg of nearly $50 billion in Bonds for tomorrow's needs. And as the nest egg grows, Uncle Sam uses the dollars to help support our fighting men in Vietnam—and help keep our economy strong.

You can help make Uncle Sam's future, and your own, more secure by joining this star-spangled savings plan. Why not start now? Sign up for Payroll Savings where you work, or buy Bonds regularly at your bank.

Waiting for my case to be tried in Manhattan Traffic Court, I heard the man ahead of me plead guilty, with extenuating circumstances, to parking his car in a restricted area.

"Your Honor," he explained, "when I pulled into this parking place, I asked the policeman standing nearby if it was all right. He said okay. But when I came back I found a ticket on the car."

The judge asked, "Do you think you would recognize this officer if you saw him again?"

"I think I would," the man answered.

"Well," replied the judge, "the next time you see him, tell him he owes you five dollars."
